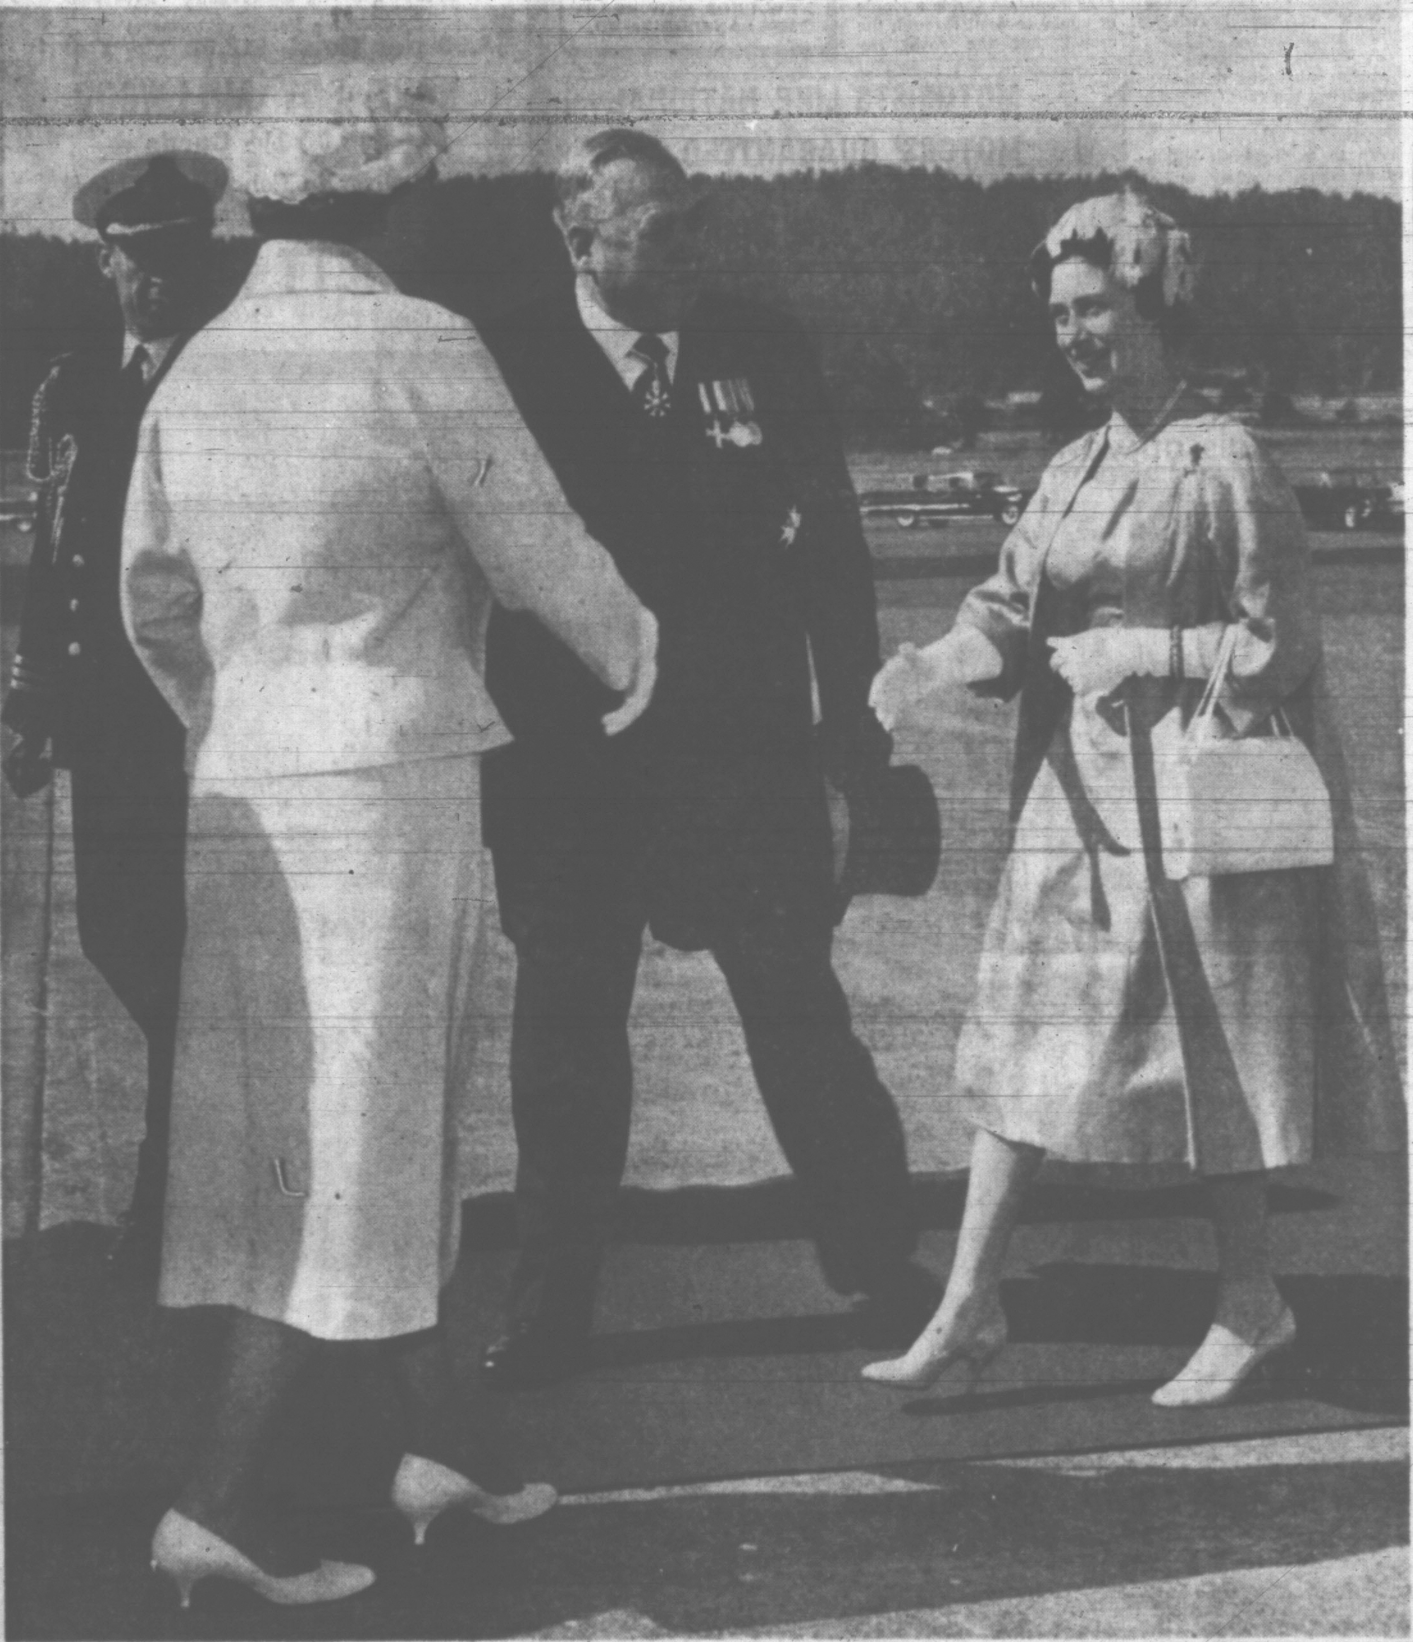
Princess Captures City's Heart



B.C.'s Royal Guest

Throngs Line Royal Route In Greeting

By PETE LOUDON

British Columbia's welcome to Princess Margaret began as an awed silence at Patricia Bay airport, then grew to a crescendo of emotion as the royal party neared the Empress Hotel.

A crowd of 3,000 clapped, waved and cheered at the hotel as the Princess arrived. Dozens of "We Want Margaret" chants continued to break out for over three-quarters of an hour after the Princess had disappeared into the building.

The airport ceremonies were formal and restrained. Then, the welcome by the people—the easy, natural, neighborly, smiling, friendly welcome—dispelled the stiffness of officialdom and protocol.

As the royal motorcade travelled south to the city, people began to appear in twos, threes, dozens, scores, hundreds and finally in their thousands.

Airport Crowd Kept at Distance

The royal plane, an RCAF C5, touched down on schedule, sharp at 10 a.m. at the airport. Victoria had observed the plea of the royal tour organizers to "stay away from the airport" to avoid traffic tangles.

The crowd of 700 mainly came from Sidney and North Saanich. It was enclosed behind a barrier 100 yards from the debarkation point. A group of Girl Guides and Brownies were allowed closer.

More obvious than the crowd were the dignitaries, the RCN royal honor guard, the band, and the carefully segregated pockets of reporters and photographers.

The official welcome scene was a small busy island on the sun-swept tarmac, so far from the people the initial welcome seemed to lack enthusiasm.

The guns spoke up as the plane, a silver and red, four-motored luxury craft, touched its wheels to the ground.

Fifth Independent B.C. Medium Battery (Militia) of Victoria, touched off a 21-gun royal salute, using four six-pounders — a barrage which must have shaken the Malahat backdrop.

The plane door opened, a loading ramp was trundled into place, and two sailors unrolled 100 feet of red carpet leading to a raised dais.

First Greeting by Gen. Pearkes

Canadian Defence Minister Maj.-Gen. George R. Pearkes, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, was first to greet her, on behalf of the government of Canada.

She has been familiar to many through pictures during her 27 years. Now they were to see "what she really looks like."

They saw a small and charming girl, who as a veteran reporter stated, "Carries herself with the regal dignity of her mother."

She was poised and smiled gently as Mrs. Pearkes was presented.

A mild breeze stirred the folds of her "modified bell skirt and trapeze coat"—quotes from a fashion expert—as she passed along the receiving line which welcomed her to Canada.

"Royal Guard of Honor, royal salute, present arms," bellowed the officer of the 100-man honor guard of HMCS Naden.

Following the royal salute, as the rifle butts crashed together on the pavement, the Guides and Brownies released the tension of the crowd with a Guide cheer.

The officer of the guard, sword erect, saluted and requested the Princess inspect the guard. The band played Greensleeves, as the Princess walked slowly between the ranks. The shortest man towered over her.

Lieutenant-Governor Ross escorted Princess Margaret to a black convertible bearing a coat of arms licence plate. The royal party, including ladies-in-waiting and other court officials, entered other cars. A 12-car caravan then began the journey to Victoria.

WAVES AND SMILES

The Princess waved and smiled at the crowd as the cars passed through the airport gates. There were hundreds more spectators waiting to greet her as the cars reached the Patricia Bay Highway.

Wisely, they had reasoned they would have a closer glimpse of the Princess as she passed by. There were sprinkles of waving people all along the highway. The caravan slowed for a crowd at Mount Newton Cross Road and at other crossings.

A group of Indians appeared

PLANE TRIP 'WONDERFUL'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chief pilot on the BOAC Bristol Britannia turbo-prop aircraft which brought Princess Margaret here from London today said the princess told him she had "a wonderful trip."

Capt. J. T. Percy, a veteran of Atlantic flying who captained the plane, said the princess sent for him near the end of the journey.

She told him she had rested well and that the Bristol was "a lovely plane."

Arrival Sidelights

"Isn't she tiny?" he exclaimed.

Many spectators said the Princess was smaller than they expected from her newspaper photographs.

* * *

A member of the Princess' entourage said she is greatly looking forward to attending the Sunday morning service at Christ Church Cathedral.

* * *

Many more witnessed the 1951 visit of Queen Elizabeth, then a princess, with Prince Philip.

* * *

Meticulous planning never eliminates that last-minute hitch that all travellers—including royalty—undergo.

Proving it was the buzz of busy telephones this morning as officials tried to make new arrangements for Princess Margaret's hairdresser.

She found that all the electrical outlets in the Empress Hotel were wired for direct current power—and all her equipment was built for alternating current.

* * *

On his arm George Brookbank, Kiwanis Village, wore one of 23 bazzards, presented in 1900 by Princess Alexandra to men of the First St. John Ambulance Brigade ever to go on active service.

* * *

Overheard at the airport was the story that a naval commander was placed in charge of the laying of the red carpet. Practice drills were held by order, "Unroll." Each drill saw the carpet unrolled toward the spot the aircraft was to come to a halt. At each drill the measurement was gauged to a hair. The last foot of carpet almost touched the loading ramp. What happened when the plane actually arrived? That's right, the roll was not completely unwound when it touched the ramp—and it had to be tucked underneath.

* * *

Press representatives arrived at the airport at 8.45 to find many eager persons already lined up near the TCA building. The RCN guard of honor stood at ease nearby.

OLD-TIMERS SHED A TEAR

Many of them had tears in their eyes as she waved to them from her car.

More than 500 automobiles were parked in the area.

She Will Worship 'Close' to Family

When Princess Margaret kneels to pray in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday morning, she will be worshipping in a church with many close and warm family affiliations.

A few feet in front of her pew is a wrought-iron railing. The Princess' mother and father, the late King George, and the present Queen Mother, were married at this railing, which was later sent to Victoria.

PRINCESS AT EMPRESS

Privileged Peep Through Petunia

By ELIZABETH FORBES, Times Women's Editor

A privileged position I was told. Only two newspaper people accredited to it.

The moment I stepped out on the tiled floor, however, I was greeted by a handsome RCMP sergeant who looked sternly at me and said: "You will stand here behind this flower box. You will look through the flowers. Then if the Princess does look up she will think that white hat of yours is just another blossom."

You simply don't argue with the police. I tucked myself in behind the flower box.

With my nose in a petunia I saw Princess Margaret, beloved sister of Her Majesty the Queen, step daintily from an open car and walk with light, youthful step to the entrance of the hotel.

At her side was His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor. He held his tall silk hat in his hand and he smiled proudly and with hint of fatherly benevolence at the gracious young Princess.

Shouts of welcome rose from the crowd packed eight deep along the walk to the hotel entrance and around the lawn. Faintly in the distance could be heard the welcoming peel of Christ Church Cathedral bells.

THAT SMILE

You've seen that smile on television and in the movies many times. But somehow in real life it takes on friendly

'We Want Margaret' Hotel Mob Chants

BY JOHN MIKA

The royal standard waved proudly in the Victoria breeze as it rose to the top of the Empress Hotel flagstaff when Princess Margaret stepped over the threshold at 10.54 a.m. today.

The cheering and clapping of 2,500 excited persons that rapidly swelled to 3,000 in seconds rang up and down the jam-packed Causeway as the Princess arrived.

The solid mass of people—from the old to the very young—sent out dozens of "We want Margaret" chants against the tall walls of the hotel for more than three-quarters of an hour after the arrival.

Cheering was constant from the moment the buzz of the waiting crowd broke out into a crescendo of sound when the advance party of police motorcycle escorts roared up to the Government Street entrance of the hotel at 11.51 a.m.

Seconds later, the car — a black convertible—drew up and

PAT BAY RECEPTION LIKE FAMILY REUNION

'Isn't She Lovely!' On Everyone's Lips

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A slim, radiant figure in blue, with a bright smile for everyone, Princess Margaret entered Victoria via Patricia Bay Airport today as naturally as if she were visiting an English country town.

The reception, though formal and rehearsed down to the last detail, was so friendly the Princess might have been greeting old acquaintances when she shook hands with leading citizens of Canada, the province and city.

Her smile was sweet and unaffected and her big blue eyes, under a dainty blue cap, had the laughing expression for which they are famous.

'Isn't she lovely!" were the words on everyone's lips.

It was almost like a family reunion.

GOVERNOR BEAMS

Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, also in formal attire, was beaming happily as he assisted her into the sleek black open car that waited at the end of a long red carpet stretching from the big RCAF airliner.

Premier Bennett wore his customary wide grin and bowed low as the Princess was presented to him by the lieutenant-governor.

If she was weary after her long flight from England she showed no trace of it. She greeted each member of the welcoming party with equal enthusiasm and with friendly words of greeting.

First to greet the Princess was General Pearkes, representing the Canadian government, who then presented her to Mrs. Pearkes.

Lieut.-Gevernor Ross then introduced her in turn to Mrs. Ross, Premier and Mrs. Bennett, Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston and Mrs. Williston, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan and Mrs. Kiernan, deputy provincial secretary R.A. Pennington and Mrs. Pennington, and senior officers of the armed services.

COLORFUL SCENE

Occupying a prominent position on the airfield were the First Sidney Company of Guides and the First Sidney Brownie Pack who raised a cheer as the Princess stepped from the plane.

The Pantheon, a temple erected at Rome in 123 AD, has been called the best specimen of old Roman architecture.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

BY MICHAEL ROSE

Question: Do you intend to watch the naval review next Tuesday? If so, from where?

George Rice, 3568 Quadra:

"I shall be going out Royal Roads way and probably watch it from somewhere near Albert Head. Either that or take my own little boat out."

Rice

Oliver

Roy Grimbleby, 866 Craigflower:

"I am afraid I won't be able to get out there, much as I'd like to as I have to work all day. Of course, we do have television here and I will be able to follow it that way."

Mrs. Maude Elson, 1058 Lodge:

"My husband used to be in the navy and if we can get a pass we hope to be able to watch everything from Rodd Hill. If we can't get a spot there we will probably try Albert Head."

Grimbleby

Worth

Mrs. Irene Oliver, Latoria Road, Happy Valley:

"We live way out in the country and also have a big garden which is keeping us very busy nowadays so we won't be seeing it. I doubt whether we will be able to see it on television either unless they re-broadcast it after 9 p.m."

Mrs. Helen Worth, 330 John:

"I have to work all day so, I won't be out there although I would certainly like to see the show. It seems to me that you could get a very good view from the Royal Roads lagoon spit."

Elson

Tronningsdal

Alfred Tronningsdal, 111 Gorge Road East:

"I think the whole thing is a complete waste of time. There are thousands of elderly people in Victoria without a decent roof over their heads. If the money spent on the review were used to provide good housing for them think of all the happy faces there would be."

to welcome her near the East Saanich reserve. There were crowds at the Island View Beach cutoff and again at Elk Lake.

Several persons were on horseback.

RURAL WELCOME

The rural welcome dispelled for visiting reporters, and perhaps for the Royal guest, all vintage beliefs of Victoria's decorum in matters of dress and manner.

The people turned out in sunsuits, pin-curlers, overalls, straw hats, bandanas, house dresses and shirtsleeves. Many carried flags, the only concession to the stateliness of the occasion.

It was a warm, "hi-neighbor," hello. One the Princess may recall through the trials of formal reception that lie ahead.

Twelve minutes before the plane was due, a voiced boomed out "Oh-nine-four-eight." The band and guard then marched on the field. The welcoming dignitaries, stood almost 20 minutes on the tarmac.

Five teenagers from a girls' camp in the San Juan Islands, in blue romper-style sunsuits took up position with a pile of magazines on the steps of the Empress before 8 p.m. today. The American girls, like many of their parents, made more of the royal visit than many Canadians.

* * *

The roofs of the TCA and Department of Transport buildings sprouted a crop of cameras of all sizes and shapes long before the arrival of the royal plane. A poetic correspondent murmured about, ". . . a host of three-legged monsters, devouring the scene for digestion around the world."

* * *

There were Union Jacks, red ensigns and centennial flags draped from various points on main buildings at the airport. But the flag most honored, and carried closest to the Royal visitor, marched on and off the tarmac with a 100-man guard of honor, was the RCN's white ensign.

* * *

Driver of the Royal car on the journey from Pat Bay to the Empress Hotel was Petty Officer Robert A. McCallum, RCN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McCallum of Gordon Head.

He was picked from 12 navy drivers for smartness, deportment and driving efficiency.

* * *

The car was escorted by two RCMP outriders on motorcycles—Constable Ronald H. Davies of the University detachment and Constable Douglas Ashbee of Richmond detachment.

At Fountain Circle a ripple of applause went through the crowd, but the royal car passed too quickly for a noisy welcome to work up.

Young men were heard to murmur approval of the smiling princess with the golden tan, apparently preserved from her recent West Indies trip.

* * *

Vehicular traffic was held up only a limited time at cross streets along the main Douglas Street route.

Saanich police reported no problems as the procession sped along Patricia Bay Highway, slowing for groups of people at Sayward, Royal Oak and Glanford intersections.

* * *

Amongst the crowd in the middle of Hillside at Douglas were Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Tucker and the Joe White family, all of Los Angeles.

They arrived in Victoria Monday, were to leave earlier in the week, but stayed because the Princess was a "drawing card."

It was their first look at Canada, and British royalty, even though only a glance as the official cars whooshed by.

Both these programs will be viewed simultaneously by all Canada as they are relayed on the country's new television microwave network.

In addition to the live telecasts Channels 6 and 2 will carry filmed highlights of the Royal visit on Tuesday night at 10.30 and again on Thursday night at 11.30.

Inco Metals at work in Canada

The development of stainless steel has produced many remarkable changes in both the appearance and convenience of Canadian homes. Stainless steel sinks made with Inco Nickel are a good example. They not only brighten and beautify the kitchen, they make household tasks far easier. The manufacture of stainless steel sinks, using nickel supplied by Inco, has become a thriving industry in Canada, providing employment for many Canadians.

Stainless steel sinks made with
INCO NICKEL help provide jobs in Canada

Ten years ago, hardly any homes in Canada had stainless steel sinks. But a few Canadian housewives tried the new sinks and thought they were wonderful —wouldn't stain or chip, were so easy to keep bright and clean, and best of all, glasses and dishes that were accidentally dropped didn't break as easily.

That was the beginning of a new and thriving Canadian industry. Today, most of the new homes being built in Canada have Canadian-made stainless steel sinks. And practically all of these sinks contain Inco Nickel.

Ore from the mines near Sudbury, Ontario, is milled, smelted and refined by Inco here in Canada. Refined nickel is sold to other Canadian companies to make stainless steel. This stainless steel goes to the Canadian firms that make the sinks. And Canadian builders install them in the homes.

These operations—from the time the ore is mined until the finished sink is installed—provide jobs for thousands of Canadian workmen. That's how Inco Nickel helps promote the growth and development of industry in Canada.

Jung Issue Sparks Sharp House Reaction

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—The Parliament of Canada, which has often boasted this country's record of racial tolerance, has reacted sharply to a senator's cutting application of the phrase "this Chinaman" to a young Vancouver Commons member.

Disapproval, inside and outside the Commons, was expressed Friday over the words spoken by Senator J. W. de B. Farris, Vancouver Liberal, about 34-year-old Douglas Jung, first Canadian of Chinese extraction ever to sit in Parliament.

Thursday night in the upper chamber the senator snapped: "What right has this Chinaman got to represent the Canadian people?" He was speaking at the time about statements credited to Mr. Jung while in Paris at a NATO Association youth leaders' conference.

More Fireworks on Jung's Return

The issue is likely to be raised again in Parliament next week when Mr. Jung, Progressive Conservative MP for Vancouver Centre, is expected to return.

The Senate itself adjourned Thursday night soon after Senator Farris' speech and won't meet again until Tuesday evening.

Opposition Leader Pearson, at the start of Friday's Commons sitting, attempted unsuccessfully to make a statement expressing "great regret and disapproval" of the senator's words.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker spoke of resentment felt by "members as a whole." Harold Winch (CCF., Vancouver East) called it a "reflection" on Mr. Jung.

The prime minister, during the election campaign, spoke often with pride of Mr. Jung's election to Parliament and his selection last winter as head of the Young Progressive Conservatives.

The quiet-spoken Jung is a B.C.-born lawyer whose constituency includes Vancouver's Chinatown. But he once said he would have been elected to the Commons even if none of the Chinese-origin residents of his riding had voted for him.

He defeated former Liberal defence minister Ralph Campney in last year's election and won re-election this year with a 10,117-vote plurality.

* * *

Mr. Diefenbaker and External Affairs Minister Smith explained two other points in connection with their three-day meetings with President Eisenhower and U.S. State Secretary Dulles.

The prime minister said discussions are continuing over U.S. restrictions on imports of Canadian crude oil and that the problem would be discussed by the Canada-U.S. joint cabinet committee on trade and economic affairs.

He said he hopes the committee will meet soon.

Mr. Smith said civil defence could be discussed by the newly established Canada-U.S. cabinet committee on defence.

* * *

CCF members Friday night prevented passage of a bill to allow Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Company to split its shares five to one.

Harold Winch (Vancouver East), Arnold Peters (Timiskaming) and Frank Howard (Skeena), all CCFers, were the only members to talk on the bill except Ernest Brome (Vancouver South) who introduced it.

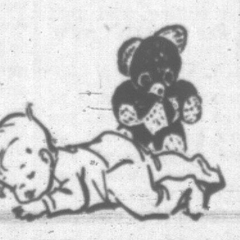
WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT

Better Health Through Knowledge

Q. Should a young baby be placed on his back or tummy to sleep?

● Baby's Sleeping Position



A. Neither, according to an Atlanta baby doctor. Babies, said the physician, should be placed on their side to sleep. In the stomach position the legs tend to spread in frog fashion and the legs rotate or turn outward. The big toe rests on the mattress and the foot is forced into a flatfoot position. Something of the same thing happens when a young baby is placed on his back to sleep. The heels rest on the mattress and the feet tend to be forced into the flatfoot position. To prevent trouble, especially flatfoot, in later years the Atlanta doctor recommends placing the baby on his side to sleep. It helps to support the youngster's back with a small pillow or a tightly rolled baby blanket. Never put a baby on his back after feeding. He may spit up some milk and become strangled.

Material in MEDICAL MIRROR is based on various scientific publications and does not necessarily reflect the opinion of all doctors. The diagnosis and treatment of disease requires the skill and knowledge which only a physician can apply by personally attending the patient.

QUIET WEEKEND FOR REST AFTER JOURNEY

Only two official functions are scheduled today and Sunday—a press reception at the Empress Hotel at 5.30 tonight, and a service in Christ Church Cathedral at 11 a.m. Sunday which will last only an hour.

The remainder of the weekend the princess will be free to relax, and go where she chooses from her suite in the Empress.

SMOOTH VOYAGE

Royal Plane 'Early Bird'

Princess Margaret's airliner cruised over Vancouver 12 minutes early today, then landed at International Airport at 9.15 a.m.—five minutes before schedule.

She had a quiet, smooth voyage.

The Whispering Giant Britannia turbo-prop was seen above the city at 9.08 and killed time for a few minutes before taking the Princess down for her "quick change" to an RCAF C-5 for the flip to Victoria.

A slight tail wind helped speed the BOAC airliner along its northerly great circle route across Canada at 315 m.p.h. and a height of 26,000 feet.

MARGARET SLEEPS

Pilot Capt. James Percy touched down so gently in a slight rain that Margaret slept on undisturbed.

During the crossing, he said, "the princess relaxed, and had supper and finally went to bed." He said she hadn't—up to then—gone forward to take over the controls, as many distinguished passengers do.

CHANGE IN ROUTE

At 6.15 this morning the Britannia was sighted above Great Whale River, Que., on the shores of Hudson Bay.

This indicated Capt. Percy had changed his flight plan to follow the great circle route over Winisk, northern Ontario, The Pas, Man., Prince Albert, Sask., Calgary and Princeton, B.C.

For her departure from London Margaret wore a fetching summer dress of crushed strawberry chiffon. She was accompanied to the airport by the Queen Mother who stood in the open until the plane had disappeared from view.

The princess' dress, full-skirted and fashionably short, wrung exclamations of admiration from scores of onlookers lining the red-carpeted gangway. With it she wore a matching cloche hat with white trimming, white gloves and white shoes with plastic toe-caps.

GOOBYE TO QUEEN

Among those seeing her off were George Drew, Canadian high commissioner to the United Kingdom, and the Earl of Home, secretary of state for Commonwealth relations.

Before leaving London, the princess had stopped by at Buckingham Palace for tea and to say goodbye to the Queen who is confined to bed with a sinus condition.

Royal Visit Delays Black Ball Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — The government-controlled Black Ball Ferries will not be tied up by a strike while Princess Margaret is on Vancouver Island.

Richard Greaves, president of the National Association of Marine Engineers, said Friday: "The members don't want to cause any inconvenience or embarrassment while the Princess is on the Island.

EAGER TO STRIKE

Officials of the union had said earlier that a large number of engineers employed on the ferries which ply between the Island and the B.C. mainland, were anxious to strike immediately for higher pay.

Richard Greaves, national president of the union, said Thursday individual members of the union are planning to defy the government by walking off the job and facing a possible fine or jail sentence under the Civil Defence Act.

MOUSE HUNT ABANDONED

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The search for the Thor-Able nose cone and its tiny mouse passenger was abandoned today by the air force.

'There Must Be Trust' —Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev said today Russia still wants a summit conference, but "it would be better not to meet" if the West insists on talking about Soviet satellite countries.

He also rejected Western proposals for control of disarmament.

"We will speak about controls when there is complete trust," he said, and indicated such trust might be a long time coming.

"How could one propose that the Communists should agree to discuss with the capitalists how to liquidate Socialist order in a given state?" Khrushchev asked.

"If such questions were to be discussed, it would be better not to meet because the Soviet attitude would not change," the Soviet premier added.

RECORD BOOKINGS

Big Planes For Scramble To Victoria

Airline officials today reported an all-time record number of bookings on flights from Vancouver to Victoria during the weekend.

Trans-Canada Air Lines said it has had to bring its big North Star airliners into service on the run to cope with an expected 7,200 passengers coming to Vancouver Island to catch a glimpse of Princess Margaret.

The company said it has put 75 extra passenger agents on staff and they are handling 20,000 phone calls daily.

A strike which has idled 10 steamships of the Canadian Pacific Railway's coast service for eight weeks was given as one of the main reasons for the rush on air travel.

Anthem Could Be Story of B.C.

An anthem by Sir Edward Elgar will be sung by a choir of 50 voices at Christ Church Cathedral during Princess Margaret's visit Sunday morning.

The anthem contains the lines:

Choirmaster Graham Steed said that he thought the anthem was appropriate for the occasion because Elgar was once Master of the King's Music and "B.C. was largely a wilderness 100 years ago, and today it is bearing fruit."

From 10.10 a.m. to 10.50 Mr. Steed will give an organ recital, as follows:

Fugue No. 2 on Bach — R. Schumann.

Sonata in E Flat—Sir Edward Bairstow.

The Integrity of the CBC

FEW APPOINTMENTS WITHIN the gift of the Federal Government are as important as the chairmanship of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

It will be difficult indeed for the Government to find an adequate successor to Mr. Davidson Dunton, who has managed the CBC so long and so ably and who has now become president of Carleton University.

But for the highest national reasons it is essential that a man of Mr. Dunton's stature shall be found to guide what is probably the most powerful agency of communication in Canada.

Hence the public will expect the Government to be guided in this appointment by much more than partisan considerations. The CBC chairmanship is far too big to be offered as a political reward. Already some appointments to the judiciary have been based mainly on those considerations but we trust they will not affect the CBC.

The CBC is a corporation independent in law and also in actual fact. On a few occasions politicians have attempted to bring pressures to bear on broadcasting policy but in every case they regretted it.

When Mr. Diefenbaker, in a thoughtless moment, recently seemed to be warning a CBC interviewer not to ask a certain question of the British prime minister he was instantly attacked in Parliament, tried to explain the incident away and is not likely to repeat it.

The CBC's independence and political impartiality have been safe under the protection of Mr. Dunton and his assistants. They might not be safe under men of a weaker sort.

No government would risk any overt interference with the CBC but the danger of secret influence, a quiet, cosy understanding between the East Block and the broadcasting headquarters, must always be a real danger in the nature of a publicly-owned radio and television system.

So great is the impact of these channels of communication, so wide their reach throughout the nation, that any government controlling them, publicly or secretly, would be in a position to manipulate the public mind largely for its own purposes.

The Diefenbaker Government, we may be sure, has no such intention. It can best demonstrate both its good faith and good judgment by appointing in Mr. Dunton's place a man who enjoys the fullest confidence of the Canadian people.

In Civilian Hands

CANADA AND THE UNITED States have enjoyed a joint defence agreement since the Ogdensburg understanding of 1940. The mutual arrangement has been brought up to date from time to time, and today embodies the split-second system of retaliatory force which is demanded by modern armaments.

The joint cabinet committee on continental defence that has been announced as a result of the recent Ottawa talks between Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower is therefore not new in principle. It merely adds another factor to an arrangement of 18 years' standing.

The new committee, to be composed of three cabinet members from each country, will act in a supervisory capacity only. It will supplement but not supplant the existing military co-ordination.

But it is important in that it retains in civilian hands the very vital components of continental defence. Where a mistaken move might precipitate a catastrophic world war of nuclear destruction, it is necessary that national governments retain supreme powers and that the military continue to act as the agents of the government and not as independent forces controlling decisions of national life and death.

The move exemplifies once more—as has already been done in such fields as trade, fisheries, power rights—that two sovereign powers can cooperate for their mutual benefit despite occasional disagreements, and that by negotiation and understanding they can achieve the best results for all concerned.

Wonderful Butchart Concerts

ONCE AGAIN, THE SYMPHONY concerts at Butchart's Gardens have proven that Victoria has here an attraction quite unique in Canada, and perhaps in North America.

The idyllic combination of fine music, ably performed in a matchless natural setting, makes for a memorable summer evening. The tremendous crowd which turned up Thursday night—heeding the advice of planners to come in pool-car arrangements—is ample proof of the fact that Victorians and visitors appreciate what is being done.

Mr. and Mrs. Ian Ross deserve the thanks of the community for the personal part they play in all this. The concerts are not money-making affairs. The Rosses invite the guest stars, and arrange for the orchestra, in the spirit of community service.

It is to be hoped that they will continue these concerts each summer, for they are spreading the fame of Victoria far and wide, and providing at the Inlet an attraction which compares favorably with the cultural enterprise at Stratford.

Madame Chiang on Neutrals

THE VOICE OF MADAME Chiang Kai-shek, a persuasive instrument a few years ago, has been raised again in New York—but the potency of her earlier arguments seems lacking.

Madame Chiang says that the free world should stop helping neutrals unless it wants the countries fighting communism to start wondering: "Why should we fight when the neutrals sit on the fence and get just as much as we do?"

The simple answer seems to be that the nations fighting communism have as yet failed to prove their ability to score victories of substantial size. The neutrals must be wooed lest they fail to remain neutral and throw their weight on the opposing side.

Madame Chiang also said that the Nationalists would recapture the Chinese mainland with their own army, which is American-trained and American-equipped—"We don't want the United States to do it for us."

In the perspective of China's long history, it is not impossible that such a development might occur, provided the Nationalists last long enough. But as of now, the struggle impels the non-communists to persuade the neutrals to at least stay neutral. Madame Chiang is astute enough to know that, even if the role in which she was cast some years ago makes her repeat the lines delivered in New York.

Kensington Stone on the Rocks

A LITTLE REGRETFULLY WE read the most recent reports on the Kensington Stone.

This is a presumed relic bearing in runic characters the story of Vikings allegedly lost in a raid against them in what is now Minnesota. The significance of the stone rests on the supposition that it indicated deep penetration of the continent by Norsemen from about 1000 AD onward.

The supposition is still being argued, but those who consider the relic an authentic piece of evidence are losing ground. Those who consider it a hoax are having the better of the exchange. They maintain that a Swedish-speaking practical joker carved the stone, buried it and later "discovered" it—with no particularly malicious intent.

They support the claim by pointing out that although written in ancient Norse runes, the style, spelling and grammar are modern, not medieval. They add that a reference in the stone applies to a Hindu rather than a Norse origin, and they note that the stone was found in a Scandinavian community where elementary runic knowledge was prevalent.

So the Kensington Stone seems headed the way of the Piltdown Man and the Cardiff Giant.

We seem to have been over-credulous. But we still have the Flying Dutchman and Social Credit. We can't be completely disillusioned.

As Our Readers See It

Why the Jets?

Why should these horrible, dangerous jet planes be allowed to fly over our city?

Anyway they are as out-dated by guided missile as bows and arrows were by gunpowder.

I'm Through With Watching Our Fine Feathered Friends

BEFORE he became a bird watcher, at his wife's instigation, Mr. Snifkin tells me he used to enjoy the countryside. He even enjoyed the birds until he got to know them, as a man may enjoy many casual acquaintances until he gets to know them. These things are too deep for me. All I know is that when Mr. Snifkin goes walking in the woods these days he is compelled to carry a pair of field glasses, costing a hundred dollars and weighing almost as many pounds.

Hutchison

Once you become a bird watcher, Mr. Snifkin tells me, you do not walk for pleasure. You walk for knowledge. Acquiring knowledge, with field glasses and a technical bird book in hand, you also acquire the old vice of pride.

A NATURALLY modest man, Mr. Snifkin has become insufferably proud now that he can distinguish a robin from a woodpecker. As in other fields of knowledge, the bird watchers soon form a caste, an elite, a burden to their friends. The bird watcher, Mr. Snifkin says, talks only to birdwatchers as the Cabots of Boston talk only to God.

Anyway, Mr. Snifkin used to spend many an evening with me talking about Mr. Diefenbaker. Now he is satisfied with no subject less than a Nuthatch. And to tell the truth we are getting rather bored, around here, with Nuthatches. We prefer the good old days of Mr. Diefenbaker which now seem so long ago.

LAST evening, in a moment of folly, I was persuaded to accompany Mr. Snifkin on his walk, being assured that I might even be allowed to look through the expensive field glasses if we discovered anything of interest.

Well, we had gone hardly a hundred yards before Mr. Snifkin discovered something of interest. He stood transfixed on the trail, hushed me into silence and unlimbered the field glasses from their leather case as a gun crew unlimbers a cannon.

I saw only a common little bird on a twig, the same sort of bird I had seen for the last fifty years, but Mr. Snifkin told me in a whisper that it might well be a genuine Townsend's Warbler. He became quite angry when I said it was only a sparrow or Dickie Bird but our argument was never settled. By the time Mr. Snifkin had his glasses in focus the bird had flown a mile away.

MR. SNIFKIN blamed me for that disaster as if I had spoiled a plan of battle or betrayed the nation's strategic secrets to the enemy. From now on, he said, we must not talk, even in whispers. Our evening's stroll turned into a commando raid. That's what birdwatching does to a normal man.

Presently we heard some wild pigeons. I knew them immediately by the familiar click of their wings and the swerve of their flight; had known them, indeed, for half a century. But Mr. Snifkin was as excited as if he had discovered a new star.

Crouching behind a stump and ordering me to lie at ful length on some prickly blackberry vines, he trained his glasses on the quarry. It was gone, of course, before he could fix his sights. I had a good view of it, however, together with many thorns in my person, for I was wearing shorts and nothing else. There is more to bird watching than you might suppose.

AT length, after a weary climb up the hill, Mr. Snifkin did catch a bird full within his sights, though his hands were trembling so violently that he could hardly hold the glasses.

He watched it for a long time and announced to me, in a hoarse voice, that he had seen a Ruby-Crowned Kinglet. From the field marks, he said, there could be no doubt about it. Whipping the bird book from his pocket, he looked up the diagrams and colored paintings. And sure enough, that bird turned out to be a female Goldfinch, as I could have told him without a book in the first place if I hadn't been clinging for life to a precipitous cliff.

Mr. Snifkin said little during the next mile of our walk, except that these scientific books were often in error.

FROM a high peak Mr. Snifkin eventually sighted what he called an eagle. I didn't spoil his fun by telling him that it was a fish hawk. And when, at the edge of a farmer's field, he found a rare and almost unknown species of grouse, barely visible through the glasses, I didn't bother to inform him that he was looking at a stray Rhode Island Red rooster. There is no use arguing with a bird watcher.

That's the trouble with us now-a-days. We know so much we can't enjoy anything. If you are a bird watcher you can't even enjoy an evening's walk with a friend.

I can hardly call Mr. Snifkin a friend any longer, though. We had a grave falling out over a Pileated Woodpecker and almost came to blows over a common, ordinary, low-down junco which Mr. Snifkin took to be a wren and tried to prove it from his book.

SO old friends, otherwise sane, will quarrel about something as inconsequential and remote as the policy of the national Government.

Thus disputing, we passed the gay weekend resort of a rich man and, peering rudely through the window, narrowly missed seeing an Extra-Marital Lark. After that disappointment I am finished with bird watching for good.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

By GUS SIVERTZ

'They Galloped Through Our Dreams for Days Afterwards'

STORY-TELLING is probably one of the oldest of the arts, for indeed it is an art and has held an honored place in all civilizations and, in a more primitive form, amongst savage people. I dare say that soon after man had made the stupendous step of learning how to convey his thoughts to other men by speech the first story-teller squatted near some likely place of barter and began to weave the magic fabric of man-created word pictures.

Sivertz

In earlier days my forebears were largely gifted in the art of story-telling, as were all northern people who must live through the isolation of long, cold and dark winters. My father has told of how the head of the house would either read from a book at the one light that an Icelandic farmstead could afford, or recite the stories of the great heroes of the past while the womenfolk carded wool, spun or wove stuff from which all the clothing was made.

Thus was the history of such people preserved and handed down from generation to generation with an astonishing fidelity to fact. Thus were handed down the Edda Sagas which told of the Vikings settling on the bleak shores of Iceland, of their bickerings, their blood feuds, their incredible voyages into the Arctic and westward to Greenland.

Even today the story-teller amongst Arab people, through such cradles of civilization as early Egypt, Mesopotamia, the basins of the Tigris and Euphrates, the peninsula of India and across the vast plateau of Tibet and over the whole huge bulk of China, is an almost vital part of community life.

There is no substitute for the well-told tale and millions of hungry men will snatch a half-hour from the endless preoccupation of searching for food to squat on his heels before the storyteller to listen enthralled to tales which he knows so well that each inflection, each modulation of voice can be anticipated with a simple and earthy pleasure, so that for a short while at least the gnawing hunger of his belly is assuaged.

Now into my life when I was about twelve there came a remarkable family which migrated from the north central plain of the United States in search of a more pioneering life.

They were pure Norse; father and mother, three girls and five boys. And at that stage of their journeying—which ended on beautiful Quatsino Sound—they were also very poor, although this did not seem to occur either to us who cherished them as priceless additions to our neighborhood, or to themselves.

Now the oldest sister who was probably then about twenty, was a born story-teller and could hold us in complete thralldom as she filled the dingy room of their tiny house with the clash of cutlasses, the thunder of Lee's galloping cavalry, the bloodchilling war whoops of plains Indians on the warpath.

She had the faculty of complete voice control and would chill us by reciting the most thrilling and tragic tales in verse told in a flat voice that gave a terrific emphasis to the stories.

This girl was fearfully misnamed, Hazel—a good enough name in ordinary circumstances, no doubt—when she should have been called Dagmar, or Freja or Ragnhild, for she was truly a Viking daughter and her magnificent bearing heightened the suspense of her stories until we huddled together on the floor in an ecstacy of half-fear and half joy.

She reminded me of Stevenson's description of Kirstie Elliott in Weir of Hermiston, although Hazel was in the fulness of a lusty youth while Kirstie had passed the half-century mark. But the description is apt, nevertheless:

". . . she might have sat to a sculptor. Long of limb, deep-breasted, robust-loined, her hair golden . . . the years had caressed and embellished her."

While on the American plains her parents had heard much of the Civil War in their younger days and Hazel had absorbed a vast lore of tales and of verse. These we clamored for and it is a tribute to her art that my own ideas of that terrible war were largely colored by her stories.

There was one poem of which we never tired and always demanded at least once in each story-telling session. I have forgotten all but one verse, but you must imagine it recited on a wild November night when the Olympic mountains had pulled their cloud-caps over their heads:

"Morgan, Morgan, the raider,
And Morgan's terrible men
Came galloping, galloping,
Galloping down the glen."

. . . and they galloped through our dreams for days afterward.

PUTTING ART ON SHOW

By TONY EMERY

Cause of Dissension Should Be Before Us as We Argue

I WASTED many hours of my life arguing about works of art in general before I came to my senses. Nowadays I try to restrict my arguments to occasions when my opponent and myself are at loggerheads over something that we have both seen or read. Ideally, the cause of dissension should be before us as we argue, and it is for this reason that I am grateful to Maclean's Magazine and to Messrs. T. Eaton and Co.

Emery

Maclean's has kept sides of the "modern both sides of the "modern art" controversy before a very large public; it has given publicity and financial support to some of the best artists of our province; and its art editors do a subtle job of visual education by employing some excellent illustrators.

So few people read "Canadian Art" that without the help of Maclean's the task of bridging the gulf between artist and public in Canada might be protracted indefinitely.

Eaton's are also to be commended for their services to art. Their show of paintings by Tretchikoff was attended by many thousands of people who would never dream of visiting an art gallery: indeed, many of the visitors had never before seen an original oil painting. (It would be churlish to add that there was nothing "original" in this show, unless it was the highly-developed commercial acumen of the artist.)

More recently Eaton's has "featured" some jolly scenic impressions by a Mr. Messner, following up this unexceptionable—if unexciting—display with a collection of works by Robert Cooper, a rigorously uncompromising young painter, whose creations have caused a considerable amount of discussion.

The good thing about these shows in a popular department store is that art of three distinct kinds has now been shown to people who otherwise might have seen no paintings. When people who have seen these shows start an argument with me about their merits and defects we have a common stock of visual information on which to base our discussion, and the argument doesn't degenerate into a shouting match and exchange of insults quite so soon as it otherwise would.

Without this common experience an argument about art is a sterile affair, but when both parties have seen the same pictures some progress can be made. A few questions will elicit what it was that the other person found to admire or to condemn, and from these answers one can obtain an insight into the opponent's knowledge and taste.

It is usual, at this stage, to discover that the other party has a firm notion of what the painter's job is: it is to represent as painstakingly as possible the appearance of some attractive subject—a lovely woman, some cute animals, a pleasant landscape.

A test question here can separate those who look at paintings as paintings, and those who merely wish to be reminded of pets and petting, and that question is: Do you like "still-life" painting?

When the answer is No—and it commonly is — I remember the words of Mme. de Stael: "Ceux qui n'aiment pas beaucoup la peinture en elle-meme, attachent une grande importance aux sujets des tableaux." (Those who don't like painting for its own sake attach great importance to the subject of a picture.)

Personally, I find the subject of a painting its least important feature, and I am not in the least perturbed if there is no recognizable subject at all, so long as the painter uses form and color and the properties of the medium to produce a personal statement which enlarges my experience.

I don't ask that every painting be a masterpiece, because I know how few masterpieces any century produces; I do not even demand great originality, though I am delighted when I find it.

I do ask, though, that the work I am looking at shall bear traces of having been created by someone of more than ordinary sensibility; it doesn't enlarge my experience to be shown works that I could match myself, without trying very hard.

What, I wonder, would Mme. de Stael have said of Mr. Cooper's work? He does not attach much importance to the subject, clearly, and neither does he care for painting for its own sake. Of the normal ingredients of a painting he has selected a minor one—texture—and devoted himself to its exploitation, to the exclusion of all the others.

No color much, no form to speak of, no line apart from a few rather obvious and repetitive incisions, no oiliness of oil, no paintiness of paint—nothing but textures laboriously built up by various tricks and dodges.

If we regard these works as sculptures in relief rather than as paintings, can we wring some enjoyment from them? I did find a faint something emanating from a very small relief (priced with unusual modesty at $100) across which the light played to reveal three or four intensities of black; but the emotion it aroused was fainter than that conjured up by the purely accidental textures of old walls and roads and rocks.

If you want to see an exciting relief Bob di Castro has one in the Vancouver Art Gallery right now: you don't have to go to Malaga or Paris for it.

But well done, Eaton's, anyway. I hope we shall be given regular shows covering as many different facets of art as possible. The furnishing sections of our big stores should carry a stock of works at varying prices by our local artists: prints and watercolors and paintings by Siebner and Lansdowne and Ciccimarra and all the others. A home without original works of art in it is a pretty dull affair.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

By SILENUS

Fiat Justitia

AS the trial drags on in Vancouver this column has been receiving more and more barbed comments from gentle readers on such subjects as the law's delays and the finicky diversions to which it is subject.

"Why," they ask, "does this trial take so long? Why does the judge allow all this hairsplitting? Why doesn't a murderer get the same consideration?" and many other "whys" of the same ilk.

SILENUS

Many were worried about what appeared to be deliberate sidetracking of the main issue into devious byways beset with technicalities. Others thought that the main defendant was getting special treatment because of his former Cabinet rank.

Such talk seems to be common wherever the trial is discussed. It is always easier to blame than to understand.

To begin with, the whole case involves a matter of public morality, and we are all touched by the outcome in one way or another. The real issues are not listed in the indictment, but everyone is aware of them. This alone renders it essential that everything be sifted in the greatest detail and that every relevant aspect of the law be brough to bear.

And then the very charges of bribery and conspiracy are highly technical and must be proved with the greatest particularity. Consider the implications of such charges and you will see why this must be so. It is just as serious—sometimes more serious—to lose your reputation as it is to lose your life.

A conspiracy case consumes endless time. Evidence must be collected from all sorts of places, and built up bit by bit into a convincing case.

As to special treatment, there probably has never been a case in this province where such scrupulous accuracy as to detail has been necessary. The whole public and its politics is on trial and there must be no mistake, no chance of error. Let justice be done though the heavens fall! has always struck this column as being more rhetoric than sense. But this case is one where the high sounding phrase takes on its full meaning and implications.

The heavens may not be in danger of falling, but certainly the holidays are being cut down. The "Sommers" trial will take its place in history as the Centennial Trial, and will show the world that our law cases, like everything else we have here, are bigger, and longer, and wider and better than those of any other place.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

That 'Free' Medicine

LONDON—I'm sure that you must have been confused by the announcement that the rising cost of Britain's so-called free National Health Service is to be met by increasing the public's contributions to National Insurance.

You might well be confused, because this business of National Health and National insurance is certainly a case of bureaucracy gone mad. The British themselves are hopelessly confused about it.

The spokesmen at the ministries concerned can explain it to you only after interminable consulting of documents. And my head's in a whirl trying to get it straight.

Reyburn

* * *

However, I shall now explain it to you!

It seems that in 1948 there came into being a National Insurance scheme and a National Health scheme.

The function of National Insurance was to provide cash benefits in cases of sickness, unemployment, retirement from work—plus a few other things such as maternity, widowhood, orphans, etc.

The function of National Health was to provide free medical and hospital treatment—plus wigs, crutches, false teeth, etc.

You see the basic difference—the former was a contributory scheme from which you got cash benefits when ill, unemployed or retired, while the latter merely looked after your health bills.

The original contribution to the National Insurance scheme for a man at the start of 1948 was 9s 1d ($1.81) per week, part of which was shared by his employer. (It is interesting to note that the latest increase brings this to 18s 2d ($3.63), which means that the contribution has doubled in the scheme's 10 years of existence.)

The National Health scheme, though not supposed to be a contributory affair, got a gift of 11 cents from each of these 9s 1d ($1.81) contributions to help them out. This did nothing like paying for the Health Service. In fact it made up only 8 per cent of the health bill, the rest coming from taxation.

In the first full year of National Health the bill, estimated at $350,000,000, turned out to be $1,265,600,000. It has now jumped to $2,072,000,000.

* * *

The government, tired of trying to find from taxation the money for such whopping bills, decided the public should fork out more money directly. So, in September of last year, National Insurance and National Health were combined, in that health's share of the insurance contribution was increased to 23 cents and this portion became an open rather than hidden contribution.

The latest increase of 7 cents, just announced, all gote to health, so that now the basic insurance contribution is $3.63 weekly, of which health gets 43 cents.

In dollar terms it works out that the British public now pays 14 cents in direct contribution and 86 cents in taxation for every $1 of "free" medical attention.

Storm Cuts Calgary Power

CALGARY (CP) — A three-hour electrical storm struck Calgary Friday knocking out power, telephone, city transit service and traffic lights at times.

No heavy loss was reported. Worst damage was at the Ogden Power Station where oil was set on fire after transformers were hit by lightning. Action by the fire department kept the blaze confined.

Several homes in South Calgary were without electricity for up to three hours.

PEARKES ENTHUSIASTIC

Defence Tie-Up 'Tremendous Step'

Defence Minister Pearkes, here today to greet Princess Margaret, Friday termed the formation of a new Canada-U.S. committee on joint defence as "a tremendous stride forward to ensure we have co-ordinated defence."

The minister was interviewed in Vancouver on arriving from Ottawa in the C-5 aircraft which carried the Princess here.

The minister said no date for the committee's first meeting has been set, "but it will not be in the too-distant future."

Canadian members of the committee are External Minister Smith, Finance Minister Fleming and Mr. Pearkes. Its formation was announced in Ottawa Thursday.

TO USE NEW JET?

Mr. Pearkes said it is too early to say whether the U.S. will buy any of Canada's supersonic interceptors, the CF-105.

Asked if an approach on the matter had been made to President Eisenhower during his Ottawa visit, the minister replied that "we discussed in general terms the defence problems of North America. . . . They (the U.S.) know the qualities of the CF-105. They have been up to see it.

"Mind you, we have got to examine the position this fall to decide whether we go into production or not. No decision has been made yet."

Mr. Pearkes said he has not heard of any reports "which could be described as probable" of hostile submarines off either Canadian seaboard. No definite identifications had been made in recent months.

U.S. CHIDED FOR BOSSING NEIGHBORS

LONDON (Reuters) — The Financial Times, Britain's leading financial newspaper, advises the United States to "practise what it preaches" in trade liberalization.

"Canada must be treated as an equal, not as a subordinate," it says. "Latin American countries must be treated as sovereign states and not as banana republics."

The American attitude of free trade "as a one-way street" causes "intense resentment" in both Canada and South America.

President Eisenhower's speech Wednesday before the Canadian Parliament "did not leave the impression he understood the nature of the Canadian complaint against the United States."

Railman Seeks Council Seat In Esquimalt

Railwayman F. Vincent Rush, 1221 Old Esquimalt Road, will contest the July 31 byelection in Esquimalt.

Mr. Rush, acting chief dispatcher for the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, is a former member of the Port Alberni council.

A veteran of five years' service overseas during the Second World War, he moved to Victoria in 1954. He seeks the seat left vacant by the death of Coun. J. E. Carey.

SOLDIERS HELD HOSTAGE

U.S. Claims 'Blackmail'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moscow's repeated refusal to obtain freedom for nine American soldiers held in Communist East Germany threatened today to blow up into another row between the United States and Russia.

Robert Murphy, deputy undersecretary of state, told Soviet Ambassador Mikhail Menshikov Friday that the Soviet government is permitting East German authorities to use the nine captive Americans to blackmail the U.S.

Continuation of this situation, Murphy told the ambassador, "can only worsen the relations of the Soviet Union and the United States to the profit of neither country."

In the same session with the Soviet envoy, Murphy also delivered a stern protest against the Soviet shooting down of an unarmed U.S. transport plane June 27 and demanded punishment for "those guilty of the attacks on the plane."

Russia had charged the transport deliberately flew over Soviet territory. The United States replied the plane was on a flight across Turkey when it strayed across the Soviet frontier.

"To suggest that a slow, four-engine, propeller-type unarmed aircraft would attempt to violate a heavily defended foreign area is preposterous."

Soviets Deny U.S. Plane Shot Down

MOSCOW (AP) — Red Star, the army newspaper, said today United States charges that its military transport plane was shot down by Soviet fighters over Armenia were an invention.

The American account of how the transport was forced to land in flames June 27 after being fired on by Soviet fighters was first issued by the U.S. Air Force after the nine crew members were released to American authorities. The airmen themselves later gave the same account at a press conference.

Red Star's report was the first mention in the Soviet press of the Americans' story that the transport was fired upon. The paper said this "invention" was for the purpose of distracting attention from the fact the plane had crossed into Soviet territory.

BOOK TALK — By JAMES SCOTT

Amateur Authors Pander To Literary Skin Game

The other day I received a letter and a parcel in the mail from a neighbor of mine. It contained a book in which there was a story which this friend had written. The letter told another story—the story of how it came about that she had a short story in print in this particular kind of book.

I think it may be worthwhile to repeat the gist of this story in this space because it may be that there is a reader or two who is busting to write a story which will get published.

SCOTT

In fact, it may be the company I keep, but I seem to know a lot of people who are busting out all over with stories. I think this is fine and, usually, they are fine people too. That's why I don't like to see them getting taken in by the old skin game.

The story which my neighbor told me in her letter is an old familiar one—it has a few variations, but it generally adds up to the same thing.

In the magazines which are published as guides to writers (and usually these publications are good and helpful in themselves) there are always advertisements which tell the budding author he too can write, or that out of the goodness of some agent's heart he is giving away the vital secrets of how to make $20,000 a year free-lance writing.

These, of course, are the good old come-ons and it would be an interesting thing to know how many are lured into the net by these little advertisements every year.

What happens next is interesting, too. After the author has received the free booklet the agent then writes to him and asks how he is coming along. Has he written the world's greatest short story yet?

If so, just send it along, free of charge, no obligation, and again the great-hearted agent will assess it and probably find a market for it.

GOOD BUT . . .

Tthe story can then take one of two usual turns. Sometimes it happens that the agent says that this story is very, very good but not exactly right. It needs just a touch of fixing up here and there and then, almost for sure, he will be able to sell it.

However, much as he would like to give his all, things are a little tight now so if you would like him to help you fix it up, you'll want to send him along a little something in the way of hard cash.

Quite often he gets it. Not very often does he sell the story for you. And if he does, you can be sure he takes the usual agent's bite out of the proceeds.

Now the other way the story can go is more ingenious. The writer will receive a letter from his friend who will tell him what a great story he has just written. This is so magnificent that it ought to be in print.

However, you know how it is, editors only buy the work of published authors and so before you can start coining the dough you will have to get into print and he is the man to see that you do it.

Just to help you out, he will print this story himself in his yearbook or anthology of great short stories. You will be in the company of the best in the business. (He includes half a dozen of these but he pays the writers for second rights on them.)

The rest of the book is made up of stories by unknowns like my friend and they, of course, are expected to underwrite the cost of printing the book. In fact they have to agree to buy a stipulated number of copies.

In other words it's a fancy way of getting material for nothing and making the writers buy the books. Not bad, eh?

Well, that's how it goes and I thought you might like to know about it. It has been going on for years; it's not illegal; and maybe it's worth it to some writers.

Me, I would hate to be taken for a sucker.

Dedicated Historian Writes of Regiment

(Reviewed by Tom Merriman)

DILEAS, a history of the Highlanders of Canada, 1929-1956, by Kim Beattie. $4.75.

At the price it is a non-profit venture published by the regiment to preserve its fighting records into colorful peacetime tradition. It may be purchased from the 48th Highlanders of Canada publication office, 519 Church Street, Toronto. It will also be on sale at local book stores.

To a great extent the history of the 48th Highlanders of Canada parallels that of Victoria's own Canadian Scottish. The regiment was formed in 1891, proudly points to a record of service in two world wars.

The Toronto Highlanders are fortunate in having secured the service of a historian so dedicated to his subject as Kim Beattie. Although written mainly for men associated with the regiment the captain has presented his facts in an absorbing manner and the actions he writes are, of course, familiar to men of many other units.

UNIQUE

It is the first full-size history published of any unit in the First Canadian Division during the Second World War. The author is probably the only man who wrote successive histories of a regiment coveriing wars so far apart and in both of which he served.

His first book covered the history of the regiment from its birth in 1891 to First World War. It is now out of print and copies are in great demand by collectors. It was nautral that he should be commissioned to complete the history with "Dileas."

"Dileas" the records show as "A word used, misused and stolen by the men, from the Gaelic regimental motto 'Dileas go brath . . . Faithful forever'."

The volume could well be paralleled by a history of the Canadian Scottish of Victoria. Some time ago such a plan was afoot but apparently even with the attractive lures of assured publication and a subsidy, no author has appeared on the scene who combines the loyalty to his own regiment and literary talent of Kim Beattie.

STAMP CORNER

By REG NAIRNE

The high value stamps of Great Britain are now printed by De La Rue instead of Waterlow, who had the original contract. Usually, when there is a change of printer, it is possible to distinguish the work of the two firms, for there is almost certain to be some slight difference in shade, perforation, or paper. In this case, however, the new stamps seem to be identical with the originals.

As specialists know, the stamps issued to celebrate the Scout Jamboree held in Great Britain last year were printed in coils as well as in sheets. They are difficult to tell apart, for unlike Canadian coils, they are perforated on all four sides. Numbers issued were: 2½d, 112,800; 4d, 118,560; 1s. 3d, 103,920.

* * *

Ghana has been using up the remainder of the old Gold Coast postage dues (1d, 2d, 3d, 6d and 1s.) without any marking to distinguish the new status of the territory. Now, however, the stamps still on hand are being overprinted "Ghana" to bring them in line with the regular issues.

* * *

South West Africa has decided to drop the idea of using special stamps for official purposes. As soon as the remainder of the sets overprinted "Official" are exhausted, ordinary stamps will be used by the government offices.

On July 1, Norfolk Island brought out two new denominations—a 7d and an 8d. These were made provisionally by overprinting the 7½d and 8½d stamps.

Zanzibar has issued the 5, 10, 15, 30 and 50c on the new paper which shows the watermark in block capitals instead of script.

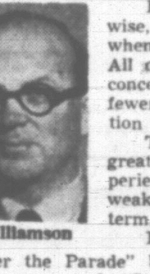
ART IN REVIEW — By MONCRIEFF WILLIAMSON

Incompetent Art 'Gropes' But Misses Essentials

Perhaps the most noticeable feature of the exhibition of Centennial Streets, on view at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria until July 27, is the number of artists who ought to have participated, yet failed to do so. It is an exhibition almost totally devoid of quality and of very little interest except for those sophisticates who enjoy the cult of the primitive.



Williamson

Primitive art, whether intentional or otherwise, has its charms for the spectator only when the artist's personal vision is original. All other primitive art, as far as painting is concerned, can be dubbed 'ignorant,' and the fewer such works which reach public exhibition the better.

This particular display would have been greatly helped if certain local and more experienced painters had buttressed the overall weakness of those who, for want of a better term, I must refer to as gropers.

It is true that the exhibition contains "After the Parade" by R. M. Ciccimarra, and "Street Pattern" by Herbert Siebner. There is a pleasant composition "Centennial Dance" by Laurence Williams, "Midnight Show" by D. Seelly Smith, has a sparkle of gaiety and bounce, and two paintings, both titled "Centennial Street," by Gertrude Snider, contain some extremely good color, especially the smaller of the two canvases.

As for the rest?

One cannot help feeling that the majority of exhibitors have labored in vain—if indeed they have labored at all. They seem to have missed the essentials, not only of pictorial composition but the theme itself has eluded them, which must be extremely disappointing to the organizers.

I am the last person to discourage people from painting pictures, but I would fail in my duty if I did not try to explain where some of these painters jump the tracks

In this exhibition the prevalent fearfulness is the abuse of color values. There is an overfond addiction for candy floss and strawberry ice cream.

Much as one might decry the hodge-podge, hocus-pocus of our centennial street decorations, which must surely confuse any artist who ventures into the streets without dark glasses, the fact remains that it is the duty of all painters to select.

He or she must endeavour to paint that which is selected, strictly in relation to the natural, atmospheric conditions.

A field is green. A sea is blue or grey. We know that. We also know that the field and sea comprise a variety of other colors imposed upon them by light. The same, of course, applies to streets, flagpoles and, let's face it—even balloons.

There is a tendency to crowd too much into too small an area. At least a dozen paintings might have been improved by the use of a larger canvas. In amateur art, nothing is gained from niggardliness. It takes years of experience before a painter has the mastery to work within a limited space.

Finally we come to that much abused figure — the bearded man in the Centennial streets. He has a humorous, human, romantic appearance which I have found wholly fascinating. Time and again, when confronted with one of these bearded gentlemen, I have retreated from the H-bomb age to the rough, courageous days of the pioneer.

How grateful I would have been if at least one of the exhibitors had tried to capture this evolutionary oddity and place him firmly on canvas, like a pinned butterfly.

But in all pictures where the bearded prospectors appear, the emphasis is on caricature. As the drawing is in every instance quite dreadful, the caricatures are unhumorous. The joke is on the artist.

The great natural forces that formed the gigantic Carlsbad Caverns of southern New Mexico began their work some 60 million years ago, according to geologists.

Odds Favor Roman's Bid for Vocal Fame

NEW YORK (NEA) — You just have to like Dick Roman when you meet him. This latest idol is one of those friendly young fellows with an honest face and a ready smile. Besides, he's about as frank about himself as you can get.

His ambition

"Well," he says, with that smile lighting up his face, "I guess all I want is to be the most popular male vocalist in the U.S."

Dick Roman

And there are those who think it's entirely possible he'll make it. He has a lot of things going for him — good looks, a good voice and that pleasant personality already noted.

He's a medium-sized, blue-eyed blond. And that's rather unusual, because he's Italian by descent.

"I'm Barese," he says. "You know, from Bari. Like Vic Damone."

But he's a New Yorker by birth, and grew up in the midst of "a non-professionally musical family." When he was a kid in school, some perceptive teacher noted some ham in him and suggested to his mother that he be given acting lessons. He was. And, at 10, he was in the Broadway company of "I Remember Mama," probably the only Barese ever to play a Scandinavian on Broadway.

National Record Report

By CHARLES J. SCHREIBER

After four weeks as the nation's top selling record, "Purple People Eater" finally loses its grip, and the Coasters' "Yakity Yak" slips in. "Yak" is the third novelty in succession to become the top seller.

The massive barrage fired this week by Perez Prado's "Patricia," Elvis Presley's "Hard Headed Woman," Bobby Darin's "Splish Splash," and the Kalin Twins' "When" really blasted the top six of last week, except for the first two.

The tightness of the race near the top almost overshadows the wildly enthusiastic reception being shown Ricky Nelson's latest, "Poor Little Fool." Undoubtedly we will find Ricky right up there in the thick of things next week.

TOMORROW'S TOP TUNES

Dean Martin has a delightful toe-tapping ballad to follow up "Return to Me," called "Angel Baby." Scored with a generous supply of choral voices and a lonely accordion, a clev, hollow clip-clop rhythm perks the tune right along. Gus Levene conducts in a nice danceable swing tempo. (Capitol).

HANS GRUBER CONDUCTS

Final Gardens Concert; Symphony Travels On

Sunday, our Victoria Symphony is making its debut in Port Alberni; we shall be repeating program played Thursday at Butchart Gardens, Charles Davis and all. The costs of this trip are shared by the Butchart Gardens and the B.C. and Port Alberni Centennial Committees. We are greatly looking forward to this, our first concert at Port Alberni, to be held in their beautiful and acoustically flattering high school auditorium.

Hans Gruber

We shall be back late Sunday evening, and on Monday rehearsals begin for the second and last Butchart Gardens concert scheduled for next Thursday. Our guest artist this time will be Grace Bumbry, the mezzo-soprano who, in addition to winning this year's Metropolitan auditions, has caused an unusual amount of stir among all those who have heard her; the great Lotte Lehmann regards her with the special pride a teacher reserves for her star-pupil.

She will sing, with orchestra, three famous arias written for her type of voice—"Adieu, Forets," from Jeanne d'Arc, by Tschaikowski; "My heart at thy sweet voice," from Samson and Deliah, and "O Don Fatale," from Verdi's Don Carlos, as well as a number of songs.

The orchestra will contribute the Prelude to Carmen, the Blue Danube Waltz, excerpts from Bizet's Arlesienne Suite, and Beethoven's 5th symphony. Probably also another piece which we haven't chosen as yet.

First of a series of evening entertainments arranged for Victoria College Summer Session, will take place Wednesday at 8 at Oak Bay Junior High School. It will feature Teresita Ostra, lovely interpreter of Spanish, South American and Mexican dances. She will be accompanied by her concert pianist brother, Emilio Osta, who will also play solos by Albeniz, Lecuona, Sarasate and Villa-Lobos. Concerts are open to the general public as well as students.

'World of Wonderful Dark' To Be Colorful Spectacular

Considerable excitement has been aroused among those privileged to see what is going on, by the set designs for Lister Sinclair's play "The World of the Wonderful Dark," which will come to the Royal Theatre August 1 and 2.

Theme of the play, written by Sinclair for the Vancouver International Festival, deals with love and the destroying effects of ruthless ambition. Action is set on the Pacific Coast before arrival of the white man.

Universality of interest comes through the fact that the basic situation is typical of any group anywhere in the world. B.C. locale of the play involves the fascinating and intricate culture of Pacific Coast Indians.

Designer Clifford Robinson has had to take all these elements into consideration in producing his detailed drawings of stage set and the costumes to be worn by a cast of 45 actors and actresses.

One characteristic of the Coast Indian people was the totem symbols of each tribe. In "The World of the Wonderful Dark," the Wolf tribe pits itself against the Raven tribe.

Lister Sinclair specified spectacle and rich costumes in his play and Robinson has interpreted these directions with a lavish hand. "World of the Wonderful Dark" will have much to offer to the eye.

It is being sponsored in its two performances in Victoria by the South Vancouver Island Drama Festival Committee.

(BB PLUS A) "THE VIKINGS" (Odeon): Thanks to the magnificent color photography by Jack Cardiff and some wondrous settings, United Artists' adaptation of Edison Marshall's novel "The Vikings" is saved from becoming just another Norse opera.

Spiced with such "best-selling" ingredients as rape and ructions the picture is sometimes a blood-bath. But it is also a mighty pageant that, through lust and battle, seems to have caught the spirit of these war-like men who roamed the uncharted seas of the world in their longboats a thousand years ago conquering nations many times their own size, men who knew no fear if they could but die a "Vikings' death," sword in hand and thus ensure their entry into Valhalla, the warrior's heaven. Indeed it was this religion of the Vikings that made them almost unbeatable in battle and in daring seamanship.

It is said that "The Vikings" cost producer-star Kirk Douglas something in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. But such is its box office success that it is expected that he will not only recoup this but make a profit in the United States area alone.

* * *

THE PLOT, IN BRIEF; On a raid into England Viking chieftain Ragnar (Ernest Borgnine) assaults the British Queen Enid (Maxine Audley) and murders her husband. Later, Enid discovers she is with child and the baby is sent away in secrecy to protect him from the new king, the ruthless Aella (Frank Thring.) Twenty years pass. Ragnar still rules the Viking world with his pleasure-loving young son Einar (Kirk Douglas) by his side. But Einar falls afoul of a young slave whom he abuses, Eric (Tony Curtis), and when, later, the Vikings abduct Welsh Princess Morgana (Janet Leigh) the hatred between them grows as both fight for her love.

But the story is almost an afterthought. The true merit accruing from "The Vikings" is historical, the spectacle of the tall, bearded men rowing the longboats and their customs at home and abroad.

Some of the battle scenes are especially spectacular, such as the Vikings' methods of storming a castle or taking a village. The photography, as has been stated earlier, is magnificient. The boats racing through the fog, and the funeral pyre at sea could be mentioned as merely two examples of the cameramen's art.

In brief. If you are interested in a spectacle rather than a down-to-earth story this should fill the bill.

THE SOUNDING BOARD

What's Wrong Here? It's Purple People

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

There's no doubt about it.

Victoria has to take a back seat to Vancouver in the active, non-contemplative aspects of life.

Some of the reasons are beyond our power to alter—many are not.

All we need is a little less wishful thinking and a good deal more forceful acting.

At the moment, via the "letters to editor" columns of the Times, there is a slight civil war going on. It has all come about because an enemy from without has dared to attack the fond illusion of "Victoria the Perfect," laying about him with double-edged words.

Audrey

What amazes me is that so few people partaking of the fray can see in focus. It's all er nothin'. Victoria is either a perfumed paradise or a stinking hole.

The truth, of course, is that it's all in the mind of the beholder. Victoria is just a beautiful hump of rocks and vegetation surrounded by sea and enveloped in a benign climate where man has put up a few buildings and made certain arrangements pleasing to some, displeasing to others.

IT'S THE PEOPLE

It differs only from most other places in that all are not so fortunately situated geographically.

All places have people; people come in various mental grades and styles. A major congregation of some particular variety in one area gives that place its character.

If you don't happen to fit in with that character you won't like the place. It's as simple as that.

Our character in Victoria is such that until our major congregation changes form we will continue to lag behind Vancouver and other Canadian cities nearer our own size—in every active sense.

Something like a million people will flood into Vancouver during the International Festival of Arts this month.

Hundreds of Victorians would turn purple at the thought of such a mass descent on our sleepy city. But think—without drooling if you can—of the dollars they are going to spend among the city's merchants, you people up there in the tourist trade office. Think of the prestige Vancouver is gaining, the limelight she is bathing herself in and the consequent shade she is casting over Victoria.

Why even her centennial street decorations—sour grapes to the contrary—are eye-catching, positive, properly co-ordinated and tasteful in contrast to the scrappy, ugly and disorganized effort in the capital city.

We had the Butchart Gardens symphony concerts as a starting point—a signpost pointing out the way. So mistake not; it could have happened here.

Only we lacked the mental capacity.

A pair of debuts are under way at Paramount where James Cagney is trying his hand at directing "Short Cut to Hell," which is being produced by his friend, former press agent A. C. Lyles. Cagney is director only because Lyles asked him to try it. Lyles presumably will try more producing if his first effort with this film is successful.

Fingers Like 'Fringe in Wind' As Cliburn Cuts First Record

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)—About 50 New York teenagers can say they were here the day Van Cliburn made his first American recording.

Ordinarily, concert artists prefer to work without an audience while making records. But the conquering hero of music asked RCA-Victor to have some people there while he cut his first one. He said he thought he played better with an audience.

And so 50 youngsters from New York's High School of Music and Art, plus a scattering of other guests, jockeyed for the best vantage points in the gallery of the ornate Manhattan Centre ballroom. They clustered in the front rows, their chins jammed on the railing, their eyes focused on the lanky Texan.

The ballroom, with its rococo ceiling and pink-glass chandeliers and inlaid murals of worldwide dancing scenes, is one of the favored recording studios in New York. It is big and it is quiet. And, for this session, the echoes were deadened with huge baffles surrounding the polished grand piano and great colored cloths draped over the balcony railing at strategic spots.

HE WAS LATE

Cliburn was due at 11. The orchestra — the Symphony of the Air—arrived at 10 for an hour of rehearsal and balancing. Kiril Kondrashin, the Russian who conducted for Cliburn when he won the Tchaikovsky prize in Moscow, came in, carrying his baton. He wore a green suit.

He shook hands with one or two of the musicians, took off his coat, placed his wrist watch on the music stand and got down to business. He knew exactly what he wanted, giving his instructions in a few key English and Italian words, some Russian (translated immediately by a cellist) and mostly in the universal language of conductors—he sang, "Like so — da-da-da-dee. Now, please" — that needs no translation.

At 11.25—Cliburn has a reputation for chronic lateness—the man of the hour arrived. Cliburn waved gayly to the orchestra, took off his jacket, rippled across the keyboard for a few seconds and nodded his readiness to begin.

Kondrashin gave the downbeat that set the orchestra off on the first powerful measures of Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1. And Cliburn played. After perhaps three minutes, the voice from the booth cut in, saying, "All right, thank you," indicating the mechanics were all set.

Cliburn nodded. So did Kondrashin.

"All right, then. Please be quiet in the gallery. This is J39942, Take One."

A red light on a stick next to Kondrashin went on. He poised his baton. Cliburn, looking like an animated scarecrow, rested his head on his hand. The downbeat. The orchestra began, this time for keeps.

Cliburn's long fingers went to work. Sometimes they're curved and rigid, like an eagle's talons, as they pound out the music. Sometimes they're soft and tender, like a mother caressing a baby, as they make the gentle notes sing. And sometimes they're like a fringe in the wind, the 10 fingers flashing over the keyboard as though racing each other, each one seemingly operated by an independent agency.

In the orchestral portions, when the piano is silent, Cliburn sometimes leaned forward and rested his head on the piano. Sometimes he bent backwards, as though almost falling asleep—and, indeed, once he yawned. His long body curled into innumerable positions when he wasn't called on to play.

ROUGH SPOTS

But when the moment came for him to go to work, he was there. Often he lifted his head high, his eyes closed, and seemed transported. Sometimes, he shook his head, as though in anger at himself for something he'd done. Frequently he leaned forward, close over the keys, and seemed to be daring them to disobey.

It was over. The verdict was it was rough in spots, but they'd fix that with some spot replays and splicing.

Cliburn's mother, who'd held a whispered conference with him just before the concerto began, smiled at him. Kondrashin, who'd watched over him like a mother hen during the performance, nodding, smiling, making little encouraging gestures, shook his hand.

Van Cliburn had made his first American record. And the kids in the balcony were still glued to their seats, as if under a spell.

NEW SARDI'S

The famous Sardi's Restaurant in the theatre district, which long has played an important role in Broadway stage affairs, has spawned a new place far across town on the East Side. Naturally it is known as Sardi's East. At 123 East 54th Street.

The new place has its own personality and is in no way a replica of the parent spot directed by Vincent Sardi Jr. However, it does have a Theatre Room, with murals by Al Hirschfeld, foremost caricaturist of things theatrical.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Summer Lull Hits Economy Across U.S.

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. economy settled down into a summer lull this week. But while most lines loafed along in a mid-July torpor, signs that could mean a fall upturn flickered on the business horizon.

Commerce secretary Sinclair Weeks ticked off some of these favorable indicators in his first press conference since the recession began. They included:

Industrial production on the upbeat . . .

Weeks volunteered this hopeful forecast: There won't be much change in the economy in the summer vacation months, but "a definite upswing seems in the cards for fall."

SHARES OPTIMISM

Wall Street seemed to share this optimism. Halted momentarily by a cut in the Ford dividend, the stock market came back strong and finished with the averages at a high for the year.

Defence contracts made news again this week. Boeing Airplane Company received contracts totalling more than $320,500,000 for jet bombers and parts; Douglas Aircraft got a $12,613,800 award for rockets for jet fighter planes.

New car sales have picked up a bit in recent weeks but not as much as dealers would like. Autos are still the softest spot in the consumer spending picture.

The latest government statistics tell the story: Total retail spending last month came within one per cent of matching June, 1957, but auto sales were down 30 per cent.

WEATHERVANE

Many observers say that what happens to business as a whole next fall will depend heavily on the auto industry's 1959 models. If new 1959 cars go over, business will improve with a bang in the steel, coal, nickel, aluminum, copper, glass, rubber and textile industries, to name a few. More jobs and bigger payrolls will channel more cash into retail stores.

Steel makers, pondering the possibility of a price increase next month, are keeping their fingers crossed; auto manufacturers and dealers are biting their nails. The new cars that will appear in dealers' showrooms in a couple of months were designed two years ago. They're bigger and loaded with more chrome than this year's models. Has the public's aste undergone a change? Detroit and Pittsburgh wish they knew.

Cinderella Stock's Upsurge Highlight of Week's Trading

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Speculators enjoyed their biggest runs since the spring of 1957 and Canadian stock exchanges broke all existing single-day volume records during the week.

The week's volume at Toronto of 50,792,000 shares was the heaviest week since the five-day period ending April 9, 1956, when 62,082,000 shares traded while the uranium boom was at its peak.

New Hosco, the cinderella stock that bounced from 17 cents two weeks ago to $7.25 on Monday, supplied the spark and Quebec's Mattagami Lake district was the torch for speculators.

New Hoscoe closed the week at $4.50 for a gain of $1.35. It lost $1.35 Friday after the company reported its second drill hole averaged 2.66 per cent over 142 feet. The first hole averaged 4.01 per cent over 77 feet.

With the spurt of New Hosco, almost every stock that was within walking distance of its property moved ahead for good gains before dropping back.

SPECULATIVE URGE

The urge to speculate spread to other properties and Consolidated Halliwell, another copper stock, bounced ahead for a smart gain before dropping back.

But while volumes soared, the stock market generally was not keeping pace with the speculatives. At Toronto industrials were the only section to show an index advance and their's was a slim 1½ points. Golds weer off a few decimal points but base metalsand western oils each were down more than a point.

Among industrials, International ePte was the big winner, adding $13.50 to $59.25. The stock moved up $10 Friday on word that Standard Oil, New Jersey, had obtained slightly less than 97 per cent of the company's outstanding stock. Standard offered International shareholders nine shares of its stock for 10 International.

Federal Grtin went up $5 to $39 following a rumor the company was planning a tax-free distribution to shareholders.

Among the losers were Ford stocks. The parent United States company announced Wednesday a 20-cent cut in dividend payments.

International Nickel was a $2.25 loser tt $73.50 as the company announced its Sudbury plant would operate on a four-day week effective July 14.

Golds and western oils had few major changes.

Index changes at Toronto: Industrials up 1.50 to 453.38; golds off .09 to 82.65; base meetals off 1.75 to 155.38; western oils off 1.31 to 135.45.

Index changes at Montreal: Banks up .59 to 52.13; utilities off 1.2 to 139.2; industrials up .7 to 267.2; combined unchanged at 224.5; papers new up 1.8 to 377.5; papers old up 11.05 to 1.161.14; golds off 2.47 to 70.93.

Rail Probe Report Due Next Week

MONTREAL (CP) — Two sets of recommendations aimed at solving the big contract dispute between Canada's major railways and their 130,000 non-operating employees are expected to be delivered to Labor Minister Starr next week, it was learned here Friday.

A three-man conciliation board that began studying the wage arguments last March 3 is approaching the end of private talks without achieving a unanimous report.

The dispute involves wage demands worth $100,000,000 served last November on the CNR, CPR and four smaller railways by 15 unions bargaining jointly for such railway workers as freight handlers, clerks, shop craftsmen and maintenance men.

In money and workers, it is Canada's largest single labor scrap. It is also regarded as "rule of thumb" guide to wage settlements for most other railway workers.

DRAFT REPORTS

The three conciliators are in the final stages of drafting their reports. But observers say the most expected from their last-minute consultations is a majority report plus a separate minority finding.

The railways argue that no wage increase is justified at present and asks for a straight one-year extension of the present contract which was to have expired last Dec. 31.

The unions, headed by Frank Hall of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC), seek a wage increase that works out to about 35 cents an hour plus other benefits. They say they will accept a two-stage wage increase in a two-year contract.

The dispute could produce another nation-wide strike that would tie up both railways. The non-ops halted rail transportation for nine days in 1950 over a similar scrap.

Wholesale Price Index Up in May

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's general wholesale price index rose slightly in May due to higher prices for animal products, the bureau of statistics has announced.

The index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, advanced to 228.1 from 227.9 in April. The index stood at 228 in May of last year.

The animal products subindex rose to 259 from 253.1 in April as a result of higher prices for livestock, meats, poultry and leather.

This subindex registered its sixth consecutive monthly rise. It has increased 13 per cent since last November.

'Killer' Tax TV Get Blame For Movie Crisis

LONDON (Reuters) — The British movie industry is in the throes of a crisis caused by television and taxes.

Attendance at movie theatres last year continued to fall, says J. Arthur Rank, "with the widening range of television as a powerful competitor."

The slump in revenue ranged up to 25 per cent. The Rank Organization paid £10,275,000 ($28,770,000) in entertainment tax alone—36 per cent of its box office gross—and decided to close down 24 of its 500 theatres.

Over the country as a whole, 350 movie theatres have closed during the last 18 months, and more are doomed.

BLAMES GOVERNMENT

Tom O'Brien, general secretary of the National Association of Theatrical and Cine Employers blames the government for taking one-third of the box office money in the form of entertainment tax.

With the budget due in April, the chancellor of the exchequer is being pressed to lift the "killer" tax on movie theatres as he already has done on legitimate theatres and sports events.

Groucho On Fridays This Autumn

By FRED DANZIG

NEW YORK (UPI)—NBC-TV is reported to have a Friday night spot selected for Groucho Marx's "You Bet Your Life" in the fall. His old Thursday night slot will be taken over by a new Ed Wynn situation comedy . . . Lindsay Crosby sings on the Steve Lawrence-Eydie Gorme show on NBC-TV Sunday, July 20.

Buddy Hackett, Jackie Gleason's new second banana for the upcoming fall series on CBS-TV, says his Chinese house boy characterization will be used in the Reggie Van Gleason III sketches.

The first national TV exposure for the new "Jazz-and-Poetry" fad will come on July 28, when "Stars of Jazz" presents poet Kenneth Patchen reading in front of Allyn Ferguson's chamber jazz sextet on ABC-TV . . . one of the final "Studio One" plays may star Gertrude (Molly Goldberg) Berg in late September.

Johnny Carson's daily ABC-TV quiz, "Do You Trust Your Wife?" becomes "Who (sic) Do You Trust?" starting Monday. Carson says the show will now include non-married people . . .

"Omnibus" returns to NBC-TV this fall for 15 afternoon programs on alternate Sundays. In addition to these one-hour presentations, the "Omnibus" team, headed by Robert Saudek, will present special 90-minute programs in prime evening time every month or so. Saudek promises: "No quizzes" . . . Desi Arnaz of Desilu Productions is reported to have talked to Bob Crosby about a family-type situation comedy series.

"The Mike Wallace Interview" will close its current "Survival and Freedom" series on ABC-TV Sunday, July 20, with Dr. Robert Hutchins as the guest. Hutchins is president of the fund for the Republic, which presents the series . . . Joseph Conrad's novel, "Victory," appears to be a definite CBS-TV presentation for next season. Either 'Playhouse 90" or the "DuPont Show of the Month" will do it.

'Live' Cameras Cover Princess Margaret Monday and Tuesday

Yvon Durell Defends Title Wednesday; 'The Little Lame Prince' Tuesday

Except for the CBC's live coverage of Princess Margaret's visit here it appears to be a rather dull TV week in store.

However, at 10.30 Monday morning, Canada will use its new micro-wave network to pick up the official welcome for the Princess at the Legislative Buildings, Channels 6 and 2.

On Tuesday the same two channels will focus on her as she reviews the fleet off Royal Roads, starting at 2.30 in the afternoon.

On Tuesday night at 10.30, Channels 6 and 2 will carry filmed highlights of the Royal visit and again on Thursday night at 11.30.

Other programs of interest include the showing of Shirley Temple's Storybook's "The Little Lame Prince" on Channel 4 Tuesday night at 8. This lasts for an hour.

Fight fans should note that Canada's Yvon Durelle squares off against Africa's Mike Holt on Channels 6, 2 and 5 Wednesday night at 7, in a 12-round defence of his British Empire light-heavyweight title at Montreal. Durelle is ranked third in the world, Holt No. 5.

Otherwise much of the success of the week depends upon such regulars as Kraft Mystery Theatre and Steel Hour, both Wednesday night plays which, unfortunately, will begin at the hour of 9, Kraft on Channel 4 and Steel Hour on Channels 7 and 12.

Another interesting show is The Verdict is Yours, an hour-long courtroom drama that starts at 7.30 Thursday night, Channel 7. It should be noted also that popular singer-actor Doris Day is scheduled to be a guest on I've Got a Secret at 8.30 Wednesday night, Channels 7 and 12.

Vapor Barrier Stops Wall Condensation

There are many attractive ways of dressing up the inside walls of your home using fir plywood.

Probably the basic reason so many do-it-yourselfers turn to plywood is because the large four by eight foot sheets can be secured in place using only a hammer and nails. There is no fuss or bother with plaster or other materials which require the services of skilled workmen.

There is one problem, however, which the wise home carpenter must take into consideration—that of condensation. This is a problem no matter what type of wall finish is used.

When applying paneling (or any other material, for that matter) to the inside or "warm" side of an outside wall, an effective vapor seal must be first attached to the framing.

Purpose of this seal is to prevent moisture condensation within the wall which may cause rot in the insulation or structure. Condensation occurs in winter when warm, moist interior air moves through the wall and condenses on the inside of the cold exterior surface of the wall.

Vapor barriers stop warm air containing moisture from reaching the cold outside wall. Most common form of barrier is a variety of paper which can be obtained in rolls from your building supply dealer.

With the barrier paper tacked to the studs on the inside of the wall, it's an easy matter to get on with the job of nailing on the fir plywood panels.

If it is desired to stain the walls or finish them clear or "natural," use finishing nails to secure the plywood panels to the studs. Set them slightly below the surface with a nail punch, being careful not to damage the surface of the wood with the face of the hammer.

Then proceed to finish the panels in the desired manner, filling the nail holes last with a mixture of putty tinted to match the final finish.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Try This High Wire Stunt For Body-Building Tomatoes

By JACK BEASTALL

A simple, but effective, support for bush tomato plants is something I am still seeking. The first year no support was used, and while an ample quantity of good fruit was produced, maybe 30 per cent were blemished through contact with the soil.

Jack

The obvious remedy was a layer of dried grass or straw upon which the fruits could rest or mats of building paper around each plant. Obvious remedies usually have some objectionable features, and these became apparent during the second year.

Both the dried grass and the paper mats retarded the plants in comparison with those not treated. The first fruits were two weeks later and less fruits were produced on each plant during the season.

Since the features of the bush varieties are early ripening and heavy cropping, a cover which lowers the soil temperature defeats the purposes for which they are grown.

A more serious effect from covering the soil was the perfect haven provided for earwigs, sow bugs, slugs and beetles of every description. Undisturbed by cultivation they congregated by the thousands and sallied forth at night to wreak havoc on adjoining plantings.

PRUNINGS SCARCE

The winter kill of 1950 provided a large quantity of twiggy prunings from shrubs and trees. These twigs were placed upright around each tomato plant and made ideal supports for the fruiting branches.

To date, twigs have filled the requirements of simplicity and effective support, but a sufficient quantity is not always on hand, nor is it forthcoming from the average city garden.

Unless twigs are obtainable in the immediate vicinity considerable time can be wasted locating suitable material (free from disease and the eggs of unwanted pests) on a piece of bushland where "trespassing and pilfering" are legal.

METAL POSTS

My source of supply was vacant lots which are now flourishing gardens. No longer having bush at the fenceline, thoughts have turned to other means of support.

This season I am trying an overhead wire about 24 to 30 inches above soil level, attached to a metal post at each end of the row.

Bed irons, angle iron, iron rods or old water pipe can be used for posts. The posts are driven at an angle and then pulled together by the wire to provide enough tension to keep it fairly taut.

As the fruit trusses develop they are being hung from the wire by plastic plant ties, and the longer branches are supported in the same manner.

Positioning the ties so that the weight of fruit does not bend or break the trusses will need a little experimentation. Otherwise, the idea seems "simple and effective."

Space-Saving Ideas End Closet Shortage

By MR. FIX

No matter how many closets a builder includes in a home, the average family will soon have them stuffed to the doors.

Chances are, the fault is largely your own if your closet situation is out of hand. A closet needs more than the rod and single shelf that is all the builder usually provides. And most handy men can provide the extra gadgets and gimmicks that make for greater storage ability.

Before you make any changes, be certain that you're making good use of the space you have.

Divide your stored items into three groups: things you use every day, those you use occasionally, and the things you hardly ever unpack.

Items in the first group go in the most accessible space, right in front of the door and on the lower shelves. The rest of the items you place in less accessible areas, most-used items nearest to hand.

Are you wasting space? Chances are, the area of your closet could hold more than it does. An inexpensive shoe rack of the wire variety will take up but a small amount of space. It does away with an unsightly clutter that always seems to just spread out all over the place. You can also hang shoe bags on an inside closet wall, for those shoes you hardly ever wear.

A low rod for the use of the children will take up the space between the bottom of your suits and the floor. If the single rod in your closet isn't enough, use multiple rods mounted crosswise. If the rod you have seems too weak to handle more clothes, replace it with a stronger one.

How about some short shelves at each end of the closet and a couple of longer ones running across the closet above the main shelf? They're ideal for storing seasonal items.

Is the closet door going to waste. A single coat hook scarcely uses the space efficiently. Mount a wire hat rack at the top of the door.

A foldaway tie rack will make tie selecting a snap, and it won't take up much space. Skirt and trouser hangers are other aids that can be fastened to a door.

A bin-type shelf, one with a front and sides a few inches deep, will take care of some of the small items you want to keep handy. Some spring-type clips, the kind you use for tools and brooms, will take care of your umbrellas in a hall closet.

Installation of these accessories isn't difficult. A screwdriver and drill are all the tools you'll need.

The important thing to do is use the space you have wisely.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Water dahlias regularly, and remove fading blooms promptly. A feeding of a balanced fertilizer such as 6-8-6 will be beneficial at this time.

Chrysanthemums and other growing plants in pots or planters will need daily watering. Don't neglect hanging baskets at the same time.

Gather bush beans daily while pods are young; this will keep plants in production over a longer period.

Give a little fertilizer to peas, beans which are now bearing. Water in well.

Water all shrubs, especially the broad-leaved evergreen kinds, so that the soil around them never dries out.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

BY JACK BEASTALL

Q. What roses are recommended for planting in this district? N. K. M., James Bay.

A? A list would not do justice to the types and varieties which are available and can be grown locally. We suggest visiting rose growers, nurseries, and the rose gardens at Beacon Hill Park and Windsor Park, where color and habit may be compared, and the names obtained of those you find most pleasing.

Q. Can sweet peppers be grown here? S. V., Elk Lake.

A. Early varieties, such as King of the North and California Wonder, are quite successful here. Plants require full sun and shelter from cooling winds, a deep coldframe without covers being ideal if the garden is exposed. Plants may be purchased or grown from seed sown indoors about the end of March.

Young plants can be framed in late May or planted in the open garden under cloches or plant protectors until nights become warm.

OOPS, SLIPS DON'T COUNT

Slipping on canvas, Mickey Crawford drops to one knee in welterweight battle against free-swinging Gaspar Ortega at Madison Square Garden Friday night. Vote of two judges gave Ortega split decision in 10-rounder. Referee favored Crawford, who had lost only two of previous 24 professional fights. (AP Wirephoto.)

THE SCOREBOARD BY Harry Grayson

NEW YORK (NEA)—Delvin Miller is a short, stocky man of 45, who has, at a quick estimate, control of $3,000,000 worth of harness racing investments.

For a drive on a horse which finished eighth at Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island he was set down for 15 days by judges who noted his effort "was inconsistent with an attempt to win."

This is important because it suggests that Del Miller—the biggest national name in the standardbred business—dumped the race. Miller was driving Meadow Lands, winner of the rich Messenger Stake in 1956. The suspension knocked him out of driving a co-favorite, Thorpe Hanover, in this year's Messenger.

Miller refused a hearing from the New York Harness Racing Commission a day before the race because he would be unable to have witnesses for his side. They were involved in a $15,000 race at Goshen, N.Y.

* * *

The Miller case is even more important to both types of racing because it shows too graphically what can happen when politicians get their hands on the governing of the sport.

This goes in boxing, too, in view of District Attorney Frank S. Hogan's disclosures in New York.

* * *

New York is the only state in the country where harness racing judges are not licensed by the United States Trotting Association. In New York, they are appointed by George T. Monaghan, commissioner, who until 1953 served in the same capacity with the New York City police.

The three judges who handed down the Miller ruling—one that Lawrence B. Sheppard, former president of the USTA, calls an "outrage that should be treated with profanity"—have this for a background:

A comparative novice who has been on the scene for only a short time. The top state steward qualified himself for the job by being a close friend of Monaghan's while on the police force.

A former master of the hounds at exclusive Long Island hunts meets who, as Sheppard, proprietor of the famous Hanover Shoe Farms, rasps, "was a fair judge when we licensed him, but who needed good backing."

* * *

Normally, it is not the policy here to buck constituted authority. But when somebody of the Del Miller calibre is set down by political appointees it becomes important.

* * *

"I drove the horse the best I could, but it wasn't what you would call a smart ride," Miller says. "I was parked on the outside, couldn't make it, so I went back to eighth. Finished that way, too.

"Poor judgment, maybe. But they say I was dishonest. Now how are you going to change that? What about my name?"

"The three judges who suspended Miller," Sheppard, the biggest breeder of gaited horses snaps, "couldn't drive a cat out of a kitchen. I know them. And I know the horse involved, Meadow Lands. That's a funny horse. You get him half mad and he won't do anything. It's a cinch the judges don't know much about him.

"As for Miller's integrity, I closed a $500,000 deal with the man on the telephone. I had his word. Now three judges appointed by a former police commissioner tell me he was not trying to win."

* * *

Stanley Dancer, the driver, perhaps put it best. "The officials call in Delvin and he explains the race. Then they don't believe him. You get a man like Delvin and you don't believe him, who are you going to believe?"

* * *

There was a muddy, rain-sopped night at Roosevelt Raceway when we watched Billy Haughton's horse pace the last half mile of a trotting race and instead of being disqualified he was given money for his fifth place finish.

They showed further ignorance by putting the worst rap you can hang on a man on Del Miller, the foremost breeder-trainer-driver.

It is like this in New York.

Ike Popular Fella In His New Role

Bullet Bob Back On Right Target As Yankees Win

By UP International

They like Ike in Boston. Small wonder they do when you take a look at Ike Delock's perfect 8-0 record for the Red Sox this season, plus his nifty 1.80 earned-run average.

Delock, a one-time reliever turned starter, stacks up as the best thing that has come out of the Boston bullpen since Ellis Kinder. Manager Mike Higgins gave the stocky fastballer his first start of the season, June 26, and it has turned out to be a master move.

Mike has won four starts in a row since then, his latest one being an eight-hit 6-1 victory over Chicago White Sox Friday.

A fellow who could easily run on the same ticket with him in Boston is Jackie Jensen, who drove in four of the runs against the White Sox with his 26th homer and a single. Jensen now has 76 RBI's and his home run total equals his highest output for any one season since he broke into the majors eight years ago. Dick Gernert also homered off loser Jim Wilson.

ON BEAM AGAIN

Bob Turley, treated roughly in the all-star game, bounced back to register his 13th victory when he pitched the Yankees to an 11-3 triumph over the Indians.

Yankees made it easy for Turley by rapping Ray Narleski and two relievers for 14 hits, including Mickey Mantle's 22nd home run of the season.

Ed Fitzgerald's single with two out in the ninth climaxed a two-run rally that gave the Senators a 6-5 win over the Tigers. Dick Hyde, Washington's submarine-ball reliever, picked up his fifth victory after Detroit blew a 5-1 lead.

TEN STRIKEOUTS

Sam (Toothpick) Jones struck out 10 batters as the Cardinals cooled off the Phillies with a 6-2 victory. The Cards backed up Jones with a 13-hit attack, including a third inning homer by Wally Moon that broke a 1-1 tie, and two triples and a double by Ken Boyer. Jones increased his league-leading strike out total to 108.

Milwaukee Braves got a lecture from manager Fred Haney about too much partying and then went out and defeated Los Angeles Dodgers, 7-4, to protect their 1½-game lead in the National League.

Dodger starter Don Drysdale, who hit a homer in his own cause, had a 4-1 lead until the sixth when the Braves put runners on first and second. Frank Torre then hit a ball down the right-field line that a spectator reached out and touched near the bullpen. Originally, the umpires ruled it a ground rule double, permitting one runner to score. Then they changed their minds and allowed two runners to come in.

BUZZY BARGES IN

An argument raged for 10 minutes during which Dodger general manager Buzzy Bavasi came out on the field to argue with the men in blue. When play was resumed, Johnny Logan singled home the tying run and the Braves went on to win with three runs off reliever Johnny Klippstein.

Orlando Cepeda's three-run homer in the 12th inning off Hal Jeffcoat wrapped up a 7-4 win for the San Francisco Giants over Cincinnati.

Dick Stuart, just up from the minors, clouted a grand-slam homer in Pittsburgh's 7-2 decision over Chicago.

It was only Stuart's second appearance since being brought up from Salt Lake City of the Pacific Coast League earlier this week. In his first appearance on Thursday, he hit a three-run homer against the Cubs. His wallop Friday came off Moe Drabowsky in a five-run fifth inning that paved the way for Ronnie Kline's eighth victory

BALDING IN CONTENTION

Burke's Running In Old-Time Form

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI)—Driving and putting in his old-time style, Jackie Burke Jr. is setting a hot pace in the Insurance City Open golf tournament.

The Texas-born pro from Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., turned in his second straight sub-par round Friday to reach the halfway mark of the 72-hole tournament with a 130 total and a four-stroke lead over his nearest rivals.

Burke, who had tied Charles Sifford of Philadelphia for the first round lead with an eight-under-par 63, turned in a 67 in his second trip around the Wethersfield Country Club course. Sifford couldn't keep up with the curly-haired Irishman, settling for a 73 and a 136 aggregate.

Tied for second place at 134 were large George Bayer, Masters champion Arnold Palmer, and Dow Finsterwald. The latter picked up the most ground among the contenders in the second round by carding a 66. Palmer had a 68 and Bayer posted a 69.

BALDING FIFTH

Al Balding of Toronto was all alone in fifth place with a 135, while Paul Harney, Gordon Jones, Gene Littler and Bill Casper were bracketed with Sifford at 136.

Burke, fully recovered from a recent operation on his right hand, got off to a good start in the second round by recording three birdies on the first four holes. He made the turn in 33 and then added two more birdies on the back nine, returning home in 34.

The field was slashed to 70 pros and 10 amateurs for the last two days of action. The chief casualty was Julius Boros, who had a 146.

Jerry Magee of Toronto had a 71 for a 145 on the first two days, highest score to qualify for the last two days of play.

Pride of the Mounties Gunning for Big Sweep

The Nanaimo RCMP corporal, who will represent Canada at the world championship shoot in Moscow, continued his march to a sweep of aggregate titles in B.C.'s biggest-ever week of handgun shooting.

The current Canadian champion, who won the Island title last Sunday and took aggregate honors in the Victoria City Police championships Tuesday and Wednesday, captured the international grand aggregate on the opening day of the British Columbia Rifle Association pistol championships at the Thetis Lake range Friday.

FIRST TIME

Zavitz, a former Olympic competitor, took the aggregate in Friday's Olympic course matches with a score of 535 of a possible 600.

Introduced into the BCRA shoot for the first time this year, the Olympic course matches will be used at the world meet.

Second to Zavitz in the aggregate race was Ed Norman of Vancouver with 516. Bill Beatty and R. B. Coll, both of Vancouver City Police team, were third and fourth, with 505 and 500, respectively.

The three leading shots in the meet, which continued today and winds up Sunday, will compete in the Canadian meet at Ottawa in August.

Individual metric slow fire—1, J. Orewiler, Seattle Police, 282x300; 2, Franie Morse, Capital City Gun Club, 257; 3, J. Klues, U.S. Army, 256; 4, Lt. H. Schultheis, Seattle Police, 252; 5, T. A. Cocking, Vancouver Police, 251; 6, Jim Zavitz, Nanaimo RCMP, 248.

Individual silhouette rapid fire—1, Jim Zavitz, Nanaimo RCMP, 287x300; 2, Bill Beatty, Vancouver, 279; 3, R. B. Coll, Vancouver City Police, 278; 4, Ed Norman, Capilano Gun Club, 276; 5, W. T. Ashley, U.S. Army, 267.

Then What's Heavy?

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Argonauts Wednesday released import guards Ralph Antone and Bill Usinger from Colgate University, both considered too light for Big Four competition. Antone weighed 200 and Usinger 195.

GIANTS SHADED

Tight Fit Didn't Suit Vancouver

By The Associated Press

The Pacific Coast League came up last night with what, for it, is a rarity, four games all decided by only one run. Two of the contests went into extra frames.

League-leading San Diego Padres went 10 innings in belting the Vancouver Mounties 5-4. The Spokane Indians nipped the second-place Phoenix Giants 3-2 and in other games, Seattle Rainiers shaded Sacramento's Solons 1-0 and Portland Beavers tacked a 2-1, 11-inning defeat on Salt Lake City.

Vancouver and San Diego went into the 10th tied 4-4. The Mounties failed to score in their half of the 10th but San Diego got the one run needed to win in their half of the 10th on Earl Averill's leadoff homer over the left field barrier.

Dick Brodowski, the third of three San Diego pitchers, was credited with the victory. Erv Palica, No. 4 on the four-man Vancouver pitching list, was saddled with the loss, his fifth in 15 decisions.

The Indians called on Dick (Great) Scott for the third time in four games to save a game for them and the sharp, young reliever came through in brilliant fashion to give starter Connie Grob the victory.

At San Diego, Leslie O'Connor, president of the league, said a proposal to split the PCL season tomorrow, starting a new half Tuesday and adding a week to the schedule had been turned down.

O'Connor also said he had disallowed protests entered by Salt Lake City and Vancouver involving games with the Padres. The Bees had protested a July 3 game in San Diego and the Mounties a July 8 game, also in San Diego.

PARTY-GOING BRAVES GET FIRST SERMON

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Milwaukee baseball manager Fred Haney, prompted by a wild party attended by four of his stars, assembled his world champion Braves Friday for a warning about the perils of Hollywood.

"There are a lot of people on the prowl, particularly girls. They are looking for publicity and will do anything to get it. I warn you to be careful."

The party was last Tuesday night. Haney said the Braves present were second baseman Red Schoendienst, first baseman Frank Torre, and pitchers Lew Burdette and Gene Conley.

Defending champion Mabel McCloy, Edmonton, and Mrs. Eric Reid, Warner, Alta., moved into the ladies' final.

'Gold in California' Says Jubilant Ortega

NEW YORK (AP) — Gaspar Ortega, winner by a split decision over Mickey Crawford, thinks he and Virgil Akins can make a potfull of money with a welterweight title fight in Los Angeles.

Ortega, ranked No. 2 among Akins' contenders by Ring magazine and seventh by the National Boxing Association, bulled his way to a victory over Crawford Friday night. Crawford was No. 4 with the NBA and No. 7 with Ring. It was the third defeat in 25 professional starts for Crawford, he was a 2-to-1 favorite.

There was a wide variation in the scoring. Judge Harold Barnes saw it 8-2 for Ortega. Referee Mark Conn voted 7-3 for Crawford. Judge Leo Birnbaum had Ortega on top, 6-4.

Nick Corby, Ortega's co-manager, began shouting for an Akins' match immediately.

"We're going to try to force it," he said. "It will draw a lot of money in California. I think it could top $300,000 in Los Angeles."

It was touch and go in the early rounds Friday night. Ortega, who weighed 147 pounds, swept to a decision by taking the last four rounds.

UBC Oarsmen Could Meet Aussies Early

LAKE PADARN, North Wales (Reuters) — Australia and Canada likely will meet in the final of the eights rowing event at the British Empire Games here next week as a result of the draw made today.

The University of British Columbia eight, representing Canada, meets Northern Ireland and England in the first heat. Australia, represented by the Leichhardt Rowing Club of Sydney, seems to have a comparatively easy task against Scotland in the second heat.

In the single sculls, probably the three strongest scullers in the event have unluckily been drawn together in the first heat. The three are Australia's Stuart MacKenzie, the European and Henley champion, Tony Biernacki of Canada and David Meineke of South Africa.

CANADIAN GYMNAST 'ASKED TO LEAVE'

What's Bread Without Butter?

WINDSOR, Ont. (UPI) — The Canadian and United States ladies' gymnastic champion, Ernestine Russell of Windsor, Ont., was on her way here from Russia today. Her coach, Bernard Newman, a Windsor school teacher, said "we are glad to be out of there."

Newman's wife said he called her Friday from Vienna. He said he and Ernestine were asked to leave the Soviet Union following the world gymnastic championships in which Miss Russell finished 60th in a field of 88.

They had planned to stay in Moscow until July 14.

Newman said no reason was given for their being told to leave, but he claimed it came from a government source.

The Windsor girl, considered Canada's top female athlete for the past three years, went to Russia after private subscriptions raised more than $3,000 on her behalf. She was reported to be the most popular performer in Moscow with photographers and autograph seekers following her constantly.

Newman said Friday that the judges were all Communist. But he admitted that Miss Russell didn't deserve to win. However, he said "she should have been in the first 15."

He said she was hampered by loss of weight. "She lost eight pounds in nine days. I lost six. The food was horrible and what you didn't eat at one meal came back on your plate for the next. There was never any butter for your bread or any variety of any kind. We are glad to be out of there."

RECORD LIST OF PRIZES FOR SOLARIUM DERBY COMPETITION AT SAANICH INLET JULY 20

All You Should Need Is a Salmon on Derby Day

It may be almost as difficult to miss the prize list as it will be to win one of the fishing awards in this year's Solarium Salmon Derby.

Anglers competing in the annual competition at Saanich Inlet will be chasing more prizes than have ever been offered for a one-day derby on Vancouver Island.

Derby chairman Dick James announced this morning that 65 prizes have already been received and at least 75 awards will be at stake when fishermen toss their lures overboard at daybreak on July 20.

The prize everyone wants to win is a glistening new automobile, but the attractive array of fishing prizes is enough to stir extra excitement in the scramble for big salmon.

Waiting for the male angler weighing in the largest salmon is an outboard motor with fuel tank and the woman who tops the distaff rod-and-reelers will wind up with an automatic portable sewing machine.

And the youngsters under 17 haven't been forgotten. Junior entrants will be aiming for one of the two transistor radios up for competition—one for boys and the other for girls.

If a woman or junior angler comes in with the derby's biggest fish, she, or he, will have a choice of the top prizes.

Although everyone will be hoping to pack home a prize, it is doubtful if anyone who fails to tangle with a salmon will feel like a loser. All will have the satisfaction of competing in the Island's biggest derby and know that their dollar entry fee was money wisely spent.

Proceeds from previous derbies climbed to $50,486.78 after last year's record total of $11,454.11 had been donated to the Queen Alexandra Solarium.

This time the anglers hope to at least match that amount in order to pay for complete furnishing of the new Solarium building's main room, which will serve as a chapel, recreation room, theatre and auditorium, and installation of a telescope on the grounds.

Although it is a tough target, James believes the committee can go over the top with a little extra push down the home stretch.

Reed Crushes Canada's Hopes

TORONTO (CP)—There was little left today of those expansive dreams Canada had about what she was going to do in the Davis Cup tennis round against the United States.

Whitney Reed, a blonde, unorthodox-stroking player from Alameda, Calif., Friday shattered Canadian aspirations with the victory that gave the U.S. a commanding 2-0 lead in the North American zone semifinal round.

Reed, ranked No. 8 in the U.S. and playing in his first Davis Cup competition, defeated Canadian champion Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., 9-7, 6-2, 6-4. It was a tough struggle and there was no doubt the superior player won.

IMPRESSIVE BATTLE

The outcome depended a great deal on the expanded first set when Bedard, representing his country for the sixth straight year in Davis Cup play, was twice within a stroke of set point. He suffered a letdown in the second set but then came on with a finishing kick to stave off match point five times in the 10th game of the third set.

The victory, coming on top of Barry MacKay's win over second-ranked Don Fontana of Toronto in the opening singles, now leaves the U.S. needing to triumph only in the doubles today or in one of the two concluding singles Monday to clinch the round.

MacKay, the Dayton, Ohio star and fifth-ranking U.S. player, teams with Sam Giammalva of Houston, Tex., in carrying the Americans' hopes for the clinching victory in the doubles. The task of stemming a three-straight victory for the U.S. rests with Bedard and Fontana, an experienced doubles pair who play well together.

Meanwhile, in Buenos Aires, Argentina took a 2-0 lead over a youthful, inexperienced British West Indies team in their first-round series.

Island Angling Fields Greener in Distance

Victoria anglers will find some salmon close to home this weekend, but it is almost certain that the best catches will be made by those who try their luck in upper Vancouver Island waters.

Action with spring and coho salmon around Campbell River, good for a couple of weeks has become even better during the past fews days and Alan McLean now rates it is "the best in 10 years" in the area.

Best fishing is along the Campbell River side of Quadra Island. Most anglers are using plugs, but many are scoring on other lures. Coho are averaging around six pounds and springs range from four and five pounders to a few in the over-30 class.

Fishermen are also pulling in good catches in the vicinity of Cape Mudge and Butler Point.

Although Jack James connected with a 20-pound seven-ounce specimen and three jack springs Thursday evening, the first annual run of big springs hasn't yet appeared at Cowichan Bay, where the Cowichan Bay Salmon Club ladder derby starts Sunday.

Comox waters have also been fairly productive and the Parksville-Qualicum area has been a fair, if spotty, producer of springs and five-pound coho. Northwest Bay anglers have also been fairly active.

SLOW AT INLET

Nearer home? Saanich Inlet has been decidedly slow lately, although coho have provided some interesting flurries off the marker near Mill Bay. Deep Cove has also been fair at times.

Gulf Islands fishing has had a bit more to offer. Both coho and springs continue to come in from East Point, Active and Porlier passes.

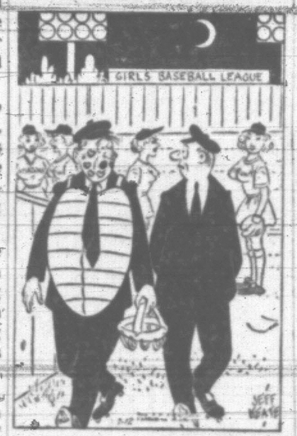
HERB FOUND THEM

Herb Shaw has been one of the better Oak Bay anglers, netting three fish over 14 pounds in two days. On Wednesday he landed a 37-pound lunker and a 14½-pounder, while Tuesday he brought in a 23-pound spring.

Dave Beulah hooked a 10-pounder and two 17-pound salmon also came in at Oak Bay Wednesday, but most fishermen are having trouble finding fish.

TIME OUT! By JEFF KEATE



"I've never reversed a decision before in all my years of umpiring, but this is the first time a player's given me a logical explanation!"

CENTURY CLUB

SOLARIUM DERBY

WALT SPAVEN

His enthusiasm can best be measured by the number of tickets he has sold for the annual fishing competition at Saanich Inlet, scheduled this year on July 20.

For three years Walt has sold more than 1,000 tickets and this year has again qualified easily for the derby's century club, limited to those who have sold more than 100 derby tickets.

"I enjoy selling tickets and meeting people, especially when it's for a cause such as this," he says.

All proceeds from the derby, jointly sponsored by the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association and the Daily Times, are donated to the Queen Alexandra Solarium for crippled children.

An honorary life member of the VSIAA, Walt will be pleased to tell you the work done at the solarium or sell you a derby ticket if you call him at 4-6058 or see him in the lobby of the Odeon theatre any evening before July 20.

Boosters Convinced--- Merchants Rate Title

Merchants left no doubt about their superiority in the Cadboro Bay Little League Friday night winning the league playoff title by whipping Boosters, 36-3, at Majestic Park.

Dave McSween, with four doubles and a single, and Don McPherson, who rapped out five straight singles, paced the Merchant attack, which started with a 10-run splurge in the first inning.

Walt Thornloe's fourth-inning home run produced the three Booster tallies.

Montreal May Have Title Bout

MONTREAL (CP) — President Truman Gibson of the International Boxing Club said Friday Montreal could be the stage for a world light-heavyweight title bout between champion Archie Moore and the winner of Wednesday's fight between Yvon Durelle and Mike Holt.

He told a gathering of sportsmen:

The Durelle-Holt fight is for Durelle's British Empire light-heavyweight championship.

Both fighters and their managers were at the gathering. Chris Shaban, manager of Durelle, the fisherman from Baie Ste. Anne, N.B., said he was anxious to confer with Eddie Quinn, promoter of next week's fight, and Gibson.

"If Durelle wins, we have an offer from Vancouver promoter to box Moore there," Shaban said, not elaborating. "I want to discuss the matter with them."

He also said he aims to get a return bout clause inserted in the contract

SALT LAKE CITY (AP)—A middleweight bout between former champion Gene Fullmer and Joey Giardello here appears set, except for the signatures on a contract. The fight probably would be held the week of Sept. 7.

New Club Sends Representative To Bowling Finals

Skipping his rink to a 23-16 victory over Dave Warner's Canadian Pacific quartet at Burnside Lawn Bowling Club Friday night, John Green gave the newly-formed Oak Bay Lawn Bowling Club a representative in the provincial finals at Vancouver July 28-Aug. 1.

Green, who called shots for William Gibson, David Scott and Colin Wood, earned the right to compete in the B.C. championships for a berth in the Canadian tournament at Victoria in August.

Col. S. A. Baxandall and Fred Brown of Victoria Lawn Bowling Club captured a doubles berth in the B.C. meet by downing Sam Barr and Harry Dukeman, 29-24 in the finals of the city elimination tourney.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN
(ESPECIALLY VICTORIA'S MOTORISTS)

The A. B. VOLVO COMPANY, located at Goteberg, Sweden, has been in operation since 1927 and has over 30 years' experience in the manufacture of cars, trucks, buses, tractors, marine and aeroplane engines.

The VOLVO car was introduced into the U.S. in the latter part of 1955. By 1957 sales had climbed to fourth place in imported cars across the nation and second place in the 11 western states. It is interesting to note that the Ms. Hindustan recently docked at Los Angeles carrying 1,008 VOLVO automobiles, which is the largest shipment of imported cars ever to arrive in North America.

There are 400 VOLVO dealers in the U.S., 190 of which are in the 11 western states. Now arrangements have been completed establishing dealers all across Canada. In Victoria, HORWOOD BROS. at 810 Johnson Street, have been appointed as your exclusive VOLVO Dealer. Service is the watchword of the VOLVO company, and bearing this in mind, service training facilities and parts warehouses are already set up in Vancouver and Toronto.

The VOLVO is the car which won the first five places in its class at the Little Le Mans 10-hour endurance test at Lime Rock, Connecticut. In the past two years VOLVO production sedans have won 100-odd races of varying importance in the U.S., including Florida's Daytona Beach and "Little Sebring" races. Among vanquished opponents have been the Porche Speedster, M.G. and Alfa Romeo.

Due to the sports car performance, VOLVO must of necessity give one the smoothest and steadiest rides possible. This is accomplished by coil-springing all round. Damping is by tubular shocks outside the coils and stability by panhard bar in rear and torsion bar in front.

Electrolux air conditioner
White sidewall tires
Twin S.U. carburetors
Electric windshield wipers
All models pullmanized
Coil-springing front and rear
Radiator blind
Undercoating
Custom directional lights
Self-adjusting brakes
Arm rests
Chrome wheel rings
Full-flow oil filter
Twin visors
Courtesy light on doors
Cigar lighter

VOLVO is a car built to last for a lifetime. Superb Swedish engineering establishes highest quality throughout. It should do 125,000 miles without an overhaul. Gas consumption averages 35 MPG. The 85-h.p. twin S.U. engine produces 0-60 MPH acceleration in 14 seconds with a top speed of 95 easily attained. Four-speed all-syncromesh gear transmission makes the car a most enjoyable one to drive.

The full price—$2,595.

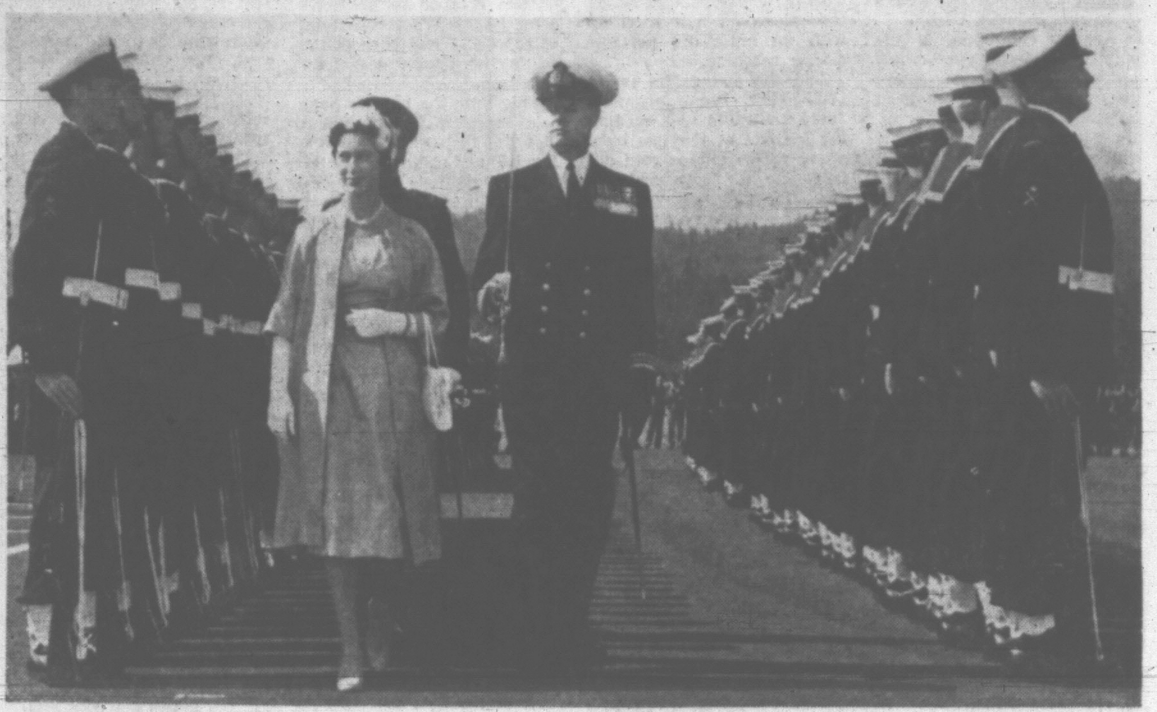
BLUE SKIES SMILE AT VISITING PRINCESS

Seated in low, black convertible upholstered in red and green tartan, Princess Margaret sets off for drive from airport to downtown Victoria. Riding with her was Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross. Navy honor guard can be seen in background. Drive to city was made at a leisurely 35 miles an hour.



RADIANT in a wedgewood blue costume, the still-smiling princess, above, carries out inspection of the 105-man navy honor guard at the airport. Inspection took only four minutes, then the sister of the Queen was whisked away by car for the drive to downtown Victoria. Accompanying her in this picture is Lieut.Cmdr. George MacFarlane, guard commander. Princess did not speak to any of the guard members.

Standing on the other side of the Princess is Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, with his private secretary, Commodore Gar Dixon, in rear. Premier Bennett is seen at extreme right. SMILING AND WAVING, the beautiful Princess Margaret, escorted by Lieutenant-Governor Frank M. Ross, entranced a tumultous crowd as she entered the Empress Hotel for a four-day visit here. Staunch Canadians and Americans — turned-royalist shouted themselves hoarse in her first public greeting.

EARLY CROWDS gathered in front of Empress Hotel more than two hours before Princess Margaret and her entourage arrived there this morning. This was the scene in front of the hotel before 9 a.m.

AROUND THE WORLD

With JOHN MANNING

University student John Manning of 3225 Ripon Rd., has taken a year off from classroom studies to "vagabond" around the world. The 21-year-old Victorian is writing his impressions of the places he is visiting and the things he is seeing.

BY JOHN MANNING

The sea was calm. Over it breathed gently the night air from Hsinkang carrying the smell of China, while along the shore, lights lay strung bright beneath the stars. Gradually increasing came a throbbing pulse from the engines and our ship gathered way beyond Taku Bar, setting course down the China Coast for Shanghai.

Hours later in the Formosa Straits a warship signaled us by light demanding our identification, then disappeared with the night.

At the wide, dirty mouth of the Yangtze, we picked up a pilot and four guards. It was forbidden to take pictures. One man tried and had his film confiscated. As in Hsinkang, the ship's radio was shut. Countless junks passed rocking in our wash, their sails full-blown and golden in the sunset, as the vessel left the Yangtze and turned up the Huang Pu to Shanghai. That night no one was allowed ashore.

* * *

In the morning I rose early and went up on deck. A mist lay over Shanghai and the river. There was no sound save from craft pasing near the ship and you could hear the voices of rivermen, the creaking of long steering oars, the useless flapping sound of a junk's sail with no wind.

The other freighters about us, British, Japanese, German, looked ghost-like and unreal.

When our shore permits arrived, nine others and I went on a conducted tour to the resort area of Hangchow by train four hours from Shanghai.

The Communist Chinese do not approve of hitch-hikers. On the way to the station I noticed again, as in Peking, the streets were clean, no beggars, few cars and most of the people wore a sort of blue uniform. A woman engineer leaned out of the train window staring at us.

Our guide, a young university student, spoke fluent English. He began to discuss Communism with me, eagerly, proudly, dogmatically. It was strange.

* * *

About the Communist government in China, he pointed out:

"We in China now believe it is better to think of our 600 million people than ourselves. We do what is best for the nation and are not selfish as the imperialists were before the Communist army liberated us in 1949. Even Mao Tse-tung goes out into the fields and works.

"In 15 years we intend to outstrip Britain's industrial power."

I asked him for his thoughts on the Hungarian Revolution.

"If you stand on the bourgeos point of view you would say the Russians were harsh. However, the people of Hungary would not have become good if the capitalists had won," he said, pounding the little table between us. "The people were blinded and not quite clear. It was Russia's duty to safeguard the people's rights and educate them."

"Do you think there will be war?" I queried.

* * *

He answered with little hesitation.

"We want peace but we are not afraid to fight. We have suffered 1000 years from the invaders. Why did the Americans bomb Indonesia? Why do the French fight in Algeria?"

As for religion he said: "We have it but the Communists do not believe in religion. You go to your church. I go to my office."

"If you don't believe in religion, then what do you believe in?" I asked.

"We believe that labor creates everything."

"How does that create man?"

"But what about before the ape."

"Ahh . . . but this is a long history," said he with a grin as the train drew to a stop in Hangchow.

TRAVEL COLUMN

Rich Heritage in 'Storied Province'

Quebec, often called "the storied province" of Canada because of its rich traditions, has a unique attraction for the vacationer with a taste for things historical.

Canada's oldest and biggest province has its own culture, language and art, dating back to the days of the French regime. In all parts of the province, popularly called French Canada—are reminders of a glorious past—sites of battles between whites and Indians or between English and French; old forts restored to their old glory; monuments to heroes and pioneers; religious shrines; ancient buildings and a host of other relics.

Starting point for thousands of visitors to Quebec each year is Montreal, Canada's largest city.

In Montreal, the tourist can find many places of outstanding interest. Towering above the city is Mount Royal on which French explorer Jacques Cartier stood more than four centuries ago, and afterwards wrote "As goodly a country as possibly can with eye be seen."

The local landscape has undergone big changes since that time, but the city, founded in 1642, still retains its predominantly French character and there are many notable signs of earlier days. Such well-known landmarks as Chateau de Ramezay, Notre Dame Church and St. Sulpice Seminary (the oldest building in the city still in use) are all well worth a visit for the historically minded tourist.

A short distance north of Montreal are the Laurentians—the world's oldest mountains—which, in addition to being a famous sports and pleasure area, are also scenes of many historical interest points.

Some 160 miles down the St. Lawrence River is Quebec City, mother city not only of Canada but also of large sections of the United States, including the Mississippi Valley. An old city when most North American cities were still wilderness, Quebec is the only walled city on the continent.

Among the "musts" for the visitor to Quebec City are the city wall with its three gates, the mighty Citadel, the ramparts on which cannons still stand guard, Battlefield Park, Wolfe's Cove and the famous statue of Frontenac.

GREAT BRIDGE

Spanning the St. Lawrence there is the CNR bridge, once the world's largest single span bridge and still considered an engineering marvel.

Just down river is the pretty Island of Orleans where General Wolfe laid his plans for the battle that ended the French rule in Canada. The island is famous for its historic parishes and churches.

Quebec is renowned for its religious shrines, which attract thousands of pilgrims each year from all parts of the world. Particularly famous are the Imposing St. Joseph's Oratory in Montreal, the Ste. Anne de Beaupre Shrine near Quebec City and the Calvary at Huberdeau in the Laurentians.

'Impartial' UBC Economist Heads Amalgamation Study

An expert on governmental financing was appointed head of a Victoria-Saanich amalgamation study Thursday after he told a committee he would "let the facts fall where they may."

Dr. J. J. Deutsch, 47-year-old head of the economics and political science department at the University of B.C., was retained by a special committee of Victoria and Saanich councillors.

He was instructed to enquire and report on the fiscal and physical implications of the "integration" of Victoria and all or part of Saanich.

The report, dealing with pros and cons of amalgamation, is expected to be ready by Oct. 15.

"I'm going to let the facts fall where they may because I am not only uninfluenced by the local political situation, I am not even aware of it," he said during an interview by the committee.

OPEN MIND

"That's the man we want. He has an open mind," said Saanich Coun. George Chatterton as the committee appointed Dr. Deutsch at a fee of $75 a day plus out-of-pocket expenses.

Dr. Deutsch will cross over here from the mainland periodically during the next three months to analyze a mass of statistical and fiscal matter to be compiled by the two municipalities' auditors, Ismay, Boiston, Dunn & Co.

City Manager C. C. Wyatt and Saanich Comptroller-Treasurer John Tribe will assist Dr. Deutsch.

Dr. Deutsch currently is chairman of the royal commission appointed by the Manitoba government to study natural gas distribution in Winnipeg.

He also is a member of the three-man royal commission reviewing the state of Canada-Newfoundland fiscal relations required by the terms of union.

Until joining the UBC faculty in 1956, he had spent 20 years as assistant deputy minister of finance for the federal government and at one time was secretary of the federal treasury board which overseees Ottawa spending.

His first connection with royal commissions occurred between 1937 and 1940 when he acted as assistant director of the research staff for the Rowell-Sirois commission which studied federal-provincial fiscal relations.

$2,000 Bail For Ferry Arson Suspect

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bail was set at $2,000 Friday for Warren Pasquill Sumpter, 20, of North Vancouver, when he was committed for trial on a charge of committing arson aboard the CPR ferry Princess Elizabeth.

Magistrate Oscar Orr said he must commit Sumpter on the evidence that a burned match was found at the scene of the fire in a stateroom and "that match in the opinion of an expert called by the prosecution came from a book in the possession of the accused."

Swimmer Gives Up

ERIE, Pa. (AP)—Buffeted by waves and chilled by frequent rain squalls, 24-year-old Mary Hafey early today gave up on her attempt to become the first woman to swim Lake Erie from Erie to Ontario. She was in the water 9½ hours.

THOUSANDS IN FIELD OF COLOR

By TONY DICKASON

From the usual number of Saturday shoppers, the crowd in downtown Victoria swelled to thousands within a matter of minutes for Princess Margaret today.

Surprisingly, the city centre provided an uninterrupted view of the smiling, waving princess as she headed from airport to hotel.

Everyone could see.

She passed the intersection of Yates and Douglas at exactly 10.50 a.m., a vision in radiant soft blue, seated beside Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross in the black, shiny open car.

The patient, expectant and quiet crowd began assembling about 10.15. Scrubbed children sat on the curb. Everything was orderly—until the motorcycle scort heralded arrival of the Princess.

Then they scrambled, like one person, across Douglas and overlapped the far lane along which the Princess travelled.

Police cries of "stand back" were ignored. They moved to let the royal car through only when the motorcycle escort practically ran over toes.

The wave of people crossing to the traffic lane and returning when the Princess passed was a field of summer colors undulating the entire length of Douglas.

Traditional reserve of Victoria was apparent.

There were a few cheers, but hand clapping was paramount.

CLOUD, RAIN THREATEN GARDEN PARTY

A weather disturbance is expected to bring cloud, and even light rain, to the city Sunday night and Monday morning, weatherman Sid Ramsden said here today.

"This new storm is stronger than the one that gave us cloud today," he said. "We are hoping it will pass in time to leave Monday afternoon clear for the Lie tenant-Governor's garden party at Government House."

Princess Margaret will attend, at 4.15 p.m., the function being one of the chief social events of her visit here.

'It All Happened So Fast' for Crowd

A solid representation of navy—RN, RCN and USN was there.

"Able Seaman" Rickey Hains, 12, 1514 Amphion, snapped to attention when the Princess passed. Several navy men saluted.

The persons who saw her were a widely representative group — many with personal connections with royalty over the years.

Miss Betty Mellish, Vancouver, who carried a portable radio to "keep in touch" with the Princess' arrival, a member of the WREN reserve, was one of the honor guard when the Duchess of Kent was in Halifax.

"I'm definitely patriotic. This sort of thing gives me a real thrill."

Italian-born Frank Tonin, 863 Fleming, said "I've seen them all—years ago in England." He was a member of the Italian army at that time. He was standing amongst the longest of anyone on hand, a full hour. He was 84.

It wasn't exactly "old hat" to CPO Gordon Sutherland, a veteran of 16 years in the navy, but he did see the Princess in London "about a year-and-a-half ago."

"She was just passing by, then too."

"I might be 'duty' Tuesday when we have her at Royal Roads," he said.

"I came in to shop, and this is as good a place as any to see the Princess," said Mrs. Sarah King, 1135 Lyall.

Middies Stayed 'To Pay Respects'

"And, I was privileged to shake the hand of the Prince of Wales in 1919."

Two midshipmen from USS Bennington had a slight argument. One wanted to push on and do shopping. Said the other: "We've got to stay and pay our respects." They stayed.

"The Empress Hotel? Where's the Empress Hotel?" asked two excited visiting American women of a bus driver standing in the crowd. "We want to see your queen there."

Midshipman Robert W. Barrett of Bennington, whose home town is Aberdeen, South Dakota, was somewhat nonplussed with the entire affair. He had a bundle of laundry—looked like shirts—under one arm.

Hardly the sort of thing to be carrying when one is a potential officer and a princess passes by, he indicated. But he just hadn't been able to find a laundry fast enough.

Crowd comment after the brief glimpse of the princess: "She's pretty!"

BIGGEST FLY-PAST OVER CITY

Local Fliers to Salute Princess

Three Victoria and district airmen will take part in a Monday fly-past here to honor Princess Margaret during an armed services parade at 11.40 a.m. The Princess will review the services from a stand on the causeway in front of the Empress Hotel.

It will be the largest mass fly-past of jet and piston driven aircraft ever flown over the city. All are stationed at Comox.

FO. Sinclair Ash, 24, son of R. L. Ash of Langford, will be an observer in a Lancaster with 407 Maritime Squadron. An extra bonus for the young airman, born in Victoria and educated at Belmont High School, was the granting of his permanent RCAF commission today. He enlisted in 1953.

Flying as observer in a CF-100 will be FO. Robert A. Sherratt, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Sherratt, 2725 Musgrave Street. Another CF-100 observer will be FO. Ronald C. Scattergood, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Scattergood, 1680 Island Highway.

A total of 37 aircraft will take part in the fly-past. It will include CF-100 all-weather fighters, F-86 Sabre fighters and Lancaster and Neptune bombers used on sea patrols.

'Floating HQ' Office Docks Here for Navy Celebrations

USS Estes, classed as a combined Operations Communications Headquarters ship, is designed as the "office" of the senior officer in command of amphibious operations.

From her he can direct action at sea and on land. Until a beachhead is established, Estes and ships of her class are used, not only to transmit direct orders, but to move communications traffic between other ships and shore establishments.

The operations of navy week continued smoothly Friday, with a "come-one, come-all" dance at Memorial Arena ending the day. About 2,000 attended, danced to the music of Len Acres, watched special entertainment by members of various ship's companies.

Navy bands will perform at Beacon Hill Park Sunday commencing at 3 p.m.

All churches in the city expect attendance from visiting sailors. Special services will also be conducted at HMCS Naden and HMC Dockyard, for servicemen only.

ERRANT TANKER'S OIL SMUDGE SPARKS HASTY ROYAL PAINT JOB

All warships taking part in the Naval Review Tuesday will be open to the public today and Sunday—with one important exception.

HMCS Crescent, in which Princess Margaret will be embarked as reviewing authority, cannot receive visitors.

The reason?

First Copies of Jubilee Book Presented to Lieut.-Governor

First copies of Dr. H. H. Murphy's book, "The Royal Jubilee Hospital," were presented Friday afternoon to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor Frank McK. Ross, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mayor Percy B. Scurrah.

In accepting the book, His Honor said that the hospital was "very fortunate to have had the services of a man like Dr. Murphy" to produce the work, which marks the centenary of the Jubilee.

In a graceful acknowledgement, Dr. Murphy said that, while the character of medical service was changing, with the participation of the federal government in a national plan, he was "one of those optimists who believed that Canadians would meet the new era with courage, resourcefulness and determination," with benefit to the whole society.

FINED, LICENCE TAKEN

David Smith Gibb, 463 Davida, was fined $250 and his licence restricted to business driving only for one year when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to impaired driving.

Youth Showing Progress After Heart Operation

Cameron Hoegi, 14-year-old Duncan boy who underwent a serious heart operation at the Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday, was said to be making "satisfactory progress" today. But he is enduring considerable pain.

He is undergoing therapy treatment this afternoon.

"It will be some time before we know if the operation was a complete success," a hospital official said.

Strike Averted

Threat of a bus strike here has been averted as drivers have accepted recommendation of a conciliation board for a 12 per cent wage increase.

Members of the Street Railwaymen's Union here and in Vancouver voted for the boost, to be spread over two years.

Present pay for drivers is $1.96 an hour. The increase would give them $2.09½ in the first year, and $2.20 in the second year of the agreement.

Active Public Service Worker Dies

Mrs. Marjorie Thorne Gillespie, 69, resident of Victoria for 10 years and well known for her community efforts, died today at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Born in Winnipeg, daughter of the late John B. Persse, she lived in Winnipeg, Kelowna, and Vancouver before making her home here.

With her husband, Dugald Gillespie, she was an active worker in the Canadian Cancer Society, Victoria branch. She also was interested in the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and other organizations devoted to public service.

Surviving, besides her husband, at 841 St. Charles St., are a daughter, Mrs. C. Carothers Carpenter, 4060 Cedar Hill Road; two sons, John D. Gooderham, West Vancouver, and W. G. Gooderham, Courtenay; and two sisters, Mrs. Geoffrey Macdonald and Mrs. L. S. H. Redmond, both of Winnipeg.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. at the Church of St. George the Martyr, Cadboro Bay.

Princess Can't Have Island 'It's Ours' Says Indian Chief

Chief Andy Paull of North Vancouver says the British Columbia government doesn't own the island it plans to give Princess Margaret and he has asked Prime Minister Diefenbaker to advise the Princess not to accept it.

Chief Paull, president of the North American Indian Brotherhood, says in an open letter to Mr. Diefenbaker that acceptance of the gift by Princess Margaret "would not be in keeping with the dignity and solemnity of Her Highness, in that the B.C. government does not own any of the islands in B.C.—nor do they own all that now is known as British Columbia."

The provincial government announced Friday it will offer the Princess 540-acre Portland Island, off Swartz Bay near Sidney, at a ceremony Monday. Recreation Minister Earle C. Westwood said that if she accepts, the island will be developed as a provincial marine park.

Chief Paull's letter says that the B.C. government is not in a position to make the gift because the land is guaranteed to the Indians under the British North America Act.

"The B.C. government has persistently refused to comply with the proclamation of King George III in 1763 . . . wherein His Majesty proclaimed that the native Indians must be compensated for their lands and that they should meet the Indians in council for the extinguishment of the native title—and this has never been done."

Chief Paull says another decree that the Indians must receive compensation was made in 1858 by Queen Victoria.

ON 'SECOND HONEYMOON'

Multi-Magazine Publisher Here Prefers to Talk About Music

BY TONY DICKASON

Floyd S. Chalmers, 59, heads a Canadian publishing house which produces 45 magazines and newspapers. Their circulation is close to the 2,000,000 mark.

But he prefers to talk music.

The president of Maclean Hunter Publishing Co. Ltd., Toronto, is in Victoria today with his wife on a sort of "second honeymoon." They honeymooned here 37 years ago and it is Mrs. Chalmers first return visit.

As chairman of the Opera Festival Association of Toronto, he predicts historic old Massey Hall will continue as the symphony site for years, despite erection of a new $11,000,000 building which could incorporate such performances. Tradition counts.

Mr. Chalmers said Victoria Symphony conductor Hans Gruber has made a "remarkably fine" contribution to this city's cultural life with his "building" of the present orchestra.

The company chief has been "associated" with music 25 years, and for 20 years was on the board of the famed Toronto Conservatory.

"But I am not a musician in the sense of being a performer, I represent what might be termed the consuming public compared with the producer."

As a member of the board of governors, Stratford Shakespearean Festival, he believes strongly that Canadians generally need spiritual and cultural resources to live the well-rounded life.

Canada is outgrowing the "flapjack" influence in cultural approaches, he said, as evidenced at Stratford. Otherwise "it would be impossible to conceive such a thing."

He admitted, however, that this country would be richer culturally if there were not certain mechanical barriers in the professions to acceptance of new Canadians. This was also true of music.

Capable musicians had packed up and gone home to the "Continent" when they couldn't get jobs here, he said, indicating the situation was union-caused.

"This has been a great handicap."

He termed Canada, in fields economic and political as well as cultural, "confident but modest" now that with maturity the feeling of national inferiority had been discarded.

So, for the first time, individual talent can live in Canada, and still be recognized throughout the world, he said.

Even in medicine and engineering, this country is retaining to a larger degree than ever before the professional men; they were not going south, nor east, nor west.

Mr. Chalmers' company publishes Maclean's Magazine, Chatelaine, Canadian Homes and Gardens, the Financial Post and many trade magazines.

Crews Blasting To Widen Quadra

Widening of one block of Bay Street west of Quadra will be completed in "three to four weeks," City Engineer James Garnett said Friday.

City crews are blasting the rock face lining the north side of the block to widen the road from 21 to 40 feet and provide an additional five-foot strip for a sidewalk.

Mr. Garnett said the $8,264 job will fill the last remaining gap in the sidewalk system on Bay. Traffic is being detoured around the work site.

'Holy Relics' Pilgrimage In Germany

AACHEN, West Germany (Reuters) — The pilgrimage of the holy relics, held here every seven years since the 14th century, was opened Wednesday.

More than 500,000 pilgrims are expected to crowd into this West German city to see the relics in the cathedral tower every afternoon until July 27.

The relics, described as the robe of the Virgin Mary, the swaddling and loin cloths of Christ, and John the Baptist's beheading cloth, are housed in a golden shrine.

Historians believe that the Emperor Charlemagne received the relics in the year 800 as a gift from the patriarch of Jerusalem.

LANGFORD — Baptist and United churches vacation school will be held starting Monday through to July 25 at Gordon United Church.

Rev. S. Neale, the minister, will be superintendent.

Sales Tax Won't Be Reduced Until Revenues Show Boost

The B.C. government cannot decrease the current 5 per cent provincial sales tax until a tax of 1 per cent will yield enough revenue to meet hospital costs.

This was explained by Premier W. A. C. Bennett Thursday.

He said, at present, only two-fifths of the tax is used for hospital purposes—2 of the 5 per cent.

If the tax was reduced to 4 per cent, then only 1 per cent actually would be available to the hospital insurance service.

"Anytime that 1 per cent can take care of the cost of hospital insurance to the government, then we'll reduce the tax 1 per cent," the premier stated.

He said many persons have pointed to the approximately $12,500,000 contribution by the federal government to the B.C. hospital insurance scheme under the new partnership effective this month.

But in effect, this isn't "found money."

The federal contribution was taken into consideration in this year's estimates, according to the health department.

Balancing the increase in revenue, however, is an anticipated drop of $8,000,000 in sales tax, which means $3,000,000 less income for BCHIS through the tax.

And the estimates also show payments to hospitals this year will be up $2,000,000 and grants in aid of hospital construction are increased $3,200,000.

EXTRA COSTS

Since the estimates were drawn, there have been new costs apparent — such as $1,600,000 in added hospital operations.

And, because the federal-provincial partnership now means the province must share in paying for veterans' hospitals, and there are some fields in which the federal government won't share, the sum of $3,000,000 will be added to costs.

According to this year's estimates, if the federal government's $12,500,000 hadn't been available, that amount would have had to be raised somewhere else or the hospital-aid program cut accordingly.

"No Government ought to be free of censors and where the press is free none will ever be." —Thomas Jefferson, 3rd President of the U.S.A.

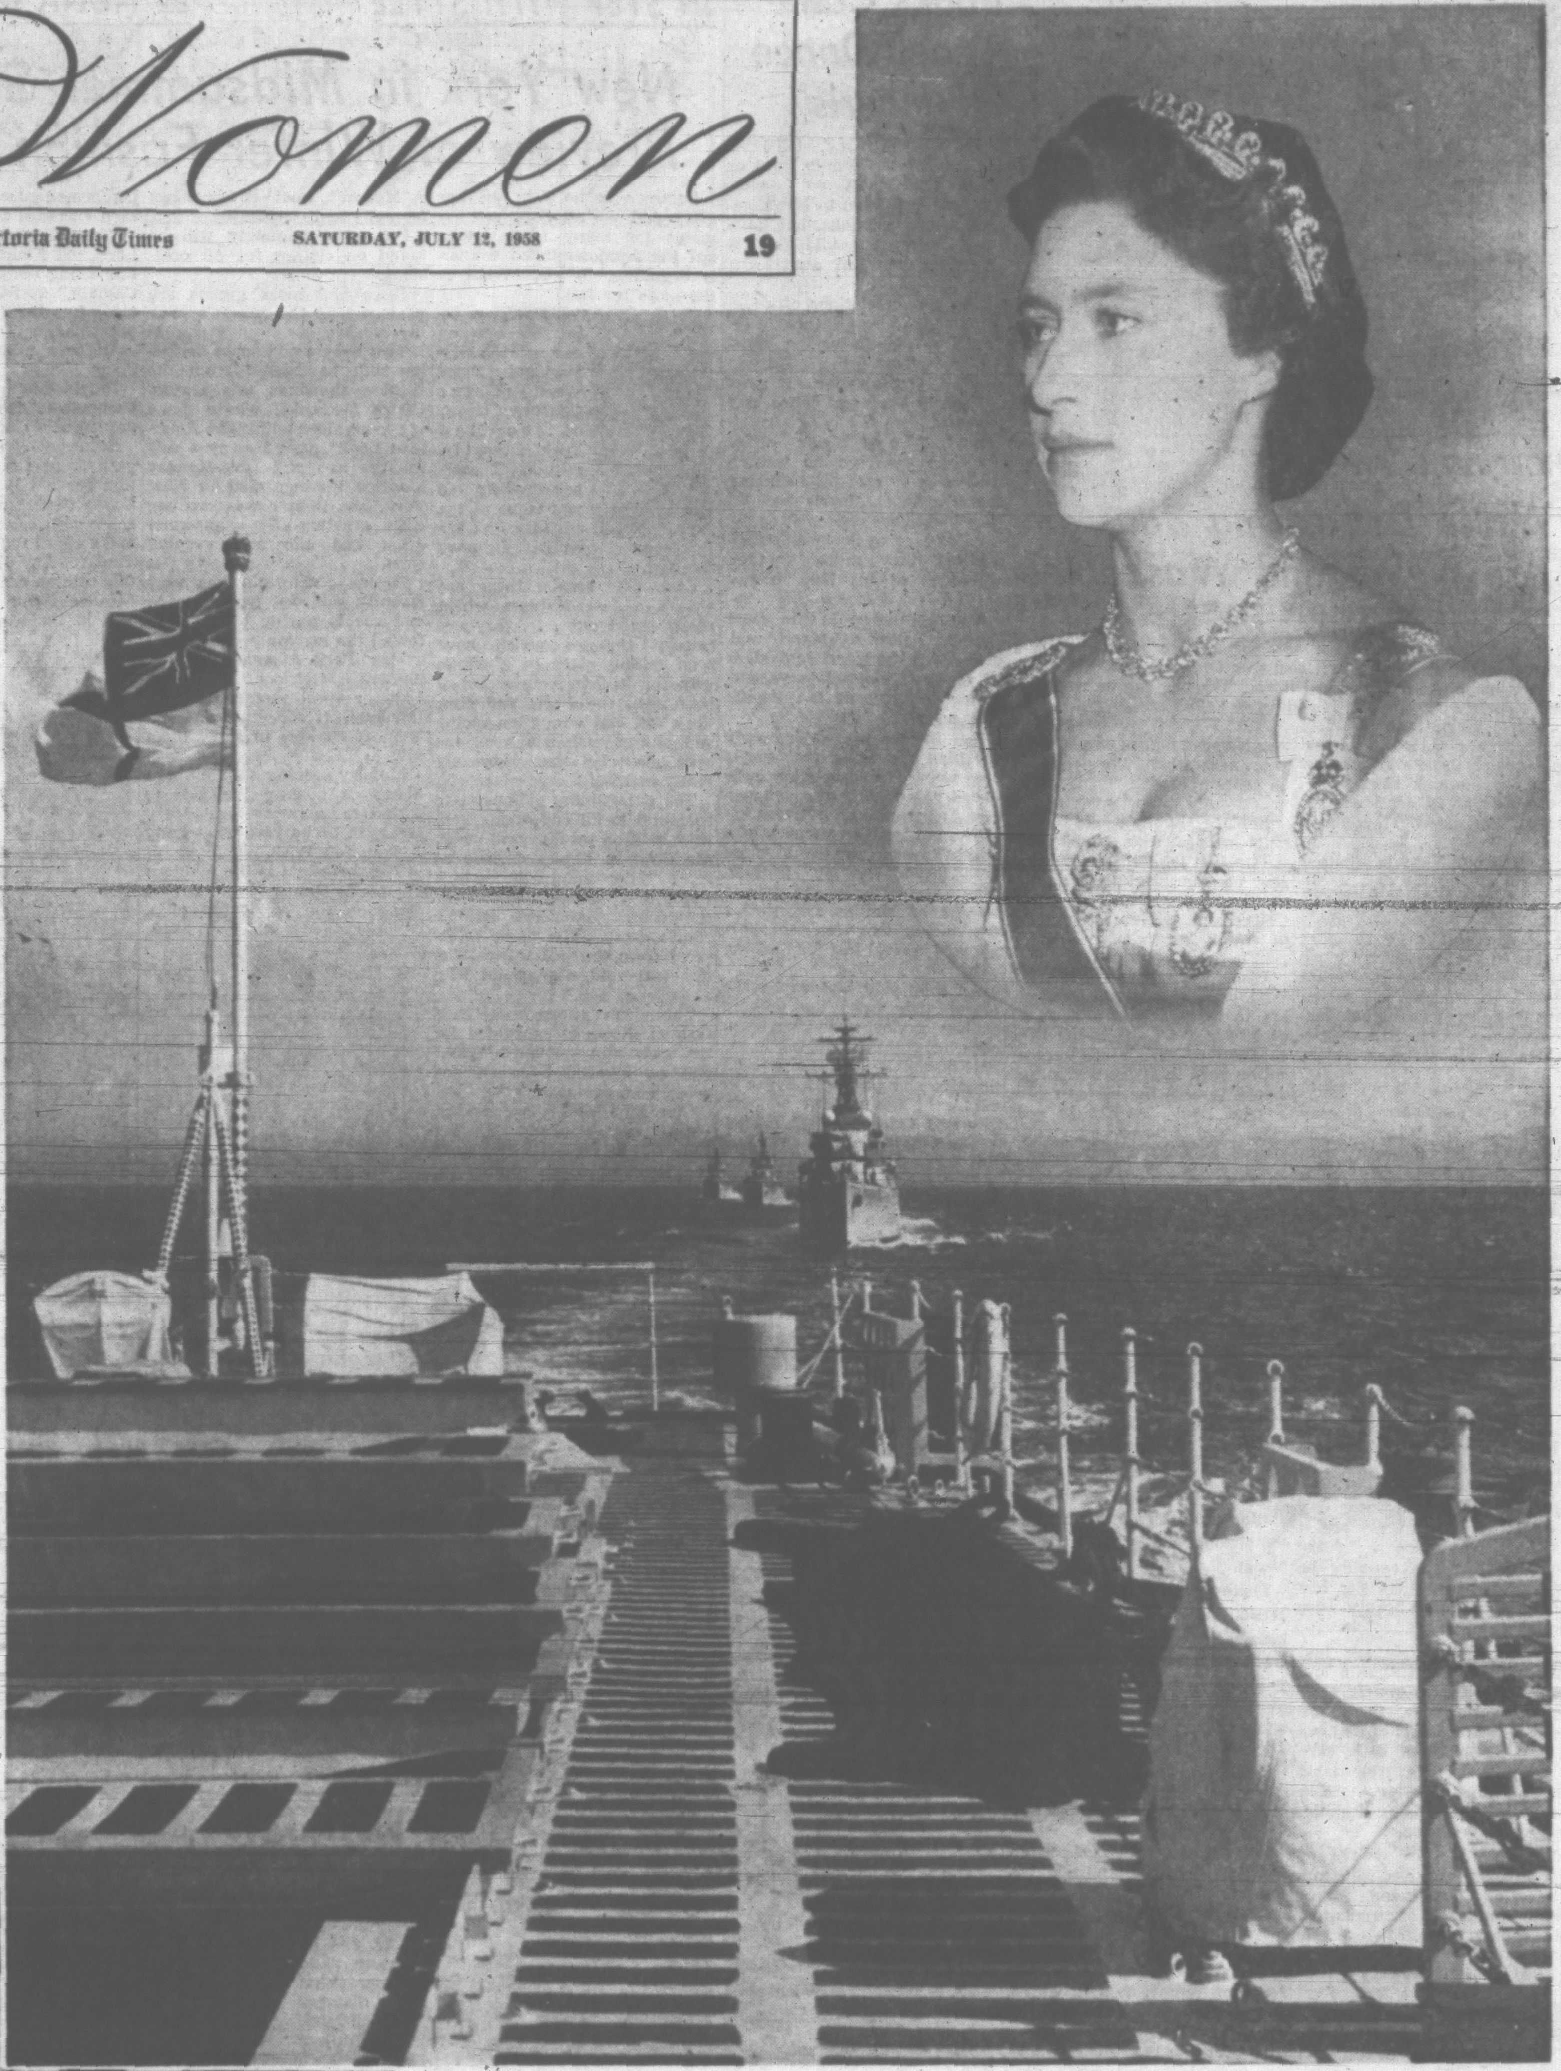
Women

Mrs. H. S. Rayner, wife of the Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, was among those greeting the Princess Margaret when she arrived at Patricia Bay Airport this morning.

The Princess And the Fleet

With the arrival of Her Royal Highness the Princess Margaret this morning, Victoria's centennial celebrations have reached a peak. And highlight of the visit will be Princess Margaret's review of the fleet, the first to be made by a member of the Royal Family in Canada.

Consequently, the navy plays an important part during the Royal Visit to Victoria. On this page we show a few of the wives of naval officers who will have the honor of entertaining or meeting the Princess.



Ships of the Royal Canadian Navy steam into position, line astern, as they will do on Monday getting into position for Royal Review of the fleet. Her Royal Highness, the Princess Margaret, will review the ships anchored in Royal Roads, from HMCS Crescent.

Historic Admiral's House is background for this picture of naval officers' wives gathered to discuss events of Fleet Week. Left to right are Mrs. M. H. Cooke, wife of commanding officer of HMCS Stettler, senior ship in the frigate squadron; Mrs. J. C. Pratt, whose husband is commanding officer of HMCS Crescent, ship in which Princess Margaret will be embarked during her review of the fleet; Mrs. S. G. Moore, wife of the senior officer of the Second Canadian Minesweeping Squadron, and Mrs. J. C. Littler, wife of the commander of HMCS Ontario.

Mrs. Porter is the wife of Commander H. Porter, naval centennial co-ordinator, who works with the Centennial committee on all activities connected with the RCN.

Mrs. P. S. Cooper is the wife of the commandant of Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, where Princess Margaret will be guest of honor at dinner following the Naval Review.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Stimulation Often Gives Complexion New Bloom

It is lucky for us that time adds up gradually, since this gives us the opportunity to fight the aging processes day by day. Whenever we see a woman who looks years younger than she actually is, we can be sure that she has indulged in daily beauty care for her complexion.

Some lucky people are just born with a beautiful skin and seem to keep it no matter what they do. However, these are the exceptions. Most of us have to pay the price of daily care in order to have a presentable outer coating. The big three in skin care are cleansing, stimulation and lubrication.

Most women are aware of the importance of cleansing and lubrication but many forgot about stimulation of circulation. Of course general exercise whips the blood up in the face and neck as well as over the body. However, local stimulation often seems to clear the complexion and give it a new bloom.

There are many splendid masks and creams on the market which do this. They usually are dubbed "circulation" creams. Then there is the Epsom salt treatment and the clay pack with which you work at home. The clay pack long has been thought to be good for large pores. If you wish to try it, buy some fuller's earth at any drugstore.

Mix equal parts of witch hazel and peroxide and add this to the fuller's earth. Use enough of the liquid to make the mixture smooth and easy to apply. Cover the face with it and leave it on until it dries. Later on remove it with water.

The Epsom salt facial is somewhat drying. It is therefore good for the oily skin and questionable for a very dry one. This is how you do it. Put two pints of hot water in one bowl and two pints of ice cold water in another.

Put four tablespoonfuls of Epsom salts in each bowl. Let the salts dissolve. Cleanse your face and then soak a cloth in the hot water. Wring it out and hold it against the face and neck, putting the cloth in the hot water periodically. After about five minutes of this, soak a cloth in the ice cold water. Apply it to the face and neck. After a while rinse the face with plain ice water.

This not only stirs up circulation but you will find it most refreshing.

Small Car Critics Just 'Too Bulky'

Books Can't Teach Dance Of Maoris

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — Girl guides in Toronto want to learn the Maori poi dance. They have written to New Zealand for instructions, but have been regretfully told this is one thing you just can't learn from books.

The public relations office in Auckland, New Zealand, received a request for the information from the Toronto Guides' Organization. It was desired to stage the dance in a pageant.

But though the office searched the city, no written instructions on poi dancing could be found. Maoris declared they had never seen written details of how to do it, and they doubted very much if they would be of any help in any case.

The poi dance is the most famous dance of Maori maidens. It is the Maori equivalent of the hula, danced in various forms in most of the Pacific islands.

But instead of swaying only the hips and arms, the Maoris also swing the little grass balls called pois in intricate and fascinating rhythms.

The poi is about the size of a baseball, made usually of dried broad-leaved swamp grasses. They are attached to woven strings of similar material—a few inches long for the short poi, and several feet for the long poi.

As they sing and dance the Maroi girls twirl the pois in endless motion, managing them with hands, arms, elbows, in expert fashion which requires long practice and an inborn sense of rhythm. The pattern of pois, adjusted to the subject matter of the action songs, is an essential part of the presentation.

The Maoris sang unaccompanied in the old days, and the swish and slap of the pois set the time for the songs.

With practice some of the poi dances can be mastered by white people, but the Maoris insist they cannot be learned by study.

However, the public relations office, determined not to disappoint the Toronto guides, is sending a newly-published book on Maori games containing illustrations of pois and poi dancing.

From that they may be able to prepare the necessary pois and costumes. Then all they need to do is find a Maori to act as instructor.

New York in Midsummer Sees Preview of Winter Fashion

Summer is here in all her glory and we all hope she remains for many more weeks but the fashion-minded woman is beginning to ask "What is the news for fall?"

Nona

Tomorrow being the opening day of the 31st National Press Week of the Couture Group of the New York Dress Institute, I will pass along to you some of the advance news which I have received.

Each new season there are always a few features which really stand out . . . they are usually changes which have been taking place in a subtle way for a few months but it isn't until the Paris and New York fall and winter or spring and summer showings as the case may be that they are really official.

The outstanding silhouette to be found in all collections next week will be the Trapeze which the Couture Group defines as . . . "The silhouette which flares out sharply below the shoulders, somewhat like a child's dress. The name is derived from the geometrical figure, trapezoid, a pyramid with a flattened top."

There are approximately 58 fashion showings scheduled for the week and the word "Sack" will be ignored by each and every commentator.

The chemise of last season, which was as straight as possible will be replaced by a modified version which retains the unfitted waist but features emphasis at either the bosom or low, near the hemline.

The names Directoire and Empire will be heard repeatedly, both signifying an extremely high-waisted appearance. The Directoire line falls loosely from the high bosom and the Empire falls in form fitting fashion.

This season there is no long or short controversy . . . dresses are just below the knee . . . not 12, 14, or 16 inches from the floor but just covering the knee cap. (I can just hear the groans and believe me I agree with you.)

"Mohair" wool is big news for suits and coats.

Fur as a trimming will be found on clothes for all occasions.

Two very well-known designers will be missed from the fashion showings this season. Claire McCardell whose name is synonymous with "The American Look" passed away a few months ago and last Monday Maurice Rentner died in New York. Mr. Renter was credited with creating the shirtwaist dress and the soft evening shirt.

Helena Rubinstein has very recently returned from Europe and she is having open house for all the fashion press women at her Park Avenue home tomorrow afternoon. She has added several pictures to her fabulous art collection and she is most anxious to show them off.

Monday evening Ship 'n Shore blouse is hosting the gals to a theatre party to see Mary Healy in "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With."

Tuesday night is the fabulous Diamond Dinner in he Sert Room of the Waldorf Astoria. Uniformed guards are placed at each entrance during the show.

Wednesday evening Schiffli Lace and Embroidery Institute are taking the gang to see "Oh, Captain," at the Alvin Theatre and after the final curtain the press women are to join the cast for a midnight supper on stage.

Saturday afternoon everyone gathers at Grand Central Station for a trip to Wallingford, Connecticut, to wind up the week with cocktails and dinner and a visit to the Oakdale Music Theatre. Any blotches found on this column are tears of sorrow because I can not be there to join in the work and fun.

From the Branell fall, 1958, collection designed by Hilda Altmark, a dress and jacket costume of imported flowered silk brocade in salmon pink. The waist-high jacket, collared with demi-buff mink, conceals an Empire bodice. The simply styled mink hat is by Emme.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. John Blackstock, Hillside Avenue, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Margaret Ann, to Alan Robert Gill, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gill of Armstrong, B.C. Wedding will take place Saturday, July 26, at 8 p.m. in Centennial United Church. Rev. C. L. Streight will officiate. Miss Blackstock has asked Mrs. A. Wilson to be matron of honor, and her cousin, Miss Beryl Campbell, bridesmaid. Sgt. Ken Gill, RCAF, will be best man. (Photo of Mr. Gill by Jus-Rite.)

Shower Honors

Miss Patricia Scurrah was honored at a shower given by Mrs. Douglas Gosse at her home on Cornwall Street recently. Corsages were presented to the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. Stanley Scurrah, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. K. Emslie. A lace cloth covered the tea table which was centred with a cut-glass bowl of pink carnations flanked with tall candles in silver holders. Presiding at the head table were Mrs. C. Webb and Mrs. A. Archer. Guests included Mrs. A. Gait, Mrs. S. White, Mrs. G. Noon, Mrs. J. Birkenhead, Mrs. P. Andersen, Mrs. C. Bicknell, Mrs. R. Carter, Mrs. A. Rogers, Mrs. G. Denham, Mrs. A. Pass, Mrs. F. Stade, Mrs. A. Pass Jr., Mrs. A. Barry and the Misses Carolyn Scurrah, Sharon Webb, Maureen Webb, Joan Andersen, Eileen Archer, Carol Sturock, Delly Stade and Beverley Gillies.

Emotional Appeal Counts In Choice of Fabrics

NEW YORK (UPI)—There's more than meets the eye to the fabrics we buy.

Silk, for instance, is "sensuously and sexually exciting," says one well-known authority on why we purchase what we do.

Women select materials not only for coverage, but on the basis of emotional appeal, says Dr. Ernest Dichter, president of the Institute for Motivational Research, Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y.

Dichter says that each of the basic textiles creates a variety of psychological reaction. Writing in the current issue of a magazine for the textile trade, Dichter listed some of fabrics effect on us. He further expanded on his observations in an interview.

"Women especially are almost as conscious of the material they wear as they are of their own bodies," said Dichter. "Instinctively the woman feels that the material she wears, or its design, reveals her entire personality."

As Dichter has figured us out, we like silk not only because it is "sensuously and sexually exciting" but it is "personal, intimate and revealing," is the "standard of excellence for refinement," is a "cool, gracius luxury" and is "regal and exotic."

Cotton, Dichter said, is "friendly without effusiveness or ostentation," indicates "innocence with a promise of underlying sexuality," is "cool and calm with a promise of hidden inner warmth," and is "clean and pure."

Wool is "masculine—strong, rugged, protecting, flexible and sexually attractive," its tough exterior implies "a warm, tender life beneath the surface," it is "sedate, conservative, cultured" and represents a "respectable group life."

Linen, he said, has "the appeal of elegance."

What about the synthetics—the nylons, dacrons and orlons? Dichter said that "as might be expected, they lack this type of cultural and sensory appeal" although they may acquire it as we "become more familiar with them."

"But today I think perhaps the chief appeal . . . is their helpfulness for the housewife actually looks forward to the ease of care they promise," he said.

Dichter said today's shopper looks for a "synthesis of yesterday and tomorrow;" that the women look for convenience of the new combined with the "time-honored esthetic values" of the old.

This is why, he said, that "nylon tablecloths with the effect of organdy" are popular and also why a woman will use a cake mix, but add her own "creative touch in the form of an egg."

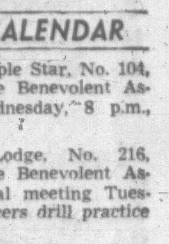
'KERSPLAAASH'



Maurice Humber

At Yellow Point . . . we just spent a few days. Had a wonderful time . . . & a lazy-laze; Just drove the car under the trees, And left it there, for the sea & the breeze. The sun shone down, my skin to smote, As in my shorts . . . I sat on the float, Watching those kids, take off on the skiis, Arms held high . . . & bent in the knees. 'Twas a summer-sight, as around they slewed, Towed by a "crew" in a giaaant Evinrude, And rude it was, in fact 'twas a brute, Some 35 horses under it's snoot. Our daughters took-off, & seemed to soar, But the G.F. sed, "No," & sat by the shore. Most everyone tried to get in the race, One doll kept smacking flat on her face. But everyone laughed out there in the sun. "YOU try . . . Daddy . . . get in the fun. "Y-e-a-h . . . c'mon Dad . . . don't be chicken." Sumpthin' told me . . . I was in fer a lickin'.) I looked at the G.F., got the family frown, So I stept in the skiis, & sat me down. That hawser un-coiled in front of my nose, I was so scared . . . I guess I froze. "He" opened the throttle. I last saw my daughter, As I spread-eagled with a belly-full of water. I gasped to the surface, in quite some alarm,

'Cause "he'd" yanked out a muscle in my right arm. They hoisted me back up on the float, As "Evin" fast-circled, back in his boat. The G.F. . . . came aboard in a well-mannered rage, "That outa teach you, "she earfulled, "TO ACT YOUR AGE."

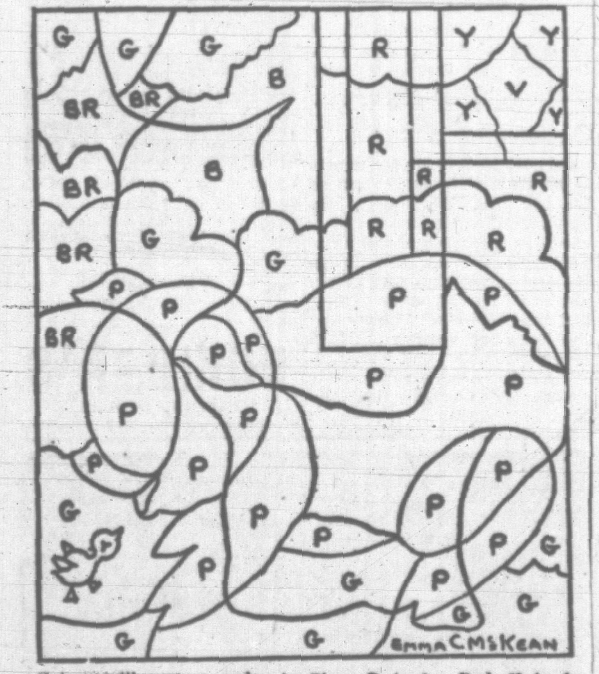
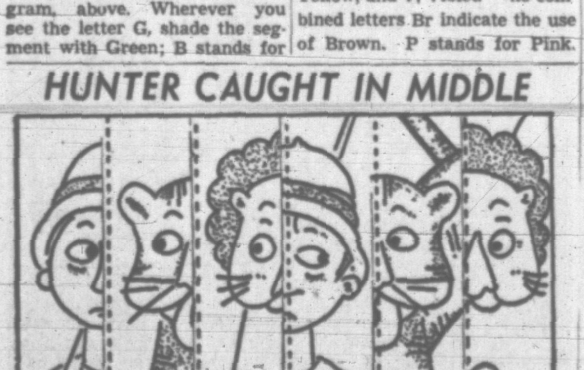
COLOR MAGIC



Colors will restore order to the jumbled lines of the diagram, above. Wherever you see the letter G, shade the segment with Green; B stands for Blue; R is for Red, Y is for Yellow, and V, Violet. The combined letters Br indicate the use of Brown. P stands for Pink.

HUNTER CAUGHT IN MIDDLE



Sandwiched between two ferocious jungle animals, above, is a big game hunter. By making the proper folds you can see each of the figures—hunter and animals—individually.

LETTER ENIGMA

My first is in walk, and not in run.
My second is in bullet, but not in gun.
My third is in apple and not in core,
My fourth is in fifth, but not in four.
My fifth is in handkerchief, but not in rag,
My sixth is in horse, never in nag.
My seventh you'll find in shirt and not in gown.
For uncertainty I claim great renown.

Do you know what I am?

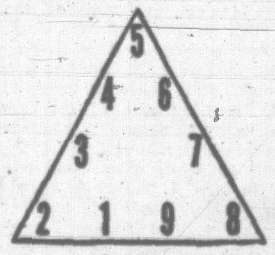
90-SECOND TEST



Try solving this problem in your mind within 90 seconds.

By transposing two couples of digits on opposite sides of the triangle above, the sums of the sides become equal. Also the sums of the squares of the numbers on each side. What four digits must be transposed

Answer: The pairs transposed are nine and three, and seven and one.

ASTRONOMER'S TEST

The word astronomers can be anagrammed into a phrase having a similar meaning: moonstarers. Can you antigram it, that is, transpose it into a phrase of opposite meaning?

Solution: One way is "No more stars."

NUMEROLOGY TEST

1—Write four nines so they will equal 100.

2—Make a cross consisting of the figures 1 to 9 so that the vertical column and the horizontal line will both total the same amount.

3—Write an even number, using only odd digits.

Answer: 1—99 9/9; 2—horizontal 23958; vertical 41976; 3—3 3/3 or 5 5/5; 4—22 plus 2 equals 24.

NO HALF MEASURES HERE

Two water tumblers are exactly the same size, as shown in the drawing at right. One is empty, and the other three-fourths full. You are asked to measure half a tumbler of water without using any other vessel, adding any water, or pouring any water away. Can you devise some simple means of measuring the quantity stated?

Remember, one tumbler is now three-fourths full; the other is empty. You are asked to measure out exactly half a glassful.

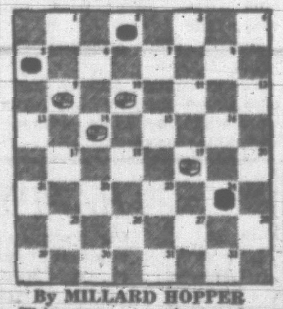
Answer: Simply drop some pebbles into the glass containing water until the water reaches the rim. Then pour the water from this glass into the other until the level in each is the same. There will then be a half glass of water in what was previously the empty tumbler.

IT'S YOUR MOVE



By MILLARD HOPPER

This game terminates in a race across the board! It's White's turn, moving up the board, of course. White wins in eight moves. See if you can complete the game as indicated.

Solution: White 10-6, Black 24-15, White 14-10, Black 5-14, White 6-1, Black 11-16, White 18-23, Black 16-20, White 17-14, Black 7-11, White 14-18, Black 11-16, White 19-24, Black 16-20, White 23-27.

BRIDGE LESSON

By Oswald Jacoby

If West had opened a diamond there would be no article. At some stage or other in the play East would obtain the lead and play the queen of clubs whereupon it would have been curtains for South.

Fortunately for South, West looked over his hand carefully and led a trump. Now South pulled trumps with a second trump lead and played the ace and jack of hearts from dummy. East played low and South discarded a club instead of ruffing.

Now West shifted to a diamond, but it was too late. South went right up with dummy's ace and led the 10 of hearts. East ducked quickly; there was no reason to cover and South simply discarded a second club. Now all he had to lose was one club and one diamond and the contract wheeled in.

South would have looked mighty foolish if West held the king-queen of hearts and East the ace of clubs. Also, if East held the ace of clubs the play would have made no difference; the hand would have been a cinch on any line of play.

But look what South had in his favor on his play. In the first place West would probably have led a heart if he held the king and queen; in the second place the odds are three to one against two out of two cards appearing in a specific hand.

The Gold-Plated Recession

Of the past year started out with dire predictions by some prophets of gloom but on looking around things haven't turned out so bad. Wages, prices of goods, and real estate hasn't turned down. In fact if you took time to compare notes, closely you will find land prices and selling prices of homes are both higher. Doesn't this indicate reason enough to secure and anchor your future in good real estate as an opportunity to maintain your equity in a rising market. Oddly enough, the price of lumber, plywood, and many other building materials are priced lower than a year ago. While we cannot take credit for this situation we would point out the opportune time to build or remodel. There are many good homes today where value can be increased with additions—extensions and renovations—there's many a roomy attic can be made useful with a dormer window. Remember for every $100 spent on home improvements you add $300 to your resale price.

Building Materials

Sure, only 40% of your completed cost and for home improvements you can buy on monthly budget terms, 2 years to pay

Hard to Sleep

Upstairs these warm nights, wondering when the temperature will drop; well you can do something about it in 99% of present homes, there's insulation for every purpose—blanket-rolls or pouring type.

AFTER YOU, HORSE!

Carts ought to come AFTER horses. We all know that — But some people forget it! They want a serviceable car, yet they charge around from lot to lot, looking only at price tags. They learn nothing about the dealer until after the sale. Sometimes they're sorry. Why not put first things first? Find out about your dealer—his reputation, how long he's been at it, whether he's a "quick-sale artist" or a man who is anxious to satisfy you. Better still—find out about us here at

CARROLL RIGHTER'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

MONDAY, JULY 14, 1958

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—You are in tune with your star and should be feeling wonderfully energetic, so that you can easily accomplish a great deal. Have conferences, work, run errands. Make this a banner day! And be sure to put all your files in order.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Private matters you feel are what you should handle exclusively today. That is well and good provided you are very sensible about them, especially where money is concerned. And don't just lose time in conversation only.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—You have the ways and means today to contact those powerful personages you can surely swing your way and get their support for your earlier success in life. But be brief and dynamic. P.M. spend a delightfully romantic evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)—You are most anxious to get greater prestige, popularity, credit. This can be accomplished if you make it your business to see the right personages and ask for advice privately. But be sure to act upon plans formulated.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Take advantage of the fine aspects today by stepping out of dull-doldrum existence and going to some fine place with good atmosphere with an interesting and clever friend. Something very good will come of it. P.M. be gay and joyous.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Think in broad terms today, and be sure to contact those persons who can give you a boost upward in your specific fields. Change your attitude to a positive and optimistic one. Face life bravely and it is wonderful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Temperamental but most clever pal today gives you advice that you should be clever enough to follow. Drive out to some nice spot and talk things over in most friendly and happy fashion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—A good idea today to look into such matters as Social Security, bonds, investments, etc., to see how efficiently they function with present position you are in. Converse with fellow worker, too, or some expert on such affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—A clear thinking associate truly has the solutions to many of the problems that face you now, so give both ears to what he or she has to suggest. Later, relax at some favorite kind of fun, sports, theatre, driving, etc.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—A family tie is the person to consult today if you would make your daily life less monotonous and difficult. And be certain to help him or her in some way, also, where it is best appreciated. Be very thoughtful and kind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Devote any free time stylishly studying the latest trends in fashion, beauty, etc., that will give you more savoir faire, ease. Later, bring your special gifts to the attention of right persons. P.M. be happy at home with kin.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Much of this day should be spent attending to fundamental matters, and being sure you are working along harmoniously with all others vital to your life. Be considerate, practical and, above all things, fair. Then you really progress.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN MONDAY . . .

The delightful child born Monday quickly shows marks of real genius coupled with an intriguing air of humility which is very fascinating. But take care you do not smother him or her with too much love too long, or your offspring will not gain the greatest attribute in life—independence. The horoscope speaks loudly of the pioneer in music, sciences, and particularly in medicine.

Business as Usual At Empress Hotel

CYRIL CHAPMAN

Empress Hotel manager Cyril Chapman today branded a report that the hotel had been arbitrarily cleared of guests for Princess Margaret's visit as "untrue."

"We have about 500 guests in today," he said. Besides permanent residents, Mr. Chapman said, the hotel was about one-third full with tourists "which is about the usual number this year."

Another block of close to 40 rooms was reserved for early-arriving delegates to the Philippine Mahogany Association to be held Monday to Thursday. The association of businessmen is in the mahogany trade with the Philippines.

The convention space was booked two years ago "and we certainly couldn't cancel it now," said Mr. Chapman.

"About the only large block of rooms set aside are 200 for the guests that will attend the annual garden party at Government House Monday," he said.

"Normally we would reserve about 100 but this year the number was doubled because the Princess will be at the party and we expect more people to come from out of town."

A number of rooms also have been set aside for the convenience of oficials who will be attending various functions connected with the visit.

Farris Refuses Any Retraction

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator J. W. deB. Farris of B.C. said today he has nothing to retract in a Senate statement in which he referred to Commons member Douglas Jung as "this Chinaman."

Senator Farris said in a statement that Mr. Jung himself, in a Paris interview, had referred to himself as Chinese.

"What is the difference?" the senator said. "I would have referred to any person of any other race as I did about Mr. Jung."

CLAIMED BIAS

Mr. Jung, Vancouver lawyer, and first Commons member of Chinese extraction, was quoted in Paris this week as saying that Canadian delegations to Russia are hand-picked and biased while Russian delegations to Canada often cannot see the people or places they wish to see.

In the Commons Friday Liberal leader Pearson — to whose party Senator Farris belongs — tried to come to the defence of Mr. Jung but was ruled out of order. Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated disapproval.

Today, the senator said he did not consider Mr. Pearson was correct in stating in the Commons that "every member would read the senator's remarks with regret and disapproval."

DIVERTED ATTENTION

He said he regretted that his remarks had diverted attention from "really serious" statements attributed to Mr. Jung.

He said he regarded the Commons member's statements as most unfair to Canada.

"Mr. Jung," he said, "purporting to speak as a Canadian representative attending an international assembly made the kind of charges about the Canadian government authorities, past and present, that Canadians have justifiably made against the Russians.

"In particular, he said that our youth delegates sent to Russia by Canada and the United States are primed by their governments to be biased beforehand against Russia, and that Russian visitors to Canada never got the chance to see the places and meet the people they would like to see and meet.

IRON CURTAIN

"In effect, he suggests a Canadian-American iron curtain. He is saying that as between Russia and the American nations it is a case of the pot calling the kettle black, without indicating which is the pot and which the kettle. I do not question the loyalty of the Chinese citizens of Canada or the citizenship rights of any Canadian of whatever race.

"I do not consider that the fact that China is a communist nation and closely affiliated with Russia is an issue in this discussion and in my opinion should not reflect on the loyalty of our Chinese citizens. What I was driving at in my remarks in the Senate was to question the right of any person to speak for Canada in a way seriously reflecting on the conduct of our Canadian authorities in relation to Russia. If Mr. Jung was correctly reported and unless he has real proof of his assertions, he is unworthy of the respect and confidence the Canadian people have placed in him."

Boat Mishap Kills City Sportsman

Gerald "Slim" Udal, 50, well-known Victoria sportsman, was killed instantly June 17 in a freak boating accident at Waterton Park in Alberta, it was learned here today.

Mr. Udal, who worked here as a carpenter in the winter and operated a camp at the park in the summer, was testing a new racing outboard when the flywheel broke and a fragment struck his head.

Mr. Udal was born in Maple Creek, Sask., and spent most of his life at the park. When war broke out he worked on air force stations in Alberta, and in 1943 came to Victoria.

He had been a member of the Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association for four years, and acted as starter at regattas held while he was in the city.

He was even more active in Victoria Gun Club, having served several terms as president, including the present term. Prior to that time he was club field captain.

Surviving are the widow at home, 1650 Earlson Avenue, and brothers and sisters in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Canadian inter-city and rural bus systems carried 13,526,900 passengers in the first quarter of 1958, an 8.7 per cent drop.

. . . FORBES

warmth combined with a faint hint of shyness that immediately draws you to her.

From the centre of the bunch of petunias I could hear the "oh's" and "ah's" as women and children succumbed to this charm.

CENTENNIAL BLUE

Dress and matching topcoat were of silk shantung in a color that we, in British Columbia, would certainly call centennial blue.

The dress was in the new directoire style. Waistline, high under the bodice, was outlined with a tailored bow and the very short full skirt reached only a little below the knees.

The full-length coat had bracelet sleeves and the face-framing collar was finished with quite a large bow at the back.

Her tiny hat of blue iridescent feathers was tight fitting. Her white gloves reached to the cuffs of her coat. Shoes were in matching blue with closed toes and stiletto heels. Her stockings appeared to be a smoky blue and with seams. She wore pearl necklace and diamond bracelet and earrings and carried a large white purse.

"SO TINY"

"She is so tiny" were words repeated over and over again after the Princess had gone to her suite in the hotel.

"Why, she didn't come up to my nose," said Miss Lola Whisman of Columbus, Ind., "and I'm only five foot two inches tall."

Miss Whisman, with many other guests in the Empress, had established her position in a chair close to the main doorway through which the Princess entered.

"REAL DOLL"

"We did not know that we were to be in the hotel at the same time as the Princess Margaret until we got to Seattle," she said. "We certainly timed it just right!"

Her traveling companion, Miss Bernice Bishop added: "I wouldn't have missed it for anything. She is truly a fairy tale Princess."

. . . HOTEL

the milling crowd closed ranks suddenly as the spectators strained to have their first look at the Princess.

A few women broke under the tension and dabbed at their eyes, fathers quickly hoisted their children to their shoulders, several waved small Union Jacks and everyone cheered with all their might as the Princess walked slowly between the ranks of RCN petty officers lining the walk.

She turned and waved to the crowd several times as the royal party proceeded towards the veranda steps flanked by two red-coated RCMP officers.

NO SIGN OF FATIGUE

Empress manager Cyril Chapman greeted the princess on the veranda.

But before she crossed the threshold, the princess walked back a few steps and waved to both sides of the crowd-filled lawns at the entrance.

As she stepped through the door, an RCN party on the roof of the hotel hoisted the royal standard under the sunny sky.

Inside, the Princess proceeded through a police-cleared aisle in the thronged lobby as hotel guests clapped fervently. The royal party went through the Crystal Ballroom entrance to the vice-regal suite on the first floor of the north wing.

SHOUTING RISES

Led by a leather-lunged minister from Sacramento, Calif., the crowd broke into dozens of "We Want Margaret" chants as the petty officer guard formed a human barricade in front of the steps to prevent the crowd from surging into the hotel.

Twenty-seven-year-old Dr. Everett Johnson, a field representative for the Sacramento Revival Centre, led the assembly time and again in it's thunderous chanting.

"And we won't stop until we see her," he shouted at one point with the immediate endorsement of the crowd.

REST IN SUITE

Inside the roars of the crowd were muted to a whisper by the thick walls of the hotel, as the Princess, keeping to a tight schedule, remained in her suite for a respite from almost 24 hours of travel.

Undaunted, the crowd, led by Dr. Johnson, swept from the main entrance to the north wing where it stood, still chanting for the Princess, about 150 feet from the vice-regal suite.

The memorable arrival was caught on thousands of strips of film as hundreds of the spectators trained everything from box cameras to movie films on the Princess during her walk to the hotel.

Crowds began gathering along the sunlit Causeway and Empress Hotel lawns as early as 9 a.m. Hundreds were jammed against the Causeway wall with scores mounting it to sit and stand.

As some began leaving at 11.30 a.m., an RCMP motorcycle-escorted convoy of three trucks bearing two tons of Royal baggage drew up to the hotel with sirens screaming.

All Will Hear City's Greeting For Margaret

Two public address speakers have been mounted atop city hall to ensure spectators will hear every word of the civic greeting to Princess Margaret Monday.

A band will entertian the crowd starting at 9.30 a.m.

A 12-man guard of honor, drawn from war veterans on Greater Victoria civic staffs, will form up in front of the royal dais to be raised by the city hall steps. Mayor and Mrs. Percy Scurrah will await the arrival of the princess at the foot of the platform steps.

Princess Margaret's car will draw up at 10.15 a.m. As she descends from the car, the band will begin "God Save the Queen."

The mayor and his wife will greet the princess and the royal party will ascend the platform with the mayor on the princess' left and the entourage following.

Other civic leaders will be ranged behind them waiting presentation.

Mayor Scurrah will ask the princess' permission for his seven-year-old granddaughter, Deborah Jennings, to present a bouquet.

After the presentation, the mayor will present a gold centennial medal to the princess on behalf of the Greater Victoria centennial committee.

Following the medal presentation, the mayor will present to Princess Margaret: Acting Saanich Reeve and Mrs. George Austin, Oak Bay Reeve and Mrs. Fred Norris, Esquimalt Reeve and Mrs. A. C. Wurtele, Central Saanich Reeve and Mrs. Rupert Brown, and Sidney village council chairman Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Hemmings.

The men will bow and their wives will curtsey.

The mayor then will invite the princess to sign a special page in the city's visitors' book which will be placed on a table used at similar ceremonies during previous royal visits. A royal blue scarf with gold fringe will cover the table.

He will hand the princess a pen reserved for royalty for the signing and will apply a blotter on her signature. Members of the princess' party will sign on the following page.

When the princess is ready, the party will descend from the platform in the same order as it ascended. Mayor and Mrs. Scurrah will bid the princess farewell at the roadway while special guests remain a step or two behind.

The band will strike up during the farewell. Special guests will return to the dais to sign the visitors' book after the royal party departs for the legislative buildings.

All council members and their wives will view the ceremony from an adjoining platform.

Low Hits at Press

VANCOUVER (CP) — Social Credit Leader Solon Low Friday night accused the press of lying and twisting the truth to perpetuate the present financial system.

"The press lives off the avails of destitution. They engender bitterness and hatred."

He said Social Credit is exposing "the racket to which these people are a party. When anyone begins to expose the financial racket on which their special privilege rests that person becomes the object of vituperation and bitterness."

News Army Rivals Make Their Peace

By PETER LOUDON

A total of 250 professional probers, reporters and cameramen for the press of four nations, radio and television and newsreel crews, and an army of technicians, met in the Crystal Ballroom in summit peace talks.

The planning was intended to avoid hustle and jostle sometimes experienced in royal visits. Careful allocation of "spots" for newsmen and photographers is aimed at keeping paths clear for the royal party—and avoiding outbreak of open war among competing news services.

There were information and transportation desks, and mimeographed forms in profusion, including a directory for out-of-town "delegates."

These include men and women from such well-known agencies as Time and Life, Chicago Sun Times, Portland Oregonian, Magazine de Paris, Seattle Times, Movietone, the Mirror, Express and Herald, all of London; an alphabet of wire services—CP, UPI, BUP, AP and Reuters; Toronto's Star, Telegram, Globe and Mail and the CBC with a crew of up to 60.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

Safety First

SIDNEY REVIEW—During the summer season the loss of life by drowning reaches proportions which have caused considerable concern to many public bodies.

In this area some seasons bring a greater toll than others. During the past decade the columns of this newspaper have carried their own share of obituary notices arising from a waterfront tragedy.

While many are conforming to the legal requirements, only a small minority are carrying out the regulations to the letter. From time to time we observe small children aboard small boats wearing life jackets. This is a heartening sight, for it carries the assurance that, come what may, those children are destined to survive any eventuality.

Perhaps the law should be more demanding. It might save many from a watery grave if it were to read that all occupants of small boats be required to wear such preservers.

Let's Try Again

COWICHAN LEADER—The conscience of many British Columbians has been stirred by the plight of Doukhobor families deprived of their children during the normal summer holidays.

What justification there was for keeping the children compulsorily in boarding schools during the normal school term has ceased with the arrival of the summer months.

The Doukhobors have been a nuisance for so long now—a fraction of them only—and government has tried so many cures and measures that there is a real danger of the people of B.C. no longer considering the problem as theirs.

The government after all is impersonal. True, but, the government is also us and what it does is done in our name. Let's try again, Mr. Premier!

Impound

COMOX DISTRICT FREE PRESS—For some time now this newspaper, speaking out against traffic violations which cause injury, death and damage, has advocated suspension of licences as a means of curtailing stupid driving practices.

But it seems that was not enough.

Many suspensions of driving privileges have been ordered but it seems that this punishment is punishment in name only. More and more do we read of people being fined for driving while their suspensions are in force.

It would seem that impounding the vehicle should now be tried and, if the law does not permit it, then it is time provisions were made so that a person whose licence is suspended is relieved of temptation to further break the law by having his vehicle impounded during the term of the suspension.

INTERNATIONAL RACE

Big Welcome Planned By Nanaimo for Boats

NANAIMO (CP)—More than 100 power boats in five different classes will be welcomed here Sunday by the Nanaimo Yacht Club at the finish of the annual predicted log race of the International Power Boat Association.

The race started at Olympia, Wash., today, and there will be an overnight "timeout" tonight at Roche Harbor on San Juan Island en route.

An over-all champion will be crowned along with winners in each of the five classes, ranging from 25-footers to sea-going yachts of 100 feet.

This year a trophy donated by Dr. Don McKechnie, of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, will be awarded the winning Canadian boat.

First boats are expected to arrive around 3.30 p.m. Sunday and presentation of trophies will take place about 9 p.m. Commodore Harold E. Snider of the Nanaimo Yacht Club heads the welcoming committee. Provincial Recreation Minister Earle Westwood, Mayor Pete Maffeo, and other officials will attend the ceremonies.

The predicted log race winner will be the skipper who most accurately predicts his running time for the 190 nautical miles from Olympia.

In the 35-year period ending December, 1957, the population of Canada increased by 83 per cent. In the same period daily newspaper circulation increased by 134 per cent.

Centennial Ball Park Dedicated

CROFTON—This community's centennial project, a baseball park and playground, has been completed and officially dedicated.

The park, located adjacent to the community hall, was built almost entirely by volunteer labor. The Crofton centennial committee, headed by William Davis, received a grant of $400 towards the project from the North Cowichan committee, but had to raise another $1,000 to complete the project.

At the present time the park consists of a good baseball diamond and a large playground area. Future development on the site is planned. There is ample room for one more full-size baseball diamond and other recreational facilities.

Dedication ceremonies were conducted by Rev. Allan Howes. Speakers included Councillor—and long-time Crofton resident—Stan Dyke and Reeve C. A. P. Murison of North Cowichan.

Blood Donor Clinic At Chemainus Tuesday

CHEMAINUS — The annual Red Cross blood donor clinic will be held in the Canadian Legion Hall here Tuesday, from 1 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 9 p.m.

The Hospital Auxiliary, directed by Mrs. M. Groner, president, will have charge of the annual clinic.

The auxiliary will provide transportation and baby sitting services for those who require them in order to attend the clinic.

Saanich School Loan Rejected by Councils

SIDNEY — Central Saanich municipal council and Sidney village commission have refused endorsation of a Saanich School District 63 requisition for capital expenditures of $29,512.

The money would be borrowed by the board. Under terms of the new Public Schools Act such expenditures can only be made with the prior approval of the municipalities.

Reeve H. Rupert Brown of Central Saanich said turning down the request was fulfilling the council's duty to ratepayers.

"I don't like the idea of raising money without reference to the people," Reeve Brown said. "This is the thin end of the wedge, and soon money will be raised without the ratepayers having any voice."

Sidney village commission tabled the resolution after Commissioner J. E. Bosher said the commission was being asked merely to "rubber stamp" the move.

"Greatest strides have been made in the arts and methods of mass communication, but the newspaper continues to be the bedrock of automotive advertising programs." — Rhys M. Sale, President, Ford Motor Company of Canada Ltd.

Vets' Parlor Fined $1,000

SIDNEY—Improper keeping of its visitors' register, despite warning, cost Sidney unit of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans of Canada a $1,000 fine in police court Friday.

The unit pleaded guilty. It was a first offence.

Cpl. William Stanton, RCMP prosecutor, said the unit had been warned, but that "proper action was not taken to remedy the situation."

Between May 17 and June 17, he said, there had been 208 contraventions of the act, or instances of non-members being admitted to the club's beverage room without sponsorship.

MINOR OFFENCE

The offence was a minor one, he said, but had occurred so many times that action had to be taken.

Magistrate F. J. Baker said the fine was "drastic," but that it was the minimum under the act, "and that is all I can do."

He said that if he was approached by the Liquor Control Board, he would recommend that the club's operation not be suspended.

Youth Fined $30

CUMBERLAND (CP) — A 20-year-old Union Bay youth was fined $30 Wednesday and had his driver's licence suspended for three months because of a May 21 accident in which his closest friend was fatally injured.

Police said Richard Ward, charged with driving without due care, lost control of his car which sheered off a telephone pole and two fence posts in the accident.

Two other persons also were injured and property damage was $1,200, they said.

Ward's friend, Doug Campbell, also of Union Bay, died as a result of the mishap.

Queen Advised To Stay in Bed

LONDON (Reuters) — The Queen, suffering since Tuesday from acute catarrhal sinusitis, is better but her temperature is still not normal, it was learned at Buckingham Palace tonight. Her three doctors have advised her to remain in bed.

U.S. Wins Doubles

TORONTO (CP)—The United States today clinched its Davis Cup round against Canada by winning the doubles 6-1, 13-11, 6-4.

B.C. Woman Killed

YALE, B.C. (CP)—A woman was killed and a man seriously injured Friday night when the motorcycle they were riding crashed on the Fraser Canyon Highway one mile north of Yale. Dead is Mrs. Joan Elizabeth Graves, 21, of Spuzzum, B.C.

Cyprus Bus Ambushed

NICOSIA (UPI) — Greek gunmen ambushed a bus carrying Turkish Cypriots to work today and killed five to send tension on the terror-ridden island of Cyprus to an all-time high.

Two Perish in Fire

PITT MEADOWS, B.C. (CP)—An elderly Pitt Meadows man and his eight-year-old grandson died early today apparently attempting to save each other from the grandfather's burning house.

Arrival Sidelights

"Isn't she tiny?" he exclaimed.

Many spectators said the Princess was smaller than they expected from her newspaper photographs.

A distinguished 83-year-old Boer War veteran stood on Douglas Street today and hoped the Princess would notice him.

Many more witnessed the 1951 visit of Queen Elizabeth, then a princess, with Prince Philip.

Meticulous planning never eliminates that last-minute hitch that all travellers—including royalty—undergo.

Proving it was the buzz of busy telephones this morning as officials tried to make new arrangements for Princess Margaret's hairdresser.

She found that all the electrical outlets in the Empress Hotel were wired for direct current power—and all her equipment was built for alternating current.

Press representatives arrived at the airport at 8.45 to find many eager persons already lined up near the TCA building. The RCN guard of honor stood at ease nearby.

B.C.'s Royal Guest

Throngs Line Royal Route In Greeting

By PETE LOUDON

British Columbia's welcome to Princess Margaret began as an awed silence at Patricia Bay airport, then grew to a crescendo of emotion as the royal party neared the Empress Hotel.

A crowd of 3,000 clapped, waved and cheered at the hotel as the Princess arrived. Dozens of "We Want Margaret" chants continued to break out for over three-quarters of an hour after the Princess had disappeared into the building.

The airport ceremonies were formal and restrained. Then, the welcome by the people—the easy, natural, neighborly, smiling, friendly welcome—dispelled the stiffness of officialdom and protocol.

As the royal motorcade travelled south to the city, people began to appear in twos, threes, dozens, scores, hundreds and finally in their thousands.

Victoria proved its affection.

Airport Crowd Kept at Distance

The royal plane, an RCAF C5, touched down on schedule, sharp at 10 a.m. at the airport. Victoria had observed the plea of the royal tour organizers to "stay away from the airport" to avoid traffic tangles.

The crowd of 700 mainly came from Sidney and North Saanich. It was enclosed behind a barrier 100 yards from the debarkation point. A group of Girl Guides and Brownies was allowed closer.

More obvious than the crowd were the dignitaries, the RCN royal honor guard, the band, and the carefully segregated pockets of reporters and photographers.

The official welcome scene was a small busy island on the sun-swept tarmac, so far from the people the initial welcome seemed to lack enthusiasm.

The guns spoke up as the plane, a silver and red, four-motored luxury craft, touched its wheels to the ground.

Fifth Independent B.C. Medium Battery (Militia) of Victoria, touched off a 21-gun royal salute, using four six-pounders — a barrage which must have shaken the Malahat backdrop.

First Greeting by Gen. Pearkes

Canadian Defence Minister Maj.-Gen. George R. Pearkes, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, was first to greet her, on behalf of the government of Canada.

She has been familiar to many through pictures during her 27 years. Now they were to see "what she really looks like."

They saw a small and charming girl, who as a veteran reporter stated, "Carries herself with the regal dignity of her mother."

She was poised and smiled gently as Mrs. Pearkes was presented.

A mild breeze stirred the folds of her "modified bell skirt and trapeze coat"—quotes from a fashion expert—as she passed along the receiving line which welcomed her to Canada.

"Royal guard of honor, royal salute, present arms," bellowed the officer of the 100-man honor guard of HMCS Naden.

Following the royal salute, as the rifle butts crashed together on the pavement, the Guides and Brownies released the tension of the crowd with a Guide cheer.

The officer of the guard, sword erect, saluted and requested the Princess inspect the guard. The band played Greensleeves, as the Princess walked slowly between the ranks. The shortest man towered over her.

Lieutenant-Governor Ross escorted Princess Margaret to a black convertible bearing a coat of arms licence plate. The royal party, including ladies-in-waiting and other court officials, entered other cars. A 12-car caravan then began the journey to Victoria.

WAVES AND SMILES

The Princess waved and smiled at the crowd as the cars passed through the airport gates. There were hundreds more spectators waiting to greet her as the cars reached the Patricia Bay Highway.

Wisely, they had reasoned they would have a closer glimpse of the Princess as she passed by. There were sprinkles of waving people all along the highway. The caravan slowed for a crowd at Mount Newton Cross Road and at other crossings.

A group of Indians appeared

PRINCESS AT EMPRESS

Privileged Peep Through Petunia

By ELIZABETH FORBES, Times Women's Editor

A privileged position I was told. Only two newspaper people accredited to it.

The moment I stepped out on the tiled floor, however, I was greeted by a handsome RCMP sergeant who looked sternly at me and said: "You will stand here behind this flower box. You will look through the flowers. Then if the Princess does look up she will think that white hat of yours is just another blossom."

You simply don't argue with the police. I tucked myself in behind the flower box.

With my nose in a petunia I saw Princess Margaret, beloved sister of Her Majesty the Queen, step daintily from an open car and walk with light, youthful step to the entrance of the hotel.

At her side was His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor. He held his tall silk hat in his hand and he smiled proudly and with hint of fatherly benevolence at the gracious young Princess.

Shouts of welcome rose from the crowd packed eight deep along the walk to the hotel entrance and around the lawn. Faintly in the distance could be heard the welcoming peal of Christ Church Cathedral bells.

As she walked toward the

She Will Worship 'Close' to Family

When Princess Margaret kneels to pray in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday morning, she will be worshipping in a church with many close and warm family affiliations.

A few feet in front of her pew is a wrought-iron railing. The Princess' mother and father, the late King George, and the present Queen Mother, were married at this railing, which was later sent to Victoria.

BY JOHN MIKA

The royal standard waved proudly in the Victoria breeze as it rose to the top of the Empress Hotel flagstaff when Princess Margaret stepped over the threshold at 10.54 a.m. today.

The cheering and clapping of 2,500 excited persons that rapidly swelled to 3,000 in seconds rang up and down the jam-packed Causeway as the Princess arrived.

The solid mass of people—from the old to the very young—sent out dozens of "We want Margaret" chants against the tall walls of the hotel for more than three-quarters of an hour after the arrival.

Cheering was constant from the moment the buzz of the waiting crowd broke out into a crescendo of sound when the advance party of police motorcycle escorts roared up to the Government Street entrance of the hotel at 10.51 a.m.

Seconds later, the car — a black convertible—drew up and

PAT BAY RECEPTION LIKE FAMILY REUNION

'Isn't She Lovely!' On Everyone's Lips

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A slim, radiant figure in blue, with a bright smile for everyone, Princess Margaret entered Victoria via Patricia Bay Airport today as naturally as if she were visiting an English country town.

The reception, though formal and rehearsed down to the last detail, was so friendly the Princess might have been greeting old acquaintances when she shook hands with leading citizens of Canada, the province and city.

Her smile was sweet and unaffected and her big blue eyes, under a dainty blue cap, had the laughing expression for which they are famous.

'Isn't she lovely!" were the words on everyone's lips.

It was almost like a family reunion.

GOVERNOR BEAMS

Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, also in formal attire, was beaming happily as he assisted her into the sleek black open car that waited at the end of a long red carpet stretching from the big RCAF airliner.

Premier Bennett wore his customary wide grin and bowed low as the Princess was presented to him by the lieutenant-governor.

If she was weary after her long flight from England she showed no trace of it. She greeted each member of the welcoming party with equal enthusiasm and with friendly words of greeting.

First to greet the Princess was General Pearkes, representing the Canadian government, who then presented her to Mrs. Pearkes.

Lieut.-Gevernor Ross then introduced her in turn to Mrs. Ross, Premier and Mrs. Bennett, Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston and Mrs. Williston, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan and Mrs. Kiernan, deputy provincial secretary R.A. Pennington and Mrs. Pennington, and senior officers of the armed services.

COLORFUL SCENE

Occupying a prominent position on the airfield were the First Sidney Company of Guides and the First Sidney Brownie Pack who raised a cheer as the Princess stepped from the plane.

The Pantheon, a temple erected at Rome in 123 AD, has been called the best specimen of old Roman architecture.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

BY MICHAEL ROSE

Question: Do you intend to watch the naval review next Tuesday? If so, from where?

George Rice, 3568 Quadra:

"I shall be going out Royal Roads way and probably watch it from somewhere near Albert Head. Either that or take my own little boat out."

Rice

Oliver

Mrs. Irene Oliver, Latoria Road, Happy Valley:

"We live way out in the country and also have a big garden which is keeping us very busy nowadays so we won't be seeing it. I doubt whether we will be able to see it on television either unless they re-broadcast it after 9 p.m."

Roy Grimbleby, 866 Craigflower:

"I am afraid I won't be able to get out there, much as I'd like to as I have to work all day. Of course, we do have television here and I will be able to follow it that way."

Grimbleby

Worth

Mrs. Helen Worth, 330 John:

"I have to work all day so I won't be out there although I would certainly like to see the show. It seems to me that you could get a very good view from the Royal Roads lagoon spit."

Mrs. Maude Eison, 1058 Lodge:

"My husband used to be in the navy and if we can get a pass we hope to be able to watch everything from Rodd Hill. If we can't get a spot there we will probably try Albert Head."

Eison

Tronningsdal

Alfred Tronningsdal, 111 Gorge Road East:

"I think the whole thing is a complete waste f time. There are thousands of elderly people in Victoria without a decent roof over their heads. If the money spent on the review were used to provide good housing for them think of all the happy faces there would be."

400 SCOUTS TO LINE ROUTE

On Monday in front of Thunderbird Park and the Parliament Buildings, over 400 members of the Victoria District Boy Scouts Association will turn out for Princess Margaret's visit to Victoria.

Cubs, Scouts, Rovers and leaders form up in full uniform at Thunderbird Park at 10 a.m. They will then move over to the Parliament Buildings to line the approach roads to the buildings.

to welcome her near the East Saanich reserve. There were crowds at the Island View Beach cutoff and again at Elk Lake.

RURAL WELCOME

The rural welcome dispelled for visiting reporters, and perhaps for the Royal guest, all vintage beliefs of Victoria's decorum in matters of dress and manner.

The people turned out in sunsuits, pin-curlers, overalls, straw hats, bandanas, house dresses and shirtsleeves. Many carried flags, the only concession to the stateliness of the occasion.

It was a warm, "hi-neighbor," hello. One the Princess may recall through the trials of formal reception that lie ahead.

. . . SIDELIGHTS

Twelve minutes before the plane was due, a voiced boomed out "Oh-nine-four-eight." The band and guard then marched on the field. The welcoming dignitaries, stood almost 20 minutes on the tarmac.

* * *

Five teenagers from a girls' camp in the San Juan Islands, in blue romper-style sunsuits took up position with a pile of magazines on the steps of the Empress before 8 p.m. today. The American girls, like many of their parents, made more of the royal visit than many Canadians.

* * *

The roofs of the TCA and Department of Transport buildings sprouted a crop of cameras of all sizes and shapes long before the arrival of the royal plane. A poetic correspondent murmured about, ". . . a host of three-legged monsters, devouring the scene for digestion around the world."

* * *

There were Union Jacks, red ensigns and centennial flags draped from various points on main buildings at the airport. But the flag most honored, and carried closest to the Royal visitor, marched on and off the tarmac with a 100-man guard of honor, was the RCN's white ensign.

* * *

Driver of the Royal car on the journey from Pat Bay to the Empress Hotel was Petty Officer Robert A. McCallum, RCN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McCallum of Gordon Head.

He was picked from 12 navy drivers for smartness, deportment and driving efficiency.

* * *

The car was escorted by two RCMP outriders on motorcycles—Constable Ronald H. Davies of the University detachment and Constable Douglas Ashbee of Richmond detachment.

At Fountain Circle a ripple of applause went through the crowd, but the royal car passed too quickly for a noisy welcome to work up.

Young men were heard to murmur approval of the smiling princess with the golden tan, apparently preserved from her recent West Indies trip.

* * *

Vehicular traffic was held up only a limited time at cross streets along the main Douglas Street route.

Saanich police reported no problems as the procession sped along Patricia Bay Highway, slowing for groups of people at Sayward, Royal Oak and Glanford intersections.

* * *

Amongst the crowd in the middle of Hillside at Douglas were Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Tucker and the Joe White family, all of Los Angeles.

They arrived in Victoria Monday, were to leave earlier in the week, but stayed because the Princess was a "drawing card."

It was their first look at Canada, and British royalty, even though only a glance as the official cars whooshed by.

Inco Metals at work in Canada

The development of stainless steel has produced many remarkable changes in both the appearance and convenience of Canadian homes. Stainless steel sinks made with Inco Nickel are a good example. They not only brighten and beautify the kitchen, they make household tasks far easier. The manufacture of stainless steel sinks, using nickel supplied by Inco, has become a thriving industry in Canada, providing employment for many Canadians.

Stainless steel sinks made with INCO NICKEL help provide jobs in Canada

Ten years ago, hardly any homes in Canada had stainless steel sinks. But a few Canadian housewives tried the new sinks and thought they were wonderful —wouldn't stain or chip, were so easy to keep bright and clean, and best of all, glasses and dishes that were accidentally dropped didn't break as easily.

That was the beginning of a new and thriving Canadian industry. Today, most of the new homes being built in Canada have Canadian-made stainless steel sinks. And practically all of these sinks contain Inco Nickel.

Ore from the mines near Sudbury, Ontario, is milled, smelted and refined by Inco here in Canada. Refined nickel is sold to other Canadian companies to make stainless steel. This stainless steel goes to the Canadian firms that make the sinks. And Canadian builders install them in the homes.

These operations—from the time the ore is mined until the finished sink is installed—provide jobs for thousands of Canadian workmen. That's how Inco Nickel helps promote the growth and development of industry in Canada.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

MONDAY, JULY 14, 1958

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—You are in tune with your star and should be feeling wonderfully energetic, so that you can easily accomplish a great deal. Have conferences, work, run errands. Make this a banner day! And be sure to put all your files in order.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Private matters you feel are what you should handle exclusively today. That is well and good, provided you are very sensible about them, especially where money is concerned. And don't just lose time in conversation only.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—You have the ways and means today to contact those powerful personages you can surely swing your way and get their support for your earlier success in life. But be brief and dynamic. P.M. spend a delightfully romantic evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)—You are most anxious to get greater prestige, popularity, credit. This can be accomplished if you make it your business to see the right personages and ask for advice privately. But be sure to act upon plans formulated.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Take advantage of the fine aspects today by stepping out of dull-doldrum existence and going to some fine place with good atmosphere with an interesting and clever friend. Something very good will come of it. P.M. be gay and joyous.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Think in broad terms today, and be sure to contact those persons who can give you a boost upward in your specific fields. Change your attitude to a positive and optimistic one. Face life bravely and it is wonderful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Temperamental but most clever pal today gives you advice that you should be clever enough to follow. Drive out to some nice spot and talk things over in most friendly and happy fashion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—A good idea today to look into such matters as Social Security, bonds, investments, etc., to see how efficiently they function with present position you are in. Converse with fellow worker, too, or some expert on such affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—A clear thinking associate truly has the solutions to many of the problems that face you now, so give both ears to what he or she has to suggest. Later, relax at some favorite kind of fun, sports, theatre, driving, etc.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—A family tie is the person to consult today if you would make your daily life less monotonous and difficult. And be certain to help him or her in some way, also, where it is best appreciated. Be very thoughtful and kind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Devote any free time stylishly studying the latest trends in fashion, beauty, etc., that will give you more savoir faire, ease. Later, bring your special gifts to the attention of right persons. P.M. be happy at home with kin.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Much of this day should be spent attending to fundamental matters, and being sure you are working along harmoniously with all others vital to your life. Be considerate, practical and, above all things, fair. Then you really progress.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN MONDAY . . .

The delightful child born Monday quickly shows marks of real genius coupled with an intriguing air of humility which is very fascinating. But take care you do not smother him or her with too much love too long, or your offspring will not gain the greatest attribute in life—independence. The horoscope speaks loudly of the pioneer in music, sciences, and particularly in medicine.

Business as Usual At Empress Hotel

CYRIL CHAPMAN

Empress Hotel manager Cyril Chapman today branded a report that the hotel had been arbitrarily cleared of guests for Princess Margaret's visit as "untrue."

"We have about 500 guests in today," he said. Besides permanent residents, Mr. Chapman said, the hotel was about one-third full with tourists "which is about the usual number this year."

Another block of close to 40 rooms was reserved for early-arriving delegates to the Philippine Mahogany Association to be held Monday to Thursday. The association of businessmen is in the mahogany trade with the Philippines.

The convention space was booked two years ago "and we certainly couldn't cancel it now," said Mr. Chapman.

"About the only large block of rooms set aside are 200 for the guests that will attend the annual garden party at Government House Monday," he said.

"Normally we would reserve about 100 but this year the number was doubled because the Princess will be at the party and we expect more people to come from out of town."

A number of rooms also have been set aside for the convenience of oficials who will be attending various functions connected with the visit.

Farris Refuses Any Retraction

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator J. W. deB. Farris of B.C. said today he has nothing to retract in a Senate statement in which he referred to Commons member Douglas Jung as "this Chinaman."

Senator Farris said in a statement that Mr. Jung himself, in a Paris interview, had referred to himself as Chinese.

"What is the difference?" the senator said. "I would have referred to any person of any other race as I did about Mr. Jung."

CLAIMED BIAS

Mr. Jung, Vancouver lawyer, and first Commons member of Chinese extraction, was quoted in Paris this week as saying that Canadian delegations to Russia are hand-picked and biased while Russian delegations to Canada often cannot see the people or places they wish to see.

In the Commons Friday Liberal leader Pearson — to whose party Senator Farris belongs— tried to come to the defence of Mr. Jung but was ruled out of order. Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated disapproval.

Today, the senator said he did not consider Mr. Pearson was correct in stating in the Commons that "every member would read the senator's remarks with regret and disapproval."

DIVERTED ATTENTION

He said he regretted that his remarks had diverted attention from "really serious" statements attributed to Mr. Jung.

He said he regarded the Commons member's statements as most unfair to Canada.

"Mr. Jung," he said, "purporting to speak as a Canadian representative attending an international assembly made the kind of charges about the Canadian government authorities, past and present, that Canadians have justifiably made against the Russians.

"In particular, he said that our youth delegates sent to Russia by Canada and the United States are primed by their governments to be biased beforehand against Russia, and that Russian visitors to Canada never got the chance to see the places and meet the people they would like to see and meet.

"In effect, he suggests a Canadian-American iron curtain. He is saying that as between Russia and the American nations it is a case of the pot calling the kettle black, without indicating which is the pot and which the kettle. I do not question the loyalty of the Chinese citizens of Canada or the citizenship rights of any Canadian of whatever race.

"I do not consider that the fact that China is a communist nation and closely affiliated with Russia is an issue in this discussion and in my opinion should not reflect on the loyalty of our Chinese citizens. What I was driving at in my remarks in the Senate was to question the right of any person to speak for Canada in a way seriously reflecting on the conduct of our Canadian authorities in relation to Russia. If Mr. Jung was correctly reported and unless he has real proof of his assertions, he is unworthy of the respect and confidence the Canadian people have placed in him."

Boat Mishap Kills City Sportsman

Gerald "Slim" Udal, 50, well-known Victoria sportsman, was killed instantly June 17 in a freak boating accident at Waterton Park in Alberta, it was learned here today.

Mr. Udal, who worked here as a carpenter in the winter and operated a camp at the park in the summer, was testing a new racing outboard when the flywheel broke and a fragment struck his head.

Mr. Udal was born in Maple Creek, Sask., and spent most of his life at the park. When war broke out he worked on air force stations in Alberta, and in 1943 came to Victoria.

He had been a member of the Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association for four years, and acted as starter at regattas held while he was in the city.

He was even more active in Victoria Gun Club, having served several terms as president, including the present term. Prior to that time he was club field captain.

You've seen that smile on television and in the movies many times. But somehow in real life it takes on friendly warmth combined with a faint hint of shyness that immediately draws you to her.

From the centre of the bunch of petunias I could hear the "oh's" and "ah's" as women and children succumbed to this charm.

CENTENNIAL BLUE

Dress and matching topcoat were of silk shantung in a color that we, in British Columbia, would certainly call centennial blue.

The dress was in the new directoire style. Waistline, high under the bodice, was outlined with a tailored bow and the very short full skirt reached only a little below the knees.

The full-length coat had bracelet sleeves and the collar was finished with quite a large bow at the back.

Her tiny hat of blue iridescent feathers was tight fitting. Her white gloves reached to the cuffs of her coat. Shoes were in matching blue with closed toes and stiletto heels. Her stockings appeared to be a smoky blue and with seams. She wore pearl necklace and diamond bracelet and earrings and carried a large white purse.

"SO TINY"

"She is so tiny" were words repeated over and over again after the Princess had gone to her suite in the hotel.

"Why, she didn't come up to my nose," said Miss Lola Whisman of Columbus, Ind., "and I'm only five foot two inches tall."

Miss Whisman, with many other guests in the Empress, had established her position in a chair close to the main doorway through which the Princess entered.

"REAL DOLL"

"We did not know that we were to be in the hotel at the same time as the Princess Margaret until we got to Seattle," she said. "We certainly timed it just right!"

Her traveling companion, Miss Bernice Bishop added: "I wouldn't have missed it for anything. She is truly a fairy tale Princess."

the milling crowd closed ranks suddenly as the spectators strained to have their first look at the Princess.

A few women broke under the tension and dabbed at their eyes, fathers quickly hoisted their children to their shoulders, several waved small Union Jacks and everyone cheered with all their might as the Princess walked slowly between the ranks of RCN petty officers lining the walk.

She turned and waved to the crowd several times as the royal party proceeded towards the veranda steps flanked by two red-coated RCMP officers.

NO SIGN OF FATIGUE

Empress manager Cyril Chapman greeted the princess on the veranda.

But before she crossed the threshold, the princess walked back a few steps and waved to both sides of the crowd-filled lawns at the entrance.

As she stepped through the door, an RCN party on the roof of the hotel hoisted the royal standard under the sunny sky.

Inside, the Princess proceeded through a police-cleared aisle in the thronged lobby as hotel guests clapped fervently. The royal party went through the Crystal Ballroom entrance to the vice-regal suite on the first floor of the north wing.

SHOUTING RISES

Led by a leather-lunged minister from Sacramento, Calif., the crowd broke into dozens of "We Want Margaret" chants as the petty officer guard formed a human barricade in front of the steps to prevent the crowd from surging into the hotel.

Twenty-seven-year-old Dr. Everett Johnson, a field representative for the Sacramento Revival Centre, led the assembly time and again in it's thunderous chanting.

"And we won't stop until we see her," he shouted at one point with the immediate endorsement of the crowd.

REST IN SUITE

Inside the roars of the crowd were muted to a whisper by the thick walls of the hotel, as the Princess, keeping to a tight schedule, remained in her suite for a respite from almost 24 hours of travel.

Undaunted, the crowd, led by Dr. Johnson, swept from the main entrance to the north wing where it stood, still chanting for the Princess, about 150 feet from the vice-regal suite.

The memorable arrival was caught on thousands of strips of film as hundreds of the spectators trained everything from box cameras to movie films on the Princess during her walk to the hotel.

Crowds began gathering along the sunlit Causeway and Empress Hotel lawns as early as 9 a.m. Hundreds were jammed against the Causeway wall with scores mounting it to sit and stand.

As some began leaving at 11.30 a.m., an RCMP motorcycle-escorted convoy of three trucks bearing two tons of Royal baggage drew up to the hotel with sirens screaming.

All Will Hear City's Greeting For Margaret

Two public address speakers have been mounted atop city hall to ensure spectators will hear every word of the civic greeting to Princess Margaret Monday.

A band will entertian the crowd starting at 9.30 a.m.

A 12-man guard of honor, drawn from war veterans on Greater Victoria civic staffs, will form up in front of the royal dais to be raised by the city hall steps. Mayor and Mrs. Percy Scurrah will await the arrival of the princess at the foot of the platform steps.

Princess Margaret's car will draw up at 10.15 a.m. As she descends from the car, the band will begin "God Save the Queen."

The mayor and his wife will greet the princess and the royal party will ascend the platform with the mayor on the princess' left and the entourage following.

Other civic leaders will be ranged behind them waiting presentation.

Mayor Scurrah will ask the princess' permission for his seven-year-old granddaughter, Deborah Jennings, to present a bouquet.

After the presentation, the mayor will present a gold centennial medal to the princess on behalf of the Greater Victoria centennial committee.

Following the medal presentation, the mayor will present to Princess Margaret: Acting Saanich Reeve and Mrs. George Austin, Oak Bay Reeve and Mrs. Fred Norris, Esquimalt Reeve and Mrs. A. C. Wurtele, Central Saanich Reeve and Mrs. Rupert Brown, and Sidney village council chairman Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Hemmings.

The men will bow and their wives will curtsey.

The mayor then will invite the princess to sign a special page in the city's visitors' book which will be placed on a table used at similar ceremonies during previous royal visits. A royal blue scarf with gold fringe will cover the table.

He will hand the princess a pen reserved for royalty for the signing and will apply a blotter on her signature. Members of the princess' party will sign on the following page.

When the princess is ready, the party will descend from the platform in the same order as it ascended. Mayor and Mrs. Scurrah will bid the princess farewell at the roadway while special guests remain a step or two behind.

The band will strike up during the farewell. Special guests will return to the dais to sign the visitors' book after the royal party departs for the legislative buildings.

All council members and their wives will view the ceremony from an adjoining platform.

PLANE TRIP 'WONDERFUL'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chief pilot on the BOAC Bristol Britannia turbo-prop aircraft which brought Princess Margaret here from London today said the princess told him she had "a wonderful trip."

Capt. J. T. Percy, a veteran of Atlantic flying who captained the plane, said the princess sent for him near the end of the journey.

She told him she had rested well and that the Bristol was "a lovely plane."

FOR SMOOTH COVERAGE

News Army Rivals Make Their Peace

By PETER LOUDON

A total of 250 professional probers, reporters and cameramen for the press of four nations, radio and television and newsreel crews, and an army of technicians, met in the Crystal Ballroom in summit peace talks.

The planning was intended to avoid hustle and jostle sometimes experienced in royal visits. Careful allocation of "spots" for newsmen and photographers is aimed at keeping paths clear for the royal party—and avoiding outbreak of open war among competing news services.

Reporters who have sat in a thousand meetings, smiling smugly at the antics of convention politicians, put on their own show. A passerby could easily have mistaken the gathering for the fifth annual conference of Canadian Butter and Egg salesmen.

There were information and transportation desks, and mimeographed forms in profusion, including a directory for out-of-town "delegates."

These include men and women from such well-known agencies as Time and Life, Chicago Sun Times, Portland Oregonian, Magazine de Paris, Seattle Times, Movietone, the Mirror, Express and Herald, all of London; an alphabet of wire services—CP, UPI, BUP, AP and Reuters; Toronto's Star, Telegram, Globe and Mail and the CBC with a crew of up to 60.

Each is issued with a badge, white for reporter, red for photographer and yellow for technician. Each also has written credentials, issued under supervision of the RCMP.

These will identify the campaigners as the great coverage begins.

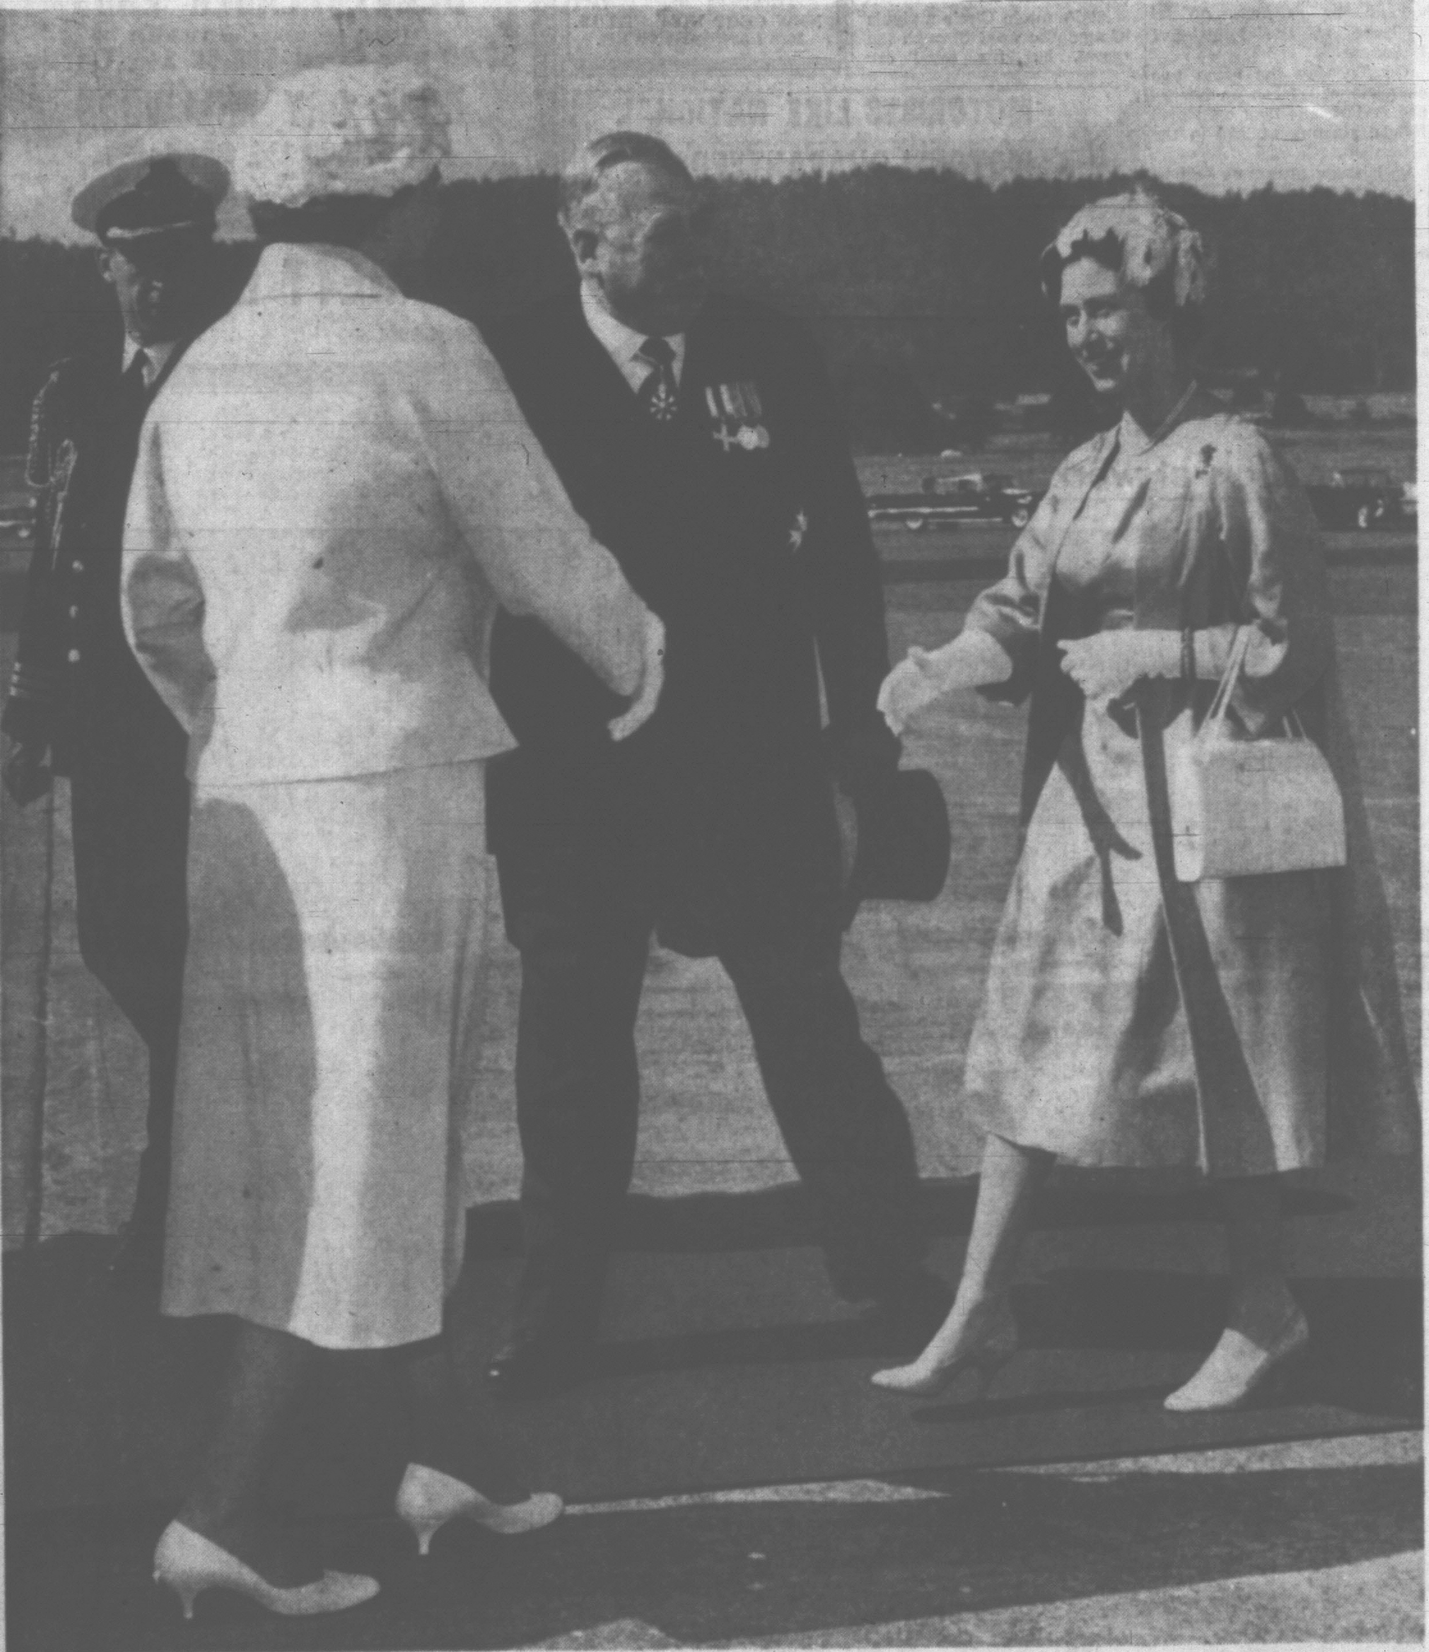
Princess Captures City's Heart



B.C.'s Royal Guest

Throngs Line Royal Route In Greeting

By PETE LOUDON

British Columbia's welcome to Princess Margaret began as an awed silence at Patricia Bay airport, then grew to a crescendo of emotion as the royal party neared the Empress Hotel.

A crowd of 3,000 clapped, waved and cheered at the hotel as the Princess arrived. Dozens of "We Want Margaret" chants continued to break out for over three-quarters of an hour after the Princess had disappeared into the building.

The airport ceremonies were formal and restrained. Then, the welcome by the people—the easy, natural, neighborly, smiling, friendly welcome—dispelled the stiffness of officialdom and protocol.

As the royal motorcade travelled south to the city, people began to appear in twos, threes, dozens, scores, hundreds and finally in their thousands.

Victoria proved its affection.

Airport Crowd Kept at Distance

The royal plane, an RCAF C5, touched down on schedule, sharp at 10 a.m. at the airport. Victoria had observed the plea of the royal tour organizers to "stay away from the airport" to avoid traffic tangles.

The crowd of 700 mainly came from Sidney and North Saanich. It was enclosed behind a barrier 100 yards from the debarkation point. A group of Girl Guides and Brownies was allowed closer.

More obvious than the crowd were the dignitaries, the RCN royal honor guard, the band, and the carefully segregated pockets of reporters and photographers.

The official welcome scene was a small busy island on the sun-swept tarmac, so far from the people the initial welcome seemed to lack enthusiasm.

The guns spoke up as the plane, a silver and red, four-motored luxury craft, touched its wheels to the ground.

Fifth Independent B.C. Medium Battery (Militia) of Victoria, touched off a 21-gun royal salute, using four six-pounders — a barrage which must have shaken the Malahat backdrop.

First Greeting by Gen. Pearkes

Canadian Defence Minister Maj.-Gen. George R. Pearkes, MP for Esquimalt-Saanich, was first to greet her, on behalf of the government of Canada.

She has been familiar to many through pictures during her 27 years. Now they were to see "what she really looks like."

They saw a small and charming girl, who as a veteran reporter stated, "Carries herself with the regal dignity of her mother."

She was poised and smiled gently as Mrs. Pearkes was presented.

A mild breeze stirred the folds of her "modified bell skirt and trapeze coat"—quotes from a fashion expert—as she passed along the receiving line which welcomed her to Canada.

"Royal guard of honor, royal salute, present arms," bellowed the officer of the 100-man honor guard of HMCS Naden.

Following the royal salute, as the rifle butts crashed together on the pavement, the Guides and Brownies released the tension of the crowd with a Guide cheer.

The officer of the guard, sword erect, saluted and requested the Princess inspect the guard. The band played Greensleeves, as the Princess walked slowly between the ranks. The shortest man towered over her.

Lieutenant-Governor Ross escorted Princess Margaret to a black convertible bearing a coat of arms licence plate. The royal party, including ladies-in-waiting and other court officials, entered other cars. A 12-car caravan then began the journey to Victoria.

WAVES AND SMILES

The Princess waved and smiled at the crowd as the cars passed through the airport gates. There were hundreds more spectators waiting to greet her as the cars reached the Patricia Bay Highway.

Wisely, they had reasoned they would have a closer glimpse of the Princess as she passed by. There were sprinkles of waving people all along the highway. The caravan slowed for a crowd at Mount Newton Cross Road and at other crossings.

A group of Indians appeared

PLANE TRIP 'WONDERFUL'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The chief pilot on the BOAC Bristol Britannia turbo-prop aircraft which brought Princess Margaret here from London today said the princess told him she had "a wonderful trip."

Capt. J. T. Percy, a veteran of Atlantic flying who captained the plane, said the princess sent for him near the end of the journey.

She told him she had rested well and that the Bristol was "a lovely plane."

Arrival Sidelights

"Isn't she tiny?" he exclaimed.

Many spectators said the Princess was smaller than they expected from her newspaper photographs.

* * *

A member of the Princess' entourage said she is greatly looking forward to attending the Sunday morning service at Christ Church Cathedral.

She is known to be deeply religious—like her father, the late King George VI.

* * *

Many more witnessed the 1951 visit of Queen Elizabeth, then a princess, with Prince Philip.

* * *

Meticulous planning never eliminates that last-minute hitch that all travellers—including royalty—undergo.

Proving it was the buzz of busy telephones this morning as officials tried to make new arrangements for Princess Margaret's hairdresser.

She found that all the electrical outlets in the Empress Hotel were wired for direct current power—and all her equipment was built for alternating current.

* * *

* * *

Overheard at the airport was the story that a naval commander was placed in charge of the laying of the red carpet. Practice drills were held by order, "Unroll." Each drill saw the carpet unrolled toward the spot the aircraft was to come to a halt. At each drill the measurement was gauged to a hair. The last foot of carpet almost touched the loading ramp. What happened when the plane actually arrived? That's right, the roll was not completely unwound when it touched the ramp—and it had to be tucked underneath.

* * *

Press representatives arrived at the airport at 8.45 to find many eager persons already lined up near the TCA building. The RCN guard of honor stood at ease nearby.

OLD-TIMERS SHED A TEAR

Senior citizens from Mountain View Home watched the princess from special vantage points at Royal Oak.

Many of them had tears in their eyes as she waved to them from her car.

More than 500 automobiles were parked in the area.

PRINCESS AT EMPRESS

Privileged Peep Through Petunia

By ELIZABETH FORBES, Times Women's Editor

A privileged position I was told. Only two newspaper people accredited to it.

The moment I stepped out on the tiled floor, however, I was greeted by a handsome RCMP sergeant who looked sternly at me and said: "You will stand here behind this flower box. You will look through the flowers. Then if the Princess does look up she will think that white hat of yours is just another blossom."

You simply don't argue with the police. I tucked myself in behind the flower box.

With my nose in a petunia I saw Princess Margaret, beloved sister of Her Majesty the Queen, step daintily from an open car and walk with light, youthful step to the entrance of the hotel.

At her side was His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor. He held his tall silk hat in his hand and he smiled proudly and with hint of fatherly benevolence at the gracious young Princess.

Shouts of welcome rose from the crowd packed eight deep along the walk to the hotel entrance and around the lawn. Faintly in the distance could be heard the welcoming peal of Christ Church Cathedral bells.

THAT SMILE

You've seen that smile on television and in the movies many times. But somehow in real life it takes on friendly

'We Want Margaret' Hotel Mob Chants

BY JOHN MIKA

The royal standard waved proudly in the Victoria breeze as it rose to the top of the Empress Hotel flagstaff when Princess Margaret stepped over the threshold at 10.54 a.m. today.

The cheering and clapping of 2,500 excited persons that rapidly swelled to 3,000 in seconds rang up and down the jam-packed Causeway as the Princess arrived.

The solid mass of people—from the old to the very young—sent out dozens of "We want Margaret" chants against the tall walls of the hotel for more than three-quarters of an hour after the arrival.

Cheering was constant from the moment the buzz of the waiting crowd broke out into a crescendo of sound when the advance party of police motorcycle escorts roared up to the Government Street entrance of the hotel at 10.51 a.m.

Seconds later, the car — a black convertible—drew up and

She Will Worship 'Close' to Family

When Princess Margaret kneels to pray in Christ Church Cathedral Sunday morning, she will be worshipping in a church with many close and warm family affiliations.

A few feet in front of her pew is a wrought-iron railing. The Princess' mother and father, the late King George, and the present Queen Mother, were married at this railing, which was later sent to Victoria.

PAT BAY RECEPTION LIKE FAMILY REUNION

'Isn't She Lovely!' On Everyone's Lips

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

A slim, radiant figure in blue, with a bright smile for everyone, Princess Margaret entered Victoria via Patricia Bay Airport today as naturally as if she were visiting an English country town.

The reception, though formal and rehearsed down to the last detail, was so friendly the Princess might have been greeting old acquaintances when she shook hands with leading citizens of Canada, the province and city.

Her smile was sweet and unaffected and her big blue eyes, under a dainty blue cap, had the laughing expression for which they are famous.

'Isn't she lovely!" were the words on everyone's lips.

It was almost like a family reunion.

GOVERNOR BEAMS

Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross, also in formal attire, was beaming happily as he assisted her into the sleek black open car that waited at the end of a long red carpet stretching from the big RCAF airliner.

Premier Bennett wore his customary wide grin and bowed low as the Princess was presented to him by the lieutenant-governor.

If she was weary after her long flight from England she showed no trace of it. She greeted each member of the welcoming party with equal enthusiasm and with friendly words of greeting.

First to greet the Princess was General Pearkes, representing the Canadian government, who then presented her to Mrs. Pearkes.

Lieut.-Gevernor Ross then introduced her in turn to Mrs. Ross, Premier and Mrs. Bennett, Lands and Forest Minister Ray Williston and Mrs. Williston, Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan and Mrs. Kiernan, deputy provincial secretary R.A. Pennington and Mrs. Pennington, and senior officers of the armed services.

COLORFUL SCENE

Occupying a prominent position on the airfield were the First Sidney Company of Guides and the First Sidney Brownie Pack who raised a cheer as the Princess stepped from the plane.

The Pantheon, a temple erected at Rome in 123 AD, has been called the best specimen of old Roman architecture.

WHAT'S YOUR OPINION?

BY MICHAEL ROSE

Question: Do you intend to watch the naval review next Tuesday? If so, from where?

George Rice, 3568 Quadra:

"I shall be going out Royal Roads way and probably watch it from somewhere near Albert Head. Either that or take my own little boat out."

Rice Oliver

Mrs. Irene Oliver, Latoria Road, Happy Valley:

"We live way out in the country and also have a big garden which is keeping us very busy nowadays so we won't be seeing it. I doubt whether we will be able to see it on television either unless they re-broadcast it after 9 p.m."

Roy Grimbleby, 866 Craigflower:

"I am afraid I won't be able to get out there, much as I'd like to as I have to work all day. Of course, we do have television here and I will be able to follow it that way."

Grimbleby Worth

Mrs. Helen Worth, 330 John:

"I have to work all day so I won't be out there although I would certainly like to see the show. It seems to me that you could get a very good view from the Royal Roads lagoon spit."

Mrs. Maude Eison, 1058 Lodge:

"My husband used to be in the navy and if we can get a pass we hope to be able to watch everything from Rodd Hill. If we can't get a spot there we will probably try Albert Head."

Eison Tronningsdal

Alfred Tronningsdal, 111 Gorge Road East:

"I think the whole thing is a complete waste f time. There are thousands of elderly people in Victoria without a decent roof over their heads. If the money spent on the review were used to provide good housing for them think of all the happy faces there would be."

400 SCOUTS TO LINE ROUTE

On Monday in front of Thunderbird Park and the Parliament Buildings, over 400 members of the Victoria District Boy Scouts Association will turn out for Princess Margaret's visit to Victoria.

Cubs, Scouts, Rovers and leaders form up in full uniform at Thunderbird Park at 10 a.m. They will then move over to the Parliament Buildings to line the approach roads to the buildings.

to welcome her near the East Saanich reserve. There were crowds at the Island View Beach cutoff and again at Elk Lake.

Several persons were on horseback.

RURAL WELCOME

The rural welcome dispelled for visiting reporters, and perhaps for the Royal guest, all vintage beliefs of Victoria's decorum in matters of dress and manner.

The people turned out in sunsuits, pin-curlers, overalls, straw hats, bandanas, house dresses and shirtsleeves. Many carried flags, the only concession to the stateliness of the occasion.

It was a warm, "hi-neighbor," hello. One the Princess may recall through the trials of formal reception that lie ahead.

Twelve minutes before the plane was due, a voiced boomed out "Oh-nine-four-eight." The band and guard then marched on the field. The welcoming dignitaries, stood almost 20 minutes on the tarmac.

Five teenagers from a girls' camp in the San Juan Islands, in blue romper-style sunsuits took up position with a pile of magazines on the steps of the Empress before 8 p.m. today. The American girls, like many of their parents, made more of the royal visit than many Canadians.

* * *

The roofs of the TCA and Department of Transport buildings sprouted a crop of cameras of all sizes and shapes long before the arrival of the royal plane. A poetic correspondent murmured about, ". . . a host of three-legged monsters, devouring the scene for digestion around the world."

* * *

There were Union Jacks, red ensigns and centennial flags draped from various points on main buildings at the airport. But the flag most honored, and carried closest to the Royal visitor, marched on and off the tarmac with a 100-man guard of honor, was the RCN's white ensign.

* * *

Driver of the Royal car on the journey from Pat Bay to the Empress Hotel was Petty Officer Robert A. McCallum, RCN, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McCallum of Gordon Head.

He was picked from 12 navy drivers for smartness, deportment and driving efficiency.

* * *

The car was escorted by two RCMP outriders on motorcycles—Constable Ronald H. Davies of the University detachment and Constable Douglas Ashbee of Richmond detachment.

At Fountain Circle a ripple of applause went through the crowd, but the royal car passed too quickly for a noisy welcome to work up.

Young men were heard to murmur approval of the smiling princess with the golden tan, apparently preserved from her recent West Indies trip.

* * *

Vehicular traffic was held up only a limited time at cross streets along the main Douglas Street route.

Saanich police reported no problems as the procession sped along Patricia Bay Highway, slowing for groups of people at Sayward, Royal Oak and Glanford intersections.

* * *

Amongst the crowd in the middle of Hillside at Douglas were Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Tucker and the Joe White family, all of Los Angeles.

They arrived in Victoria Monday, were to leave earlier in the week, but stayed because the Princess was a "drawing card."

It was their first look at Canada, and British royalty, even though only a glance as the official cars whooshed by.

TV to Cover Margaret's Activities

Victorians will have two opportunities to witness Princess Margaret at official ceremonies on their television sets while she is visiting the Capital City.

On Monday at 10.30, Channels 6 and 2 will provide live coverage of the Princess, official welcome at the Legislative Buildings.

On Tuesday the same two channels will focus on her as she reviews the fleet off Royal Roads, starting at 2.30 in the afternoon.

Both these programs will be viewed simultaneously by all Canada as they are relayed on the country's new television microwave network.

In addition to the live telecasts Channels 6 and 2 will carry filmed highlights of the Royal visit on Tuesday night at 10.30 and again on Thursday night at 11.30.

Inco Metals at work in Canada

The development of stainless steel has produced many remarkable changes in both the appearance and convenience of Canadian homes. Stainless steel sinks made with Inco Nickel are a good example. They not only brighten and beautify the kitchen, they make household tasks far easier. The manufacture of stainless steel sinks, using nickel supplied by Inco, has become a thriving industry in Canada, providing employment for many Canadians.
Stainless steel sinks made with INCO NICKEL help provide jobs in Canada
Ten years ago, hardly any homes in Canada had stainless steel sinks. But a few Canadian housewives tried the new sinks and thought they were wonderful—wouldn't stain or chip, were so easy to keep bright and clean, and best of all, glasses and dishes that were accidentally dropped didn't break as easily.
That was the beginning of a new and thriving Canadian industry. Today, most of the new homes being built in Canada have Canadian-made stainless steel sinks. And practically all of these sinks contain Inco Nickel.
Ore from the mines near Sudbury, Ontario, is milled, smelted and refined by Inco here in Canada. Refined nickel is sold to other Canadian companies to make stainless steel. This stainless steel goes to the Canadian firms that make the sinks. And Canadian builders install them in the homes.
These operations—from the time the ore is mined until the finished sink is installed—provide jobs for thousands of Canadian workmen. That's how Inco Nickel helps promote the growth and development of industry in Canada.

Jung Issue Sparks Sharp House Reaction

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA—The Parliament of Canada, which has often boasted this country's record of racial tolerance, has reacted sharply to a senator's cutting application of the phrase "this Chinaman" to a young Vancouver Commons member.

Disapproval, inside and outside the Commons, was expressed Friday over the words spoken by Senator J. W. de B. Farris, Vancouver Liberal, about 34-year-old Douglas Jung, first Canadian of Chinese extraction ever to sit in Parliament.

Thursday night in the upper chamber the senator snapped: "What right has this Chinaman got to represent the Canadian people?" He was speaking at the time about statements credited to Mr. Jung while in Paris at a NATO Association youth leaders' conference.

More Fireworks on Jung's Return

The issue is likely to be raised again in Parliament next week when Mr. Jung, Progressive Conservative MP for Vancouver Centre, is expected to return.

The Senate itself adjourned Thursday night soon after Senator Farris' speech and won't meet again until Tuesday evening.

Opposition Leader Pearson, at the start of Friday's Commons sitting, attempted unsuccessfully to make a statement expressing "great regret and disapproval" of the senator's words.

Prime Minister Diefenbaker spoke of resentment felt by "members as a whole." Harold Winch (CCF., Vancouver East) called it a "reflection" on Mr. Jung.

The prime minister, during the election campaign, spoke often with pride of Mr. Jung's election to Parliament and his selection last winter as head of the Young Progressive Conservatives.

The quiet-spoken Jung is a B.C.-born lawyer whose constituency includes Vancouver's Chinatown. But he once said he would have been elected to the Commons even if none of the Chinese-origin residents of his riding had voted for him.

He defeated former Liberal defence minister Ralph Campney in last year's election and won re-election this year with a 16,117-vote plurality.

* * *

Mr. Diefenbaker and External Affairs Minister Smith explained two other points in connection with their three-day meetings with President Eisenhower and U.S. State Secretary Dulles.

The prime minister said discussions are continuing over U.S. restrictions on imports of Canadian crude oil and that the problem would be discussed by the Canada-U.S. joint cabinet committee on trade and economic affairs.

He said he hopes the committee will meet soon.

Mr. Smith said civil defence could be discussed by the newly established Canada-U.S. cabinet committee on defence.

* * *

CCF members Friday night prevented passage of a bill to allow Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Company to split its shares five to one.

Harold Winch (Vancouver East), Arnold Peters (Timiskaming) and Frank Howard (Skeena), all CCFers, were the only members to talk on the bill except Ernest Brome (Vancouver South) who introduced it.

WHAT DOCTORS SAY ABOUT

Better Health Through Knowledge

Q. Should a young baby be placed on his back or tummy to sleep?

A. Neither, according to an Atlanta baby doctor. Babies, said the physician, should be placed on their side to sleep. In the stomach position the legs tend to spread in frog fashion and the legs rotate or turn outward. The big toe rests on the mattress and the foot is forced into a flatfoot position. Something of the same thing happens when a young baby is placed on his back to sleep. The heels rest on the mattress and the feet tend to be forced into the flatfoot position. To prevent trouble, especially flatfoot, in later years the Atlanta doctor recommends placing the baby on his side to sleep. It helps to support the youngster's back with a small pillow or a tightly rolled baby blanket. Never put a baby on his back after feeding. He may spit up some milk and become strangled.

QUIET WEEKEND FOR REST AFTER JOURNEY

Only two official functions are scheduled today and Sunday—a press reception at the Empress Hotel at 5.30 tonight, and a service in Christ Church Cathedral at 11 a.m. Sunday which will last only an hour.

The remainder of the weekend the princess will be free to relax, and go where she chooses from her suite in the Empress.

SMOOTH VOYAGE

Royal Plane 'Early Bird'

Princess Margaret's airliner cruised over Vancouver 12 minutes early today, then landed at International Airport at 9.15 a.m.—five minutes before schedule.

She had a quiet, smooth voyage.

The Whispering Giant Britannia turbo-prop was seen above the city at 9.08 and killed time for a few minutes before taking the Princess down for her "quick change" to an RCAF C-5 for the flip to Victoria.

A slight tail wind helped speed the BOAC airliner along its northerly great circle route across Canada at 315 m.p.h. and a height of 26,000 feet.

MARGARET SLEEPS

Pilot Capt. James Percy touched down so gently in a slight rain that Margaret slept on undisturbed.

During the crossing, he said, "the princess relaxed, and had supper and finally went to bed." He said she hadn't—up to then—gone forward to take over the controls, as many distinguished passengers do.

CHANGE IN ROUTE

At 6.15 this morning the Britannia was sighted above Great Whale River, Que., on the shores of Hudson Bay.

This indicated Capt. Percy had changed his flight plan to follow the great circle route over Winisk, northern Ontario, The Pas, Man., Prince Albert, Sask., Calgary and Princeton, B.C.

For her departure from London Margaret wore a fetching summer dress of crushed strawberry chiffon. She was accompanied to the airport by the Queen Mother who stood in the open until the plane had disappeared from view.

The princess' dress, full-skirted and fashionably short, wrung exclamations of admiration from scores of onlookers lining the red-carpeted gangway. With it she wore a matching cloche hat with white trimming, white gloves and white shoes with plastic toe-caps.

GOOBYE TO QUEEN

Among those seeing her off were George Drew, Canadian high commissioner to the United Kingdom, and the Earl of Home, secretary of state for Commonwealth relations.

Before leaving London, the princess had stopped by at Buckingham Palace for tea and to say goodbye to the Queen who is confined to bed with a sinus condition.

Royal Visit Delays Black Ball Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — The government-controlled Black Ball Ferries will not be tied up by a strike while Princess Margaret is on Vancouver Island.

Richard Greaves, president of the National Association of Marine Engineers, said Friday: "The members don't want to cause any inconvenience or embarrassment while the Princess is on the Island.

EAGER TO STRIKE

Officials of the union had said earlier that a large number of engineers employed on the ferries which ply between the Island and the B.C. mainland, were anxious to strike immediately for higher pay.

Richard Greaves, national president of the union, said Thursday individual members of the union are planning to defy the government by walking off the job and facing a possible fine or jail sentence under the Civil Defence Act.

MOUSE HUNT ABANDONED

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The search for the Thor-Able nose cone and its tiny mouse passenger was abandoned today by the air force.

'There Must Be Trust' —Khrushchev

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev said today Russia still wants a summit conference, but "it would be better not to meet" if the West insists on talking about Soviet satellite countries.

He also rejected Western proposals for control of disarmament.

"We will speak about controls when there is complete trust," he said, and indicated such trust might be a long time coming.

Khrushchev addressed a rally in honor of the visiting Czech president, Antonin Novotny, after returning from an East German our.

"How could one propose that the Communists should agree to discuss with the capitalists how to liquidate Socialist order in a given state?" Khrushchev asked.

"If such questions were to be discussed, it would be better not to meet because the Soviet attitude would not change," the Soviet premier added.

RECORD BOOKINGS

Big Planes For Scramble To Victoria

Airline officials today reported an all-time record number of bookings on flights from Vancouver to Victoria during the weekend.

Trans-Canada Air Lines said it has had to bring its big North Star airliners into service on the run to cope with an expected 7,200 passengers coming to Vancouver Island to catch a glimpse of Princess Margaret.

The company said it has put 75 extra passenger agents on staff and they are handling 20,000 phone calls daily.

A strike which has idled 10 steamships of the Canadian Pacific Railway's coast service for eight weeks was given as one of the main reasons for the rush on air travel.

Anthem Could Be Story of B.C.

An anthem by Sir Edward Elgar will be sung by a choir of 50 voices at Christ Church Cathedral during Princess Margaret's visit Sunday morning.

The anthem contains the lines:

Choirmaster Graham Steed said that he thought the anthem was appropriate for the occasion because Elgar was once Master of the King's Music and "B.C. was largely a wilderness 100 years ago, and today it is bearing fruit."

From 10.10 a.m. to 10.50 Mr. Steed will give an organ recital, as follows:

Toccata and Fugue in D Minor—J. S. Bach.

Fugue No. 2 on Bach — R. Schumann.

Sonata in E Flat—Sir Edward Bairstow.

The Integrity of the CBC

FEW APPOINTMENTS WITHIN the gift of the Federal Government are as important as the chairmanship of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

It will be difficult indeed for the Government to find an adequate successor to Mr. Davidson Dunton, who has managed the CBC so long and so ably and who has now become president of Carleton University.

But for the highest national reasons it is essential that a man of Mr. Dunton's stature shall be found to guide what is probably the most powerful agency of communication in Canada.

Hence the public will expect the Government to be guided in this appointment by much more than partisan considerations. The CBC chairmanship is far too big to be offered as a political reward. Already some appointments to the judiciary have been based mainly on those considerations but we trust they will not affect the CBC.

The CBC is a corporation independent in law and also in actual fact. On a few occasions politicians have attempted to bring pressures to bear on broadcasting policy but in every case they regretted it.

When Mr. Diefenbaker, in a thoughtless moment, recently seemed to be warning a CBC interviewer not to ask a certain question of the British prime minister he was instantly attacked in Parliament, tried to explain the incident away and is not likely to repeat it.

The CBC's independence and political impartiality have been safe under the protection of Mr. Dunton and his assistants. They might not be safe under men of a weaker sort.

No government would risk any overt interference with the CBC but the danger of secret influence, a quiet, cosy understanding between the East Block and the broadcasting headquarters, must always be a real danger in the nature of a publicly-owned radio and television system.

So great is the impact of these channels of communication, so wide their reach throughout the nation, that any government controlling them, publicly or secretly, would be in a position to manipulate the public mind largely for its own purposes.

The Diefenbaker Government, we may be sure, has no such intention. It can best demonstrate both its good faith and good judgment by appointing in Mr. Dunton's place a man who enjoys the fullest confidence of the Canadian people.

In Civilian Hands

CANADA AND THE UNITED States have enjoyed a joint defence agreement since the Ogdensburg understanding of 1940. The mutual arrangement has been brought up to date from time to time, and today embodies the split-second system of retaliatory force which is demanded by modern armaments.

The joint cabinet committee on continental defence that has been announced as a result of the recent Ottawa talks between Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower is therefore not new in principle. It merely adds another factor to an arrangement of 18 years' standing.

The new committee, to be composed of three cabinet members from each country, will act in a supervisory capacity only. It will supplement but not supplant the existing military co-ordination.

But it is important in that it retains in civilian hands the very vital components of continental defence. Where a mistaken move might precipitate a catastrophic world war of nuclear destruction, it is necessary that national governments retain supreme powers and that the military continue to act as the agents of the government and not as independent forces controlling decisions of national life and death.

The move exemplifies once more—as has already been done in such fields as trade, fisheries, power rights—that two sovereign powers can cooperate for their mutual benefit despite occasional disagreements, and that by negotiation and understanding they can achieve the best results for all concerned.

Wonderful Butchart Concerts

ONCE AGAIN, THE SYMPHONY concerts at Butchart's Gardens have proven that Victoria has here an attraction quite unique in Canada, and perhaps in North America.

The idyllic combination of fine music, ably performed in a matchless natural setting, makes for a memorable summer evening. The tremendous crowd which turned up Thursday night—heeding the advice of planners to come in pool-car arrangements—is ample proof of the fact that Victorians and visitors appreciate what is being done.

Mr. and Mrs. Ian Ross deserve the thanks of the community for the personal part they play in all this. The concerts are not money-making affairs. The Rosses invite the guest stars, and arrange for the orchestra, in the spirit of community service.

It is to be hoped that they will continue these concerts each summer, for they are spreading the fame of Victoria far and wide, and providing at the Inlet an attraction which compares favorably with the cultural enterprise at Stratford.

Madame Chiang on Neutrals

THE VOICE OF MADAME Chiang Kai-shek, a persuasive instrument a few years ago, has been raised again in New York—but the potency of her earlier arguments seems lacking.

Madame Chiang says that the free world should stop helping neutrals unless it wants the countries fighting communism to start wondering: "Why should we fight when the neutrals sit on the fence and get just as much as we do?".

The simple answer seems to be that the nations fighting communism have as yet failed to prove their ability to score victories of substantial size. The neutrals must be wooed lest they fail to remain neutral and throw their weight on the opposing side.

Madame Chiang also said that the Nationalists would recapture the Chinese mainland with their own army, which is American-trained and American-equipped—"We don't want the United States to do it for us."

In the perspective of China's long history, it is not impossible that such a development might occur, provided the Nationalists last long enough. But as of now, the struggle impels the non-communists to persuade the neutrals to at least stay neutral. Madame Chiang is astute enough to know that, even if the role in which she was cast some years ago makes her repeat the lines delivered in New York.

Kensington Stone on the Rocks

A LITTLE REGRETFULLY WE read the most recent reports on the Kensington Stone.

This is a presumed relic bearing in runic characters the story of Vikings allegedly lost in a raid against them in what is now Minnesota. The significance of the stone rests on the supposition that it indicated deep penetration of the continent by Norsemen from about 1000 AD onward.

The supposition is still being argued, but those who consider the relic an authentic piece of evidence are losing ground. Those who consider it a hoax are having the better of the exchange. They maintain that a Swedish-speaking practical joker carved the stone, buried it and later "discovered" it—with no particularly malicious intent.

They support the claim by pointing out that although written in ancient Norse runes, the style, spelling and grammar are modern, not medieval. They add that a reference in the stone applies to a Hindu rather than a Norse origin, and they note that the stone was found in a Scandinavian community where elementary runic knowledge was prevalent.

So the Kensington Stone seems headed the way of the Piltdown Man and the Cardiff Giant.

We seem to have been overcredulous. But we still have the Flying Dutchman and Social Credit. We can't be completely disillusioned.

As Our Readers See It

Why the Jets?

Why should these horrible, dangerous jet planes be allowed to fly over our city?

Anyway they are as out-dated by guided missile as bows and arrows were by gunpowder.

LOOSE ENDS

I'm Through With Watching Our Fine Feathered Friends

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

BEFORE he became a bird watcher, at his wife's instigation, Mr. Snifkin tells me he used to enjoy the countryside. He even enjoyed the birds until he got to know them, as a man may enjoy many casual acquaintances until he gets to know them. These things are too deep for me. All I know is that when Mr. Snifkin goes walking in the woods these days he is compelled to carry a pair of field glasses, costing a hundred dollars and weighing almost as many pounds.

Hutchison

Once you become a bird watcher, Mr. Snifkin tells me, you do not walk for pleasure. You walk for knowledge. Acquiring knowledge, with field glasses and a technical bird book in hand, you also acquire the old vice of pride.

A NATURALLY modest man, Mr. Snifkin has become insufferably proud now that he can distinguish a robin from a woodpecker. As in other fields of knowledge, the bird watchers soon form a caste, an elite, a burden to their friends. The bird watcher, Mr. Snifkin says, talks only to birdwatchers as the Cabots of Boston talk only to God.

Anyway, Mr. Snifkin used to spend many an evening with me talking about Mr. Diefenbaker. Now he is satisfied with no subject less than a Nuthatch. And to tell the truth we are getting rather bored, around here, with Nuthatches. We prefer the good old days of Mr. Diefenbaker which now seem so long ago.

LAST evening, in a moment of folly, I was persuaded to accompany Mr. Snifkin on his walk, being assured that I might even be allowed to look through the expensive field glasses if we discovered anything of interest.

Well, we had gone hardly a hundred yards before Mr. Snifkin discovered something of interest. He stood transfixed on the trail, hushed me into silence and unlimbered the field glasses from their leather case as a gun crew unlimbers a cannon.

I saw only a common little bird on a twig, the same sort of bird I had seen for the last fifty years, but Mr. Snifkin told me in a whisper that it might well be a genuine Townsend's Warbler. He became quite angry when I said it was only a sparrow or Dickie Bird but our argument was never settled. By the time Mr. Snifkin had his glasses in focus the bird had flown a mile away.

MR. SNIFKIN blamed me for that disaster as if I had spoiled a plan of battle or betrayed the nation's strategic secrets to the enemy. From now on, he said, we must not talk, even in whispers. Our evening's stroll turned into a commando raid. That's what birdwatching does to a normal man.

Presently we heard some wild pigeons. I knew them immediately by the familiar click of their wings and the swerve of their flight; had known them, indeed, for half a century. But Mr. Snifkin was as excited as if he had discovered a new star.

Crouching behind a stump and ordering me to lie at ful length on some prickly blackberry vines, he trained his glasses on the quarry. It was gone, of course, before he could fix his sights. I had a good view of it, however, together with many thorns in my person, for I was wearing shorts and nothing else. There is more to bird watching than you might suppose.

AT length, after a weary climb up the hill, Mr. Snifkin did catch a bird full within his sights, though his hands were trembling so violently that he could hardly hold the glasses.

He watched it for a long time and announced to me, in a hoarse voice, that he had seen a Ruby-Crowned Kinglet. From the field marks, he said, there could be no doubt about it. Whipping the bird book from his pocket, he looked up the diagrams and colored paintings. And sure enough, that bird turned out to be a female Goldfinch, as I could have told him without a book in the first place if I hadn't been clinging for life to a precipitous cliff.

Mr. Snifkin said little during the next mile of our walk, except that these scientific books were often in error.

FROM a high peak Mr. Snifkin eventually sighted what he called an eagle. I didn't spoil his fun by telling him that it was a fish hawk. And when, at the edge of a farmer's field, he found a rare and almost unknown species of grouse, barely visible through the glasses, I didn't bother to inform him that he was looking at a stray Rhode Island Red rooster. There is no use arguing with a bird watcher.

That's the trouble with us now-a-days. We know so much we can't enjoy anything. If you are a bird watcher you can't even enjoy an evening's walk with a friend.

I can hardly call Mr. Snifkin a friend any longer, though. We had a grave falling out over a Pileated Woodpecker and almost came to blows over a common, ordinary, low-down junco which Mr. Snifkin took to be a wren and tried to prove it from his book.

SO old friends, otherwise sane, will quarrel about something as inconsequential and remote as the policy of the national Government.

Thus disputing, we passed the gay weekend resort of a rich man and, peering rudely through the window, narrowly missed seeing an Extra-Marital Lark. After that disappointment I am finished with bird watching for good.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

By GUS SIVERTZ

STORY-TELLING is probably one of the oldest of the arts, for indeed it is an art and has held an honored place in all civilizations and, in a more primitive form, amongst savage people. I dare say that soon after man had made the stupendous step of learning how to convey his thoughts to other men by speech the first story-teller squatted near some likely place of barter and began to weave the magic fabric of man-created word pictures.

Sivertz

In earlier days my forebears were largely gifted in the art of story-telling, as were all northern people who must live through the isolation of long, cold and dark winters. My father has told of how the head of the house would either read from a book at the one light that an Icelandic farmstead could afford, or recite the stories of the great heroes of the past while the womenfolk carded wool, spun or wove stuff from which all the clothing was made.

Thus was the history of such people preserved and handed down from generation to generation with an astonishing fidelity to fact. Thus were handed down the Edda Sagas which told of the Vikings settling on the bleak shores of Iceland, of their bickerings, their blood feuds, their incredible voyages into the Arctic and westward to Greenland.

Even today the story-teller amongst Arab people, through such cradles of civilization as early Egypt, Mesopotamia, the basins of the Tigris and Euphrates, the peninsula of India and across the vast plateau of Tibet and over the whole huge bulk of China, is an almost vital part of community life.

There is no substitute for the well-told tale and millions of hungry men will snatch a half-hour from the endless preoccupation of searching for food to squat on his heels before the storyteller to listen enthralled to tales which he knows so well that each inflection, each modulation of voice can be anticipated with a simple and earthy pleasure, so that for a short while at least the gnawing hunger of his belly is assuaged.

Now into my life when I was about twelve there came a remarkable family which migrated from the north central plain of the United States in search of a more pioneering life.

They were pure Norse; father and mother, three girls and five boys. And at that stage of their journeying—which ended on beautiful Quatsino Sound—they were also very poor, although this did not seem to occur either to us who cherished them as priceless additions to our neighborhood, or to themselves.

Now the oldest sister who was probably then about twenty, was a born story-teller and could hold us in complete thralldom as she filled the dingy room of their tiny house with the clash of cutlasses, the thunder of Lee's galloping cavalry, the bloodchilling war whoops of plains Indians on the warpath.

She had the faculty of complete voice control and would chill us by reciting the most thrilling and tragic tales in verse told in a flat voice that gave a terrific emphasis to the stories.

This girl was fearfully misnamed, Hazel—a good enough name in ordinary circumstances, no doubt—when she should have been called Dagmar, or Freja or Ragnhild, for she was truly a Viking daughter and her magnificent bearing heightened the suspense of her stories until we huddled together on the floor in an ecstacy of half-fear and half joy.

She reminded me of Stevenson's description of Kirstie Elliott in Weir of Hermiston, although Hazel was in the fulness of a lusty youth while Kirstie had passed the half-century mark. But the description is apt, nevertheless:

> ". . . she might have sat to a sculptor. Long of limb, deep-breasted, robust-loined, her hair golden . . . the years had caressed and embellished her."

While on the American plains her parents had heard much of the Civil War in their younger days and Hazel had absorbed a vast lore of tales and of verse. These we clamored for and it is a tribute to her art that my own ideas of that terrible war were largely colored by her stories.

There was one poem of which we never tired and always demanded at least once in each story-telling session. I have forgotten all but one verse, but you must imagine it recited on a wild November night when the Olympic mountains had pulled their cloud-caps over their heads:

"Morgan, Morgan, the raider,
And Morgan's terrible men
Came galloping, galloping,
Galloping down the glen."

. . . and they galloped through our dreams for days afterward.

PUTTING ART ON SHOW

Cause of Dissension Should Be Before Us as We Argue

By TONY EMERY

I WASTED many hours of my life arguing about works of art in general before I came to my senses. Nowadays I try to restrict my arguments to occasions when my opponent and myself are at loggerheads over something that we have both seen or read. Ideally, the cause of dissension should be before us as we argue, and it is for this reason that I am grateful to Maclean's Magazine and to Messrs. T. Eaton and Co.

Emery

Maclean's has kept sides of the "modern both sides of the "modern art" controversy before a very large public; it has given publicity and financial support to some of the best artists of our province; and its art editors do a subtle job of visual education by employing some excellent illustrators.

So few people read "Canadian Art" that without the help of Maclean's the task of bridging the gulf between artist and public in Canada might be protracted indefinitely.

Eaton's are also to be commended for their services to art. Their show of paintings by Tretchikoff was attended by many thousands of people who would never dream of visiting an art gallery: indeed, many of the visitors had never before seen an original oil painting! (It would be churlish to add that there was nothing "original" in this show, unless it was the highly-developed commercial acumen of the artist.)

More recently Eaton's has "featured" some jolly scenic impressions by a Mr. Messner, following up this unexceptionable—if unexciting—display with a collection of works by Robert Cooper, a rigorously uncompromising young painter, whose creations have caused a considerable amount of discussion.

The good thing about these shows in a popular department store is that art of three distinct kinds has now been shown to people who otherwise might have seen no paintings. When people who have seen these shows start an argument with me about their merits and defects we have a common stock of visual information on which to base our discussion, and the argument doesn't degenerate into a shouting match and exchange of insults quite so soon as it otherwise would.

Without this common experience an argument about art is a sterile affair, but when both parties have seen the same pictures some progress can be made. A few questions will elicit what it was that the other person found to admire or to condemn, and from these answers one can obtain an insight into the opponent's knowledge and taste.

It is usual, at this stage, to discover that the other party has a firm notion of what the painter's job is: it is to represent as painstakingly as possible the appearance of some attractive subject—a lovely woman, some cute animals, a pleasant landscape.

A test question here can separate those who look at paintings as paintings, and those who merely wish to be reminded of pets and petting,, and that question is; Do you like "still-life" painting?

When the answer is No—and it commonly is — I remember the words of Mme. de Stael: "Ceux qui n'aiment pas beaucoup la peinture en elle-meme, attachent une grande importance aux sujets des tableaux." (Those who don't like painting for its own sake attach great importance to the subject of a picture.)

Personally, I find the subject of a painting its least important feature, and I am not in the least perturbed if there is no recognizable subject at all, so long as the painter uses form and color and the properties of the medium to produce a personal statement which enlarges my experience.

I don't ask that every painting be a masterpiece, because I know how few masterpieces any century produces; I do not even demand great originality, though I am delighted when I find it.

I do ask, though, that the work I am looking at shall bear traces of having been created by someone of more than ordinary sensibility; it doesn't enlarge my experience to be shown works that I could match myself, without trying very hard.

What, I wonder, would Mme. de Stael have said of Mr. Cooper's work? He does not attach much importance to the subject, clearly, and neither does he care for painting for its own sake. Of the normal ingredients of a painting he has selected a minor one—texture—and devoted himself to its exploitation, to the exclusion of all the others.

No color much, no form to speak of, no line apart from a few rather obvious and repetitive incisions, no oiliness of oil, no paintiness of paint—nothing but textures laboriously built up by various tricks and dodges.

If we regard these works as sculptures in relief rather than as paintings, can we wring some enjoyment from them? I did find a faint something emanating from a very small relief (priced with unusual modesty at $100) across which the light played to reveal three or four intensities of black; but the emotion it aroused was fainter than that conjured up by the purely accidental textures of old walls and roads and rocks.

If you want to see an exciting relief Bob di Castro has one in the Vancouver Art Gallery right now: you don't have to go to Malaga or Paris for it.

But well done, Eaton's, anyway. I hope we shall be given regular shows covering as many different facets of art as possible. The furnishing sections of our big stores should carry a stock of works at varying prices by our local artists: prints and watercolors and paintings by Siebner and Lansdowne and Ciccimarra and all the others. A home without original works of art in it is a pretty dull affair.

HANS GRUBER CONDUCTS

Final Gardens Concert; Symphony Travels On

Sunday, our Victoria Symphony is making its debut in Port Alberni; we shall be repeating program played Thursday at Butchart Gardens, Charles Davis and all. The costs of this trip are shared by the Butchart Gardens and the B.C. and Port Alberni Centennial Committees. We are greatly looking forward to this, our first concert at Port Alberni, to be held in their beautiful and acoustically flattering high school auditorium.

Hans Gruber

We shall be back late Sunday evening, and on Monday rehearsals begin for the second and last Butchart Gardens concert scheduled for next Thursday. Our guest artist this time will be Grace Bumbry, the mezzo-soprano who, in addition to winning this year's Metropolitan auditions, has caused an unusual amount of stir among all those who have heard her; the great Lotte Lehmann regards her with the special pride a teacher reserves for her star-pupil.

She will sing, with orchestra, three famous arias written for her type of voice—"Adieu, Forets," from Jeanne d'Arc, by Tschaikowski; "My heart at thy sweet voice," from Samson and Deliah, and "O Don Fatale," from Verdi's Don Carlos, as well as a number of songs.

The orchestra will contribute the Prelude to Carmen, the Blue Danube Waltz, excerpts from Bizet's Arlesienne Suite, and Beethoven's 5th symphony. Probably also another piece which we haven't chosen as yet.

First of a series of evening entertainments arranged for Victoria College Summer Session, will take place Wednesday at 8 at Oak Bay Junior High School. It will feature Teresita Ostra, lovely interpreter of Spanish, South American and Mexican dances. She will be accompanied by her concert pianist brother, Emilio Osta, who will also play solos by Albeniz, Lecuona, Sarasate and Villa-Lobos. Concerts are open to the general public as well as students.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

AA (Oscar Class) BB (Worthwhile)
A (Don't Miss) B (For Rainy Days)
C (To put in time)

(BB PLUS A) "THE VIKINGS" (Odeon): Thanks to the magnificent color photography by Jack Cardiff and some wondrous settings, United Artists' adaptation of Edison Marshall's novel "The Vikings" is saved from becoming just another Norse opera.

Spiced with such "best-selling" ingredients as rape and ructions the picture is sometimes a blood-bath. But it is also a mighty pageant that, through lust and battle, seems to have caught the spirit of these war-like men who roamed the uncharted seas of the world in their longboats a thousand years ago conquering nations many times their own size, men who knew no fear if they could but die a "Vikings' death," sword in hand and thus ensure their entry into Valhalla, the warrior's heaven. Indeed it was this religion of the Vikings that made them almost unbeatable in battle and in daring seamanship.

It is said that "The Vikings" cost producer-star Kirk Douglas something in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. But such is its box office success that it is expected that he will not only recoup this but make a profit in the United States area alone.

THE PLOT, IN BRIEF: On a raid into England Viking chieftain Ragnar (Ernest Borgnine) assaults the British Queen Enid (Maxine Audley) and murders her husband. Later, Enid discovers she is with child and the baby is sent away in secrecy to protect him from the new king, the ruthless Aella (Frank Thring.) Twenty years pass. Ragnar still rules the Viking world with his pleasure-loving young son Einar (Kirk Douglas) by his side. But Einar falls afoul of a young slave whom he abuses, Eric (Tony Curtis), and when, later, the Vikings abduct Welsh Princess Morgana (Janet Leigh) the hatred between them grows as both fight for her love.

But the story is almost an afterthought. The true merit accruing from "The Vikings" is historical, the spectacle of the tall, bearded men rowing the longboats and their customs at home and abroad.

Some of the battle scenes are especially spectacular, such as the Vikings' methods of storming a castle or taking a village. The photography, as has been stated earlier, is magnificent. The boats racing through the fog, and the funeral pyre at sea could be mentioned as merely two examples of the cameramen's art.

In brief. If you are interested in a spectacle rather than a down-to-earth story this should fill the bill.

Fingers Like 'Fringe in Wind' As Cliburn Cuts First Record

By DICK KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA)—About 50 New York teenagers can say they were here the day Van Cliburn made his first American recording.

Ordinarily, concert artists prefer to work without an audience while making records. But the conquering hero of music asked RCA-Victor to have some people there while he cut his first one. He said he thought he played better with an audience.

And so 50 youngsters from New York's High School of Music and Art, plus a scattering of other guests, jockeyed for the best vantage points in the gallery of the ornate Manhattan Centre ballroom. They clustered in the front rows, their chins jammed on the railing, their eyes focused on the lanky Texan.

The ballroom, with its rococo ceiling and pink-glass chandeliers and inlaid murals of worldwide dancing scenes, is one of the favored recording studios in New York. It is big and it is quiet. And, for this session, the echoes were deadened with huge baffles surrounding the polished grand piano and great colored cloths draped over the balcony railing at strategic spots.

HE WAS LATE

Cliburn was due at 11. The orchestra — the Symphony of the Air—arrived at 10 for an hour of rehearsal and balancing. Kiril Kondrashin, the Russian who conducted for Cliburn when he won the Tchaikovsky prize in Moscow, came in, carrying his baton. He wore a green suit.

He shook hands with one or two of the musicians, took off his coat, placed his wrist watch on the music stand and got down to business. He knew exactly what he wanted, giving his instructions in a few key English and Italian words, some Russian (translated immediately by a cellist) and mostly in the universal language of conductors—he sang, "Like so — da-da-da-dee. Now, please" — that needs no translation.

At 11.25—Cliburn has a reputation for chronic lateness—the man of the hour arrived. Cliburn waved gayly to the orchestra, took off his jacket, rippled across the keyboard for a few seconds and nodded his readiness to begin.

Kondrashin gave the downbeat that set the orchestra off on the first powerful measures of Tchaikovsky's Piano Concerto No. 1. And Cliburn played. After perhaps three minutes, the voice from the booth cut in, saying, "All right, thank you," indicating the mechanics were all set.

Cliburn nodded. So did Kondrashin.

"All right, then. Please be quiet in the gallery. This is J39942, Take One."

A red light on a stick next to Kondrashin went on. He poised his baton. Cliburn, looking like an animated scarecrow, rested his head on his hand. The downbeat. The orchestra began, this time for keeps.

Cliburn's long fingers went to work. Sometimes they're curved and rigid, like an eagle's talons, as they pound out the music. Sometimes they're soft and tender, like a mother caressing a baby, as they make the gentle notes sing. And sometimes they're like a fringe in the wind, the 10 fingers flashing over the keyboard as though racing each other, each one seemingly operated by an independent agency.

In the orchestral portions, when the piano is silent, Cliburn sometimes leaned forward and rested his head on the piano. Sometimes he bent backwards, as though almost falling asleep —and, indeed, once he yawned. His long body curled into innumerable positions when he wasn't called on to play.

ROUGH SPOTS

But when the moment came for him to go to work, he was there. Often he lifted his head high, his eyes closed, and seemed transported. Sometimes, he shook his head, as though in anger at himself for something he'd done. Frequently he leaned forward, close over the keys, and seemed to be daring them to disobey.

It was over. The verdict was it was rough in spots, but they'd fix that with some spot replays and splicing.

Cliburn's mother, who'd held a whispered conference with him just before the concerto began, smiled at him. Kondrashin, who'd watched over him like a mother hen during the performance, nodding, smiling, making little encouraging gestures, shook his hand.

Van Cliburn had made his first American record. And the kids in the balcony were still glued to their seats, as if under a spell.

NEW SARDI'S

The famous Sardi's Restaurant in the theatre district, which long has played an important role in Broadway stage affairs, has spawned a new place far across town on the East Side. Naturally it is known as Sardi's East. At 123 East 54th Street.

The new place has its own personality and is in no way a replica of the parent spot directed by Vincent Sardi Jr. However, it does have a Theatre Room, with murals by Al Hirschfeld, foremost caricaturist of things theatrical.

'World of Wonderful Dark' To Be Colorful Spectacular

Considerable excitement has been aroused among those privileged to see what is going on, by the set designs for Lister Sinclair's play "The World of the Wonderful Dark," which will come to the Royal Theatre August 1 and 2.

Theme of the play, written by Sinclair for the Vancouver International Festival, deals with love and the destroying effects of ruthless ambition. Action is set on the Pacific Coast before arrival of the white man.

Universality of interest comes through the fact that the basic situation is typical of any group anywhere in the world. B.C. locale of the play involves the fascinating and intricate culture of Pacific Coast Indians.

Designer Clifford Robinson has had to take all these elements into consideration in producing his detailed drawings of stage set and the costumes to be worn by a cast of 45 actors and actresses.

One characteristic of the Coast Indian people was the totem symbols of each tribe. In "The World of the Wonderful Dark," the Wolf tribe pits itself against the Raven tribe.

Lister Sinclair specified spectacle and rich costumes in his play and Robinson has interpreted these directions with a lavish hand. "World of the Wonderful Dark" will have much to offer to the eye.

It is being sponsored in its two performances in Victoria by the South Vancouver Island Drama Festival Committee.

THE SOUNDING BOARD

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

There's no doubt about it.

Victoria has to take a back seat to Vancouver in the active, non-contemplative aspects of life.

Some of the reasons are beyond our power to alter—many are not.

Audrey

At the moment, via the "letters to editor" columns of the Times, there is a slight civil war going on. It has all come about because an enemy from without has dared to attack the fond illusion of "Victoria the Perfect," laying about him with double - edged words.

What amazes me is that so few people partaking of the fray can see in focus. It's all er nothin'. Victoria is either a perfumed paradise or a stinking hole.

The truth, of course, is that it's all in the mind of the beholder. Victoria is just a beautiful hump of rocks and vegetation surrounded by sea and enveloped in a benign climate where man has put up a few buildings and made certain arrangements pleasing to some, displeasing to others.

IT'S THE PEOPLE

It differs only from most other places in that all are not so fortunately situated geographically.

All places have people; people come in various mental grades and styles. A major congregation of some particular variety in one area gives that place its character.

If you don't happen to fit in with that character you won't like the place. It's as simple as that.

Our character in Victoria is such that until our major congregation changes form we will continue to lag behind Vancouver and other Canadian cities nearer our own size—in every active sense.

Something like a million people will flood into Vancouver during the International Festival of Arts this month.

Hundreds of Victorians would turn purple at the thought of such a mass descent on our sleepy city. But think—without drooling if you can—of the dollars they are going to spend among the city's merchants, you people up there in the tourist trade office. Think of the prestige Vancouver is gaining, the limelight she is bathing herself in and the consequent shade she is casting over Victoria.

Why even her centennial street decorations—sour grapes to the contrary—are eye-catching, positive, properly co-ordinated and tasteful in contrast to the scrappy, ugly and disorganized effort in the capital city.

We had the Butchart Gardens symphony concerts as a starting point—a signpost pointing out the way. So mistake not; it could have happened here.

Only we lacked the mental capacity.

A pair of debuts are under way at Paramount where James Cagney is trying his hand at directing "Short Cut to Hell." which is being produced by his friend, former press agent A. C. Lyles. Cagney is director only because Lyles asked him to try it. Lyles presumably will try more producing if his first effort with this film is successful.

U.S. Senate Okays Subsidy For Minerals

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Minerals subsidy - stockpile bill, passed by the Senate Friday, may run into trouble in the House of Representatives.

The Senate voted 70 to 12 for legislation to support market prices for domestic lead, zinc, fluorspar and tungsten, and to buy surplus domestic copper.

The House is expected to give the legislation a long look because of the estimated $155,000,000 the minerals program would cost the first year.

With the end of the congressional session only weeks away, a House interior subcommittee, the bill would have to clear the parent interior committee, and the rules committee before it could reach the House itself.

150,000-TON STOCKPILE

The Senate bill would authorize the government to pay up to 27 cents a pound for stockpiling 150,000 tons of copper.

The administration offered the price stabilization plan as a substitute for tariff action which might offend friendly countries, including Canada.

KILLER'S REASON

'Too Many People In The World'

ALBUQUERQUE (AP) — "It had long been known there are too many people in the world," a bearded recluse said from his hospital bed.

So Norman A. Foose, 47, shot and killed two children on the main street of Cuba, N.M., a tiny farming village.

"I had to, there was nothing else I could do about it."

Foose, a former mental hospital patient, then drove to his mountain camp where he had prospected for uranium.

CAPTURED BY POSSE

There, he wounded a pursuing posse member in the shoulder. Friday morning state police flushed him from his hiding place, wounding him in the foot before the capture.

He was driven to a hospital here for surgery on his shattered foot and for questioning.

He said it "is a proven fact" that there should be no more than 10,000 people in the world. Foose said he had been planning on doing something about it for three years, but admitted that getting rid of the excess would be "a big job."

He said he had seen neither of the dead children before. They were Arlene Cebada, 12, and her 14-year-old nephew, Eddie Cebada. But when he saw "it would be so easy, I had to."

NO REGRETS

Is he sorry he killed the children?

"No, I'm not. They had to be pulled down."

Will he attempt to "pull down" others?

"Not with rifles."

Why a rifle for Eddie and Arlene?

"Because it was all I had with me."

Then he tired of the questioning and turned to the interviewer.

"You are to stop this right now. Otherwise, I will have to shut you down."

The interview ended.

Parents Can't Have Girl's Body

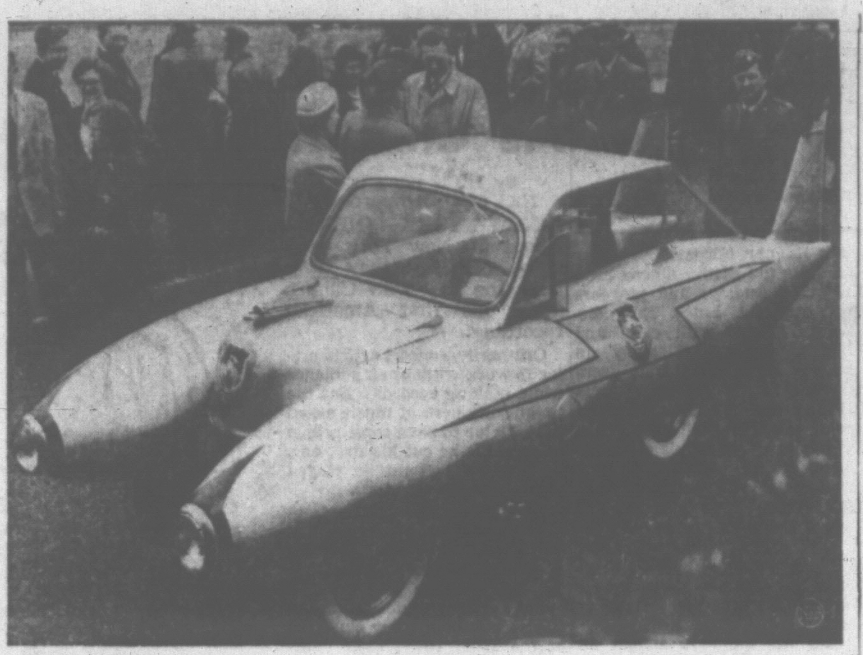
QUESNEL (CP) — Cariboo MLA William Speare has demanded an investigation of the B.C. Indian Affairs Branch because of its "rank discrimination" in refusing to allow the parents of a dead Indian girl to claim her body.

The child, Doreen Jack, five, of the Nazko Indian Reserve, died of severe burns Wednesday in a Vancouver hospital after being transferred from Quesnel.

Mr. Speare said the girl's father, Jean Louis Jack, planned to bring the body back to Quesnel for burial. The Indian department at Williams Lake, he said, asked Chief Dominic Charlie to inform Mr. Jack that the body would not be returned.

Mr. Speare said his inquiries showed the Vancouver Indian office has decided the child should be buried on a North Vancouver Indian reserve as a cheaper alternative to shipping the body back to the parents.

"I have never heard of anything so callous . . . this is only one of many incidents of B.C. Indians being treated like dirt," he said.



YOU NAME IT—We'll bet that, name or no name, it'll never get off the ground. A do-it-yourself project of U.S. Air Force Lt.-Col. Edward H. Risher, this nameless vehicle is causing quite a stir in Wethersfield, Eng., where Col. Risher is stationed. Beginning with a Ford Anglia chassis, Risher added, among other things, a cut-down Chevrolet hood, Austin Bantam wheels and the rear windshield from an American Ford. The balloon-shaped fenders and body? They were once wing tanks on a T-33 jet trainer.

ACROSS THE PROVINCE

Plumbers' Union Rejects Arbitration of Dispute

(From CP Dispatches)

VANCOUVER — Plumbing contractors on the lower mainland said Friday they are prepared to settle their lengthy dispute by compulsory arbitration.

But the plumbers and pipefitters union refused to accept the scheme.

R. K. Gervin, spokesman for the 120 contractors who locked out union employees April 30, said he expected union officials to agree to the proposal but union business agent J. R. St. Eloi said: "The union is against arbitration on principle. We will not accept it."

Mr. Gervin said the contractors have asked the provincial government to form an industrial inquiry commission to investigate the dispute. He said the lockout has halted 127 construction projects valued at $43,960,000 and has caused the layoff of more than 2,200 men.

The lockout occurred after the plumbers refused to accept an offer of six cents an hour increase in wages. They demanded a 60-cent increase. The present rate is $2.70 an hour.

BRIDGE FUND

VANCOUVER—The public fund for families of the 18 men who died in last month's disastrous collapse of the new Second Narrows Bridge here now totals more than $35,000, it was reported Friday.

BRUSH FIRE

CHILLIWACK — About 100 volunteers assisted Chilliwack municipal firemen Friday in bringing under control a 50-acre brush fire which had threatened five homes in its path.

The fire, about five miles southwest of Chilliwack, came within 20 feet of one home before firemen halted creeping flames.

Volunteers and firemen, armed with wet sacks, beat out the flames before the fire reached four other homes. Volunteers rushed to the area after RCMP and firemen issued a radio appeal for help.

DOUKHOBORS

SALMO — Two Blaine Lake, Sask., men have been elected to head the Doukhobor Society of Canada.

Elected were Max Ostoforoff and Peter S. Bludoff. They succeed William M. Papove and Peter S. Faminow of Vancouver.

The group, a religious and pacifist organization representing several hundred Doukhobors on the prairies and in Vancouver, changed its name from the Union of Doukhobors of ally instead of following a spiritual leader.

GRAIN SHIPMENT

VANCOUVER — The first Peace River grain to reach Vancouver by Pacific Great Eastern Railway arrived in the city Friday.

The train, delayed an hour by an engine derailment near the PGE depot at North Vancouver, carried 100,000 pounds of wheat and 100,000 pounds of barley.

Following the arrival of the shipment, directors of United Grain Growers Limited held a board meeting. Reports said the company is considering building an elevator at Fort St. John, B.C., to facilitate Peace River grain movement.

Peace River crops this year are expected to total only half of last year's tonnage because of drought.

THEFT SUSPECTED

VANCOUVER — The second of two men charged with theft of $10,108 in a stock investment deal was committed for trial Friday.

Bail was set at $5,000 for Miller Graham, 47. Eldon J. Johnston, 54, was committed for trial on the same charge a week ago.

They are charged with theft of the money from William G. McKerlie who said he gave them the money to purchase diversified income stocks, but it was not used for that purpose.

MORE EGGS EATEN

LANGLEY—Consumption of eggs in Canada is increasing at the rate of approximately one dozen annually for every man, woman and child, Prof. Ross Chavers of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, told the final business session of the B.C. poultry conference here Friday.

KITIMAT FELT QUAKE

KITIMAT — The earthquake that struck southeastern Alaska Wednesday rocked the B.C. aluminum city of Kitimat twice. The first quake, lasting about a minute, was followed by another seconds later.

NEWS MAN NAMED

VANCOUVER — Appointment of Vancouver Sun reporter Ed Moyer as public relations manager of the Pacific National Exhibition was announced here today by A. P. Morrow, PNE general manager.

Mr. Moyer, president of the Newsmen's Club of B.C., succeeds Charles M. Defieux.

Several Changes Among Managers Of CPR Hotels

WINNIPEG (CP) — Several changes in top management appointments in the Canadian Pacific Hotels system were announced Friday.

D. A. Williams, manager of the Royal Alexandra Hotel in Winnipeg, will become manager of Chateau Lake Louise, succeeding L. C. Parkinson, who has been appointed food and beverage operations manager for the system.

R. M. Deyell, manager of the Palliser Hotel in Calgary, will take over in Winnipeg and be succeeded in Calgary by F. C. Pitt, now manager of the Saskatchewan Hotel in Regina.

C. M. Rennie, manager of hotels in Nova Scotia, will move to Regina and will be succeeded by H. S. Walker, now at Devil's Gap Lodge in Kenora, Ont. W. M. Farrer of Montreal will take over in Kenora.

OTTAWA (CP) — John T. Dallas, Winnipeg grain executive, has been appointed a member of the Canadian wheat board, it was announced Friday. Commissioner William Riddell has been appointed assistant chief commissioner.

WILL CARRY 127 PASSENGERS

TCA Jet Airliners Will Be Plush Craft

Trans-Canada Air Lines has announced that its Douglas DC-8 Jetliners will carry 127 passengers in each plane—28 in the first class section and 99 in the economy cabin.

The DC-8, which made its maiden flight May 30 at Long Beach, California, will be operated by TCA on transcontinental and trans-Atlantic routes. Six of these jetliners will go into service in 1960.

In releasing information on the configuration of the DC-8 for the first time, TCA said the huge airliner will have the most modern and up-to-date conveniences to ensure the utmost in comfort, luxury and speed.

The forward part of the almost 150-foot long aircraft will contain a lounge to accommodate eight passengers. Each section—first class and economy—will have its own double galley, washrooms, cloakrooms, inter-communications and public address systems and music in flight.

There will be four doors, two for passenger loading and two used for servicing the aircraft. The huge cargo compartment will accommodate some five tons of freight and express and mail.

The 550-mile-an-hour airplane, almost two and a half times bigger than a DC-3 and some 35 feet longer than the Super G Constellation, will cut flying time almost in half. It will operate Vancouver to Toronto in four hours and Montreal to London, England, in six hours.

TCA is expecting delivery of its first DC-8 in the fall of next year and by mid-1960 the six jetliners, costing $6,000,000 each, will be in regular service.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Summer Lull Hits Economy Across U.S.

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. economy settled down into a summer lull this week. But while most lines loafed along in a mid-July torpor, signs that could mean a fall upturn flickered on the business horizon.

Commerce secretary Sinclair Weeks ticked off some of these favorable indicators in his first press conference since the recession began. They included:

Industrial production on the upbeat . . .

Employment totals and hours worked a week in U.S. manufacturing industries on the rise again . . .

Weeks volunteered this hopeful forecast: There won't be much change in the economy in the summer vacation months, but "a definite upswing seems in the cards for fall."

SHARES OPTIMISM

Wall Street seemed to share this optimism. Halted momentarily by a cut in the Ford dividend, the stock market came back strong and finished with the averages at a high for the year.

Defence contracts made news again this week. Boeing Airplane Company received contracts totalling more than $320,500,000 for jet bombers and parts; Douglas Aircraft got a $12,613,800 award for rockets for jet fighter planes.

New car sales have picked up a bit in recent weeks but not as much as dealers would like. Autos are still the softest spot in the consumer spending picture.

The latest government statistics tell the story: Total retail spending last month came within one per cent of matching June, 1957, but auto sales were down 30 per cent.

WEATHERVANE

Many observers say that what happens to business as a whole next fall will depend heavily on the auto industry's 1959 models. If new 1959 cars go over, business will improve with a bang in the steel, coal, nickel, aluminum, copper, glass, rubber and textile industries, to name a few. More jobs and bigger payrolls will channel more cash into retail stores.

Steel makers, pondering the possibility of a price increase next month, are keeping their fingers crossed; auto manufacturers and dealers are biting their nails. The new cars that will appear in dealers' showrooms in a couple of months were designed two years ago. They're bigger and loaded with more chrome than this year's models. Has the public's taste undergone a change? Detroit and Pittsburgh wish they knew.

Exports Doubled To European Areas

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's exports to continental European countries more than doubled during May, the bureau of statistics has reported.

Along with lesser increases to the United Kingdom and other Commonwealth countries, these outweighed decreased shipments to the United States, Latin America and other foreign countries to bring the May total for all exports up to $476,800,000. Exports in May of last year were $437,000,000.

New Stamp to Mark Petroleum Industry

OTTAWA (CP)—A five-cent stamp commemorating Canada's role in the development of the petroleum industry is to be isued next September, the post office department has announced.

The stamp, printed in green and red, is to be released during the World Power Conference in Montreal, to be attended by 1,700 delegates representing 52 countries.

Cinderella Stock's Upsurge Highlight of Week's Trading

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Speculators enjoyed their biggest runs since the spring of 1957 and Canadian stock exchanges broke all existing single-day volume records during the week.

The week's volume at Toronto of 50,792,000 shares was the heaviest week since the five-day period ending April 9, 1956, when 62,082,000 shares traded while the uranium boom was at its peak.

New Hosco, the cinderella stock that bounced from 17 cents two weeks ago to $7.25 on Monday, supplied the spark and Quebec's Mattagami Lake district was the torch for speculators.

New Hosco closed the week at $4.50 for a gain of $1.35. It lost $1.35 Friday after the company reported its second drill hole averaged 2.66 per cent over 142 feet. The first hole averaged 4.01 per cent over 77 feet.

With the spurt of New Hosco, almost every stock that was within walking distance of its property moved ahead for good gains before dropping back.

SPECULATIVE URGE

The urge to speculate spread to other properties and Consolidated Halliwell, another copper stock, bounced ahead for a smart gain before dropping back.

But while volumes soared, the stock market generally was not keeping pace with the speculatives. At Toronto industrials were the only section to show an index advance and their's was a slim 1½ points. Golds were off a few decimal points but base metals and western oils each were down more than a point.

Among industrials, International Pete was the big winner, adding $13.50 to $59.25. The stock moved up $10 Friday on word that Standard Oil, New Jersey, had obtained slightly less than 97 per cent of the company's outstanding stock. Standard offered International shareholders nine shares of its stock for 10 International.

Federal Grain went up $5 to $39 following a rumor the company was planning a tax-free distribution to shareholders.

Among the losers were Ford stocks. The parent United States company announced Wednesday a 20-cent cut in dividend payments.

International Nickel was a $2.25 loser at $73.50 as the company announced its Sudbury plant would operate on a four-day week effective July 14.

Golds and western oils had few major changes.

Index changes at Toronto: Industrials up 1.50 to 453.38; golds off .09 to 82.65; base metals off 1.75 to 155.38; western oils off 1.31 to 135.45.

Index changes at Montreal: Banks up .59 to 52.13; utilities off 1.2 to 139.2; industrials up .7 to 267.2; combined unchanged at 224.5; papers new up 1.8 to 377.5; papers old up 11.05 to 1,161.14; golds off 2.47 to 70.93.

Rail Probe Report Due Next Week

MONTREAL (CP) — Two sets of recommendations aimed at solving the big contract dispute between Canada's major railways and their 130,000 non-operating employees are expected to be delivered to Labor Minister Starr next week, it was learned here Friday.

A three-man conciliation board that began studying the wage arguments last March 3 is approaching the end of private talks without achieving a unanimous report.

The dispute involves wage demands worth $100,000,000 served last November on the CNR, CPR and four smaller railways by 15 unions bargaining jointly for such railway workers as freight handlers, clerks, shop craftsmen and maintenance men.

In money and workers, it is Canada's largest single labor scrap. It is also regarded as "rule of thumb" guide to wage settlements for most other railway workers.

DRAFT REPORTS

The three conciliators are in the final stages of drafting their reports. But observers say the most expected from their last-minute consultations is a majority report plus a separate minority finding.

The railways argue that no wage increase is justified at present and asks for a straight one-year extension of the present contract which was to have expired last Dec. 31.

The unions, headed by Frank Hall of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC), seek a wage increase that works out to about 35 cents an hour plus other benefits. They say they will accept a two-stage wage increase in a two-year contract.

The dispute could produce another nation-wide strike that would tie up both railways. The non-ops halted rail transportation for nine days in 1950 over a similar scrap.

Wholesale Price Index Up in May

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's general wholesale price index rose slightly in May due to higher prices for animal products, the bureau of statistics has announced.

The index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, advanced to 228.1 from 227.9 in April. The index stood at 228 in May of last year.

This subindex registered its sixth consecutive monthly rise. It has increased 13 per cent since last November.

AT AND T PROFITS UP

NEW YORK (UP)—American Telephone and Telegraph Co., whose subsidiaries comprise the nation's biggest utility, reported today its net income in the June quarter rose to $182,140,000, equal to $2.72 a share.

In the similar three months of 1957 AT & T's profits were $168,359,932 or $2.67 per share.

VICTORIA, B.C., SATURDAY, JULY 12, 1958

ANY MINUTE NOW . . .

THOUSANDS IN 'FIELD OF COLOR'

By TONY DICKASON

From the usual number of Saturday shoppers, the crowd in downtown Victoria swelled to thousands within a matter of minutes for Princess Margaret today.

Surprisingly, the city centre provided an uninterrupted view of the smiling, waving princess as she headed from airport to hotel.

She passed the intersection of Yates and Douglas at exactly 10.48 a.m., a vision in radiant soft blue, seated beside Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross in the black, shiny open car.

The patient, expectant and quiet crowd began assembling about 10.15. Scrubbed children sat on the curb. Everything was orderly—until the motorcycle escort heralded arrival of the Princess.

Then they scrambled, like one person, across Douglas and overlapped the far lane along which the Princess travelled.

Police cries of "stand back" were ignored. They moved to let the royal car through only when the motorcycle escort practically ran over toes.

The wave of people crossing to the traffic lane and returning when the Princess passed was a field of summer colors undulating the entire length of Douglas.

CLOUD, RAIN THREATEN GARDEN PARTY

A weather disturbance is expected to bring cloud, and even light rain, to the city Sunday night and Monday morning, weatherman Sid Ramsden said here today.

"This new storm is stronger than the one that gave us cloud today," he said. "We are hoping it will pass in time to leave Monday afternoon clear for the Lieutenant-Governor's garden party at Government House."

There were a few cheers, but hand clapping was paramount.

'It All Happened So Fast' for Crowd

A solid representation of navy—RN, RCN and USN was there.

"Able Seaman" Rickey Hains, 12, 1514 Amphion, snapped to attention when the Princess passed. Several navy men saluted.

The persons who saw her were a widely representative group — many with personal connections with royalty over the years.

Miss Betty Mellish, Vancouver, who carried a portable radio to "keep in touch" with the Princess' arrival, a member of the WREN reserve, was one of the honor guard when the Duchess of Kent was in Halifax.

"I'm definitely patriotic. This sort of thing gives me a real thrill."

Italian-born Frank Tonin, 863 Fleming, said "I've seen them all—years ago in England." He was a member of the Italian army at that time. He was standing amongst the longest of anyone on hand, a full hour. He was 84.

It wasn't exactly "old hat" to CPO Gordon Sutherland, a veteran of 16 years in the navy, but he did see the Princess in London "about a year-and-a-half ago."

"She was just passing by, then too."

"I might be 'duty' Tuesday when we have her at Royal Roads," he said.

"I came in to shop, and this is as good a place as any to see the Princess," said Mrs. Sarah King, 1135 Lyall.

Middies Stayed 'To Pay Respects'

"And I was privileged to shake the hand of the Prince of Wales in 1919."

Two midshipmen from USS Bennington had a slight argument. One wanted to push on and do shopping. Said the other: "We've got to stay and pay our respects." They stayed.

"The Empress Hotel? Where's the Empress Hotel?" asked two excited visiting American women of a bus driver standing in the crowd. "We want to see your queen there."

Midshipman Robert W. Barrett of Bennington, whose home town is Aberdeen, South Dakota, was somewhat nonplussed with the entire affair. He had a bundle of laundry—looked like shirts—under one arm.

Hardly the sort of thing to be carrying when one is a potential officer and a princess passes by, he indicated. But he just hadn't been able to find a laundry fast enough.

BIGGEST FLY-PAST OVER CITY

Local Fliers to Salute Princess

Three Victoria and district airmen will take part in a Monday fly-past here to honor Princess Margaret during an armed services parade at 11.40 a.m. The Princess will review the services from a stand on the causeway in front of the Empress Hotel.

It will be the largest mass fly-past of jet and piston driven aircraft ever flown over the city. All are stationed at Comox.

FO. Sinclair Ash, 24, son of R. L. Ash of Langford, will be an observer in a Lancaster with 407 Maritime Squadron. An extra bonus for the young airman, born in Victoria and educated at Belmont High School, was the granting of his permanent RCAF commission today. He enlisted in 1953.

Flying as observer in a CF-100 will be FO. Robert A. Sherratt, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Sherratt, 2725 Musgrave Street. Another CF-100 observer will be FO. Ronald C. Scattergood, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Scattergood, 1680 Island Highway.

A total of 37 aircraft will take part in the fly-past. It will include CF-100 all-weather fighters, F-86 Sabre fighters and Lancaster and Neptune bombers used on sea patrols.

'Floating HQ' Office Docks Here for Navy Celebrations

USS Estes, classed as a combined Operations Communications Headquarters ship, is designed as the "office" of the senior officer in command of amphibious operations.

From her he can direct action at sea and on land. Until a beachhead is established, Estes and ships of her class are used, not only to transmit direct orders, but to move communications traffic between other ships and shore establishments.

The operations of navy week continued smoothly Friday, with a "come-one, come-all" dance at Memorial Arena ending the day. About 2,000 attended, danced to the music of Len Acres, watched special entertainment by members of various ship's companies.

Navy bands will perform at Beacon Hill Park Sunday commencing at 3 p.m.

All churches in the city expect attendance from visiting sailors. Special services will also be conducted at HMCS Naden and HMC Dockyard, for servicemen only.

ERRANT TANKER'S OIL SMUDGE SPARKS HASTY ROYAL PAINT JOB

All warships taking part in the Naval Review Tuesday will be open to the public today and Sunday—with one important exception.

HMCS Crescent, in which Princess Margaret will be embarked as reviewing authority, cannot receive visitors.

The reason?

TOPICS OF THE DAY

About 3,000 volunteer house-to-house canvasers will be needed for the Greater Victoria Community Chest drive this year.

Alan MacFarlane, co-chairman of the residential division of the appeal, said if sufficient volunteers are obtained, "each person will only have to spend two or three hours on the job. We need them early so they can be given full detials."

Volunteers can contact Mr. MacFarlane at 3-1158 or his co-chairman, Mrs. Noel Morgan, at 7-3211.

Cadet J. S. Elliott of Victoria, with the RCN university naval training division on the Atlantic Coast, has won the award as the most outstanding first-year cadet.

He was presented the award in Halifax Friday by Rear Admiral Hugh Pullen, Flag Officer, Atlantic Coast.

Returning officer Gordon Hayward said voting in today's Saanich by-election was light to noon.

Fine weather was expected to draw more voters to the polls during the afternoon as Saanich residents elect a new reeve and one councillor from eight candidates.

Both posts expire in December, 1959.

Final sanding of the beaches will take place Sunday and more trucks are required. Various companies have already volunteered the use of 15 trucks, and others should be at the Saanich pit, Cordova Bay Road, after 8 a.m. Sunday.

Sand has been donated by Saanich municipality, and Esquimalt public works department is now building a 125-foot long log bridge to the park from Sioux Place.

Forty-eight blind persons and guides will move to Sunshine Camp at Sassenos on Monday for a 10-day vacation at the popular resort. Despite their handicap, the guests will enjoy boating, archery, horseshoe pitching and other recreations.

Other summer guests at the camp, which is operated by the Family and Children's Service and partially financed by the Community Chest, will include old age pensioners, mothers and children and physically-handicapped citizens.

Above-normal weather and an upswing in tourist trade brought about a slight drop in the number of persons registered for employment in the Greater Victoria area last week.

Number of men applying for work dropped by 90 and there are now 67 less women registered than a week ago. There are 3,294 men and 1,425 women registered as out of employment. Almost 200 persons still registered with the farm labor unit have little chance of further berry picking work.

Branch No. 1, Old Age Pensioners' Association, will be guests at the Royal Theatre at 1 p.m. Tuesday.

The association will meet at 1.30 p.m. Wednesday in the Knights of Pythias Hall.

They carried free prospectors' certificates and permits to carry firearms.

The older man gave a Bay Street address as his last place of residence; the young man said he was from Kamloops.

U.K.'s 'Minister of Fine Arts' Inspects Art Gallery Project

Philip James, director of the Arts Council of Great Britain and known unofficially as Britain's "Minister of Fine Arts," spent a few hours in Victoria today to inspect progress on the Art Gallery centennial wing.

He began his career as a librarian in the Middle Temple, then moved to the Victoria and Albert Museum. He is famous for his direction of the arts council, which is responsible for the administration of funds for the Royal Ballet and Covent Garden Opera.

It also makes grants in support of British music, drama, painting and sculpture.

Mr. James is spending a few weeks in Vancouver in connection with centennial events there.

First Copies of Jubilee Book Presented to Lieut.-Governor

First copies of Dr. H. H. Murphy's book, "The Royal Jubilee Hospital," were presented Friday afternoon to His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor Frank McK. Ross, Premier W. A. C. Bennett and Mayor Percy B. Scurrah.

In accepting the book, His Honor said that the hospital was "very fortunate to have had the services of a man like Dr. Murphy" to produce the work, which marks the centenary of the Jubilee.

In a graceful acknowledgement, Dr. Murphy ~~said that~~, while the character of medical service was changing, with the participation of the federal government in a national plan, he was "one of those optimists who believed that Canadians would meet the new era with courage, resourcefulness and determination," with benefit to the whole society.

FINED, LICENCE TAKEN

David Smith Gibb, 463 Davida, was fined $250 and his licence restricted to business driving only for one year when he pleaded guilty in city police court today to impaired driving.

Youth Showing Progress After Heart Operation

Cameron Hoegi, 14-year-old Duncan boy who underwent a serious heart operation at the Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday, was said to be making "satisfactory progress" today. But he is enduring considerable pain.

He is undergoing therapy treatment this afternoon.

"It will be some time before we know if the operation was a complete success," a hospital official said.

Strike Averted

Threat of a bus strike here has been averted as drivers have accepted recommendation of a conciliation board for a 12 per cent wage increase.

Members of the Street Railwaymen's Union here and in Vancouver voted for the boost, to be spread over two years.

Present pay for drivers is $1.96 an hour. The increase would give them $2.09½ in the first year, and $2.20 in the second year of the agreement.

Active Public Service Worker Dies

Mrs. Marjorie Thorne Gillespie, 69, resident of Victoria for 10 years and well known for her community efforts, died today at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Born in Winnipeg, daughter of the late John B. Persse, she lived in Winnipeg, Kelowna, and Vancouver before making her home here.

With her husband, Dugald Gillespie, she was an active worker in the Canadian Cancer Society, Victoria branch. She also was interested in the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, and other organizations devoted to public service.

Surviving, besides her husband, at 841 St. Charles St., are a daughter, Mrs. C. Carothers Carpenter, 4060 Cedar Hill Road; two sons, John D. Gooderham, West Vancouver, and W. G. Gooderham, Courtenay; and two sisters, Mrs. Geoffrey Macdonald and Mrs. L. S. H. Redmond, both of Winnipeg.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at 11 a.m. at the Church of St. George the Martyr, Cadboro Bay.

Princess Can't Have Island 'It's Ours' Says Indian Chief

Chief Andy Paull of North Vancouver says the British Columbia government doesn't own the island it plans to give Princess Margaret and he has asked Prime Minister Diefenbaker to advise the Princess not to accept it.

Chief Paull, president of the North American Indian Brotherhood, says in an open letter to Mr. Diefenbaker that acceptance of the gift by Princess Margaret "would not be in keeping with the dignity and solemnity of Her Highness, in that the B.C. government does not own any of the islands in B.C.—nor do they own all that now is known as British Columbia."

The provincial government announced Friday it will offer the Princess 540-acre Portland Island, off Swartz Bay near Sidney, at a ceremony Monday. Recreation Minister Earle C. Westwood said that if she accepts, the island will be developed as a provincial marine park.

Chief Paull's letter says that the B.C. government is not in a position to make the gift because the land is guaranteed to the Indians under the British North America Act.

"The B.C. government has persistently refused to comply with the proclamation of King George III in 1763 . . . wherein His Majesty proclaimed that the native Indians must be compensated for their lands and that they should meet the Indians in council for the extinguishment of the native title—and this has never been done."

Chief Paull says another decree that the Indians must receive compensation was made in 1858 by Queen Victoria.

'Holy Relics' Pilgrimage In Germany

AACHEN, West Germany (Reuters)—The pilgrimage of the holy relics, held here every seven years since the 14th century, was opened Wednesday.

More than 500,000 pilgrims are expected to crowd into this West German city to see the relics in the cathedral tower every afternoon until July 27.

The relics, described as the robe of the Virgin Mary, the swaddling and loin cloths of Christ, and John the Baptist's beheading cloth, are housed in a golden shrine.

Historians believe that the Emperor Charlemagne received the relics in the year 800 as a gift from the patriarch of Jerusalem.

LANGFORD — Baptist and United churches vacation school will be held starting Monday through to July 25 at Gordon United Church.

Rev. S. Neale, the minister, will be superintendent.

Sales Tax Won't Be Reduced Until Revenues Show Boost

The B.C. government cannot decrease the current 5 per cent provincial sales tax until a tax of 1 per cent will yield enough revenue to meet hospital costs.

This was explained by Premier W. A. C. Bennett Thursday.

He said, at present, only two-fifths of the tax is used for hospital purposes—2 of the 5 per cent.

If the tax was reduced to 4 per cent, then only 1 per cent actually would be available to the hospital insurance service.

"Anytime that 1 per cent can take care of the cost of hospital insurance to the government, then we'll reduce the tax 1 per cent," the premier stated.

He said many persons have pointed to the approximately $12,500,000 contribution by the federal government to the B.C. hospital insurance scheme under the new partnership effective this month.

But in effect, this isn't "found money."

The federal contribution was taken into consideration in this year's estimates, according to the health department.

Balancing the increase in revenue, however, is an anticipated drop of $8,000,000 in sales tax, which means $3,000,000 less income for BCHIS through the tax.

And the estimates also show payments to hospitals this year will be up $2,000,000 and grants in aid of hospital construction are increased $3,200,000.

EXTRA COSTS

Since the estimates were drawn, there have been new costs apparent — such as $1,600,000 in added hospital operations.

And, because the federal-provincial partnership now means the province must share in paying for veterans' hospitals, and there are some fields in which the federal government won't share, the sum of $3,000,000 will be added to costs.

According to this year's estimates, if the federal government's $12,500,000 hadn't been available, that amount would have had to be raised somewhere else or the hospital-aid program cut accordingly.

"No Government ought to be free of censors and where the press is free none will ever be." —Thomas Jefferson, 3rd President of the U.S.A.

Multi-Magazine Publisher Here Prefers to Talk About Music

BY TONY DICKASON

Floyd S. Chalmers, 59, heads a Canadian publishing house which produces 45 magazines and newspapers. Their circulation is close to the 2,000,000 mark.

But he prefers to talk music.

The president of Maclean Hunter Publishing Co. Ltd., Toronto, is in Victoria today with his wife on a sort of "second honeymoon." They honeymooned here 37 years ago and it is Mrs. Chalmers first return visit.

As chairman of the Opera Festival Association of Toronto, he predicts historic old Massey Hall will continue as the symphony site for years, despite erection of a new $11,000,000 building which could incorporate such performances. Tradition counts.

Mr. Chalmers said Victoria Symphony conductor Hans Gruber has made a "remarkably fine" contribution to this city's cultural life with his "building" of the present orchestra.

The company chief has been "associated" with music 25 years, and for 20 years was on the board of the famed Toronto Conservatory.

"But I am not a musician in the sense of being a performer. I represent what might be termed the consuming public compared with the producer."

As a member of the board of governors, Stratford Shakespearean Festival, he believes strongly that Canadians generally need spiritual and cultural resources to live the well-rounded life.

Canada is outgrowing the "flapjack" influence in cultural approaches, he said, as evidenced at Stratford. Otherwise "it would be impossible to conceive such a thing."

He admitted, however, that this country would be richer culturally if there were not certain mechanical barriers in the professions to acceptance of new Canadians. This was also true of music.

Capable musicians had packed up and gone home to the "Continent" when they couldn't get jobs here, he said, indicating the situation was union-caused.

"This has been a great handicap."

He termed Canada, in fields economic and political as well as cultural, "confident but modest" now that with maturity the feeling of national inferiority had been discarded.

So, for the first time, individual talent can live in Canada, and still be recognized throughout the world, he said.

Even in medicine and engineering, this country is retaining to a larger degree than ever before the professional men; they were not going south, nor east, nor west.

Mr. Chalmers' company publishes Maclean's Magazine, Chatelaine, Canadian Homes and Gardens, the Financial Post and many trade magazines.

Crews Blasting To Widen Quadra

Widening of one block of Bay Street west of Quadra will be completed in "three to four weeks," City Engineer James Garnett said Friday.

City crews are blasting the rock face lining the north side of the block to widen the road from 21 to 40 feet and provide an additional five-foot strip for a sidewalk.

Mr. Garnett said the $8,264 job will fill the last remaining gap in the sidewalk system on Bay. Traffic is being detoured around the work site.

Women

Mrs. H. S. Rayner, wife of the Flag Officer, Pacific Coast, was among those greeting the Princess Margaret when she arrived at Patricia Bay Airport this morning.

The Princess And the Fleet

With the arrival of Her Royal Highness the Princess Margaret this morning, Victoria's centennial celebrations have reached a peak. And highlight of the visit will be Princess Margaret's review of the fleet, the first to be made by a member of the Royal Family in Canada.

Consequently, the navy plays an important part during the Royal Visit to Victoria. On this page we show a few of the wives of naval officers who will have the honor of entertaining or meeting the Princess.

Ships of the Royal Canadian Navy steam into position, line astern, as they will do on Monday getting into position for Royal Review of the fleet. Her Royal Highness, the Princess Margaret, will review the ships anchored in Royal Roads, from HMCS Crescent.

Historic Admiral's House is background for this picture of naval officers' wives gathered to discuss events of Fleet Week. Left to right are Mrs. M. H. Cooke, wife of commanding officer of HMCS Stettler, senior ship in the frigate squadron; Mrs. J. C. Pratt, whose husband is commanding officer of HMCS Crescent, ship in which Princess Margaret will be embarked during her review of the fleet; Mrs. S. G. Moore, wife of the senior officer of the Second Canadian Minesweeping Squadron, and Mrs. J. C. Littler, wife of the commander of HMCS Ontario.

Mrs. Porter is the wife of Commander H. Porter, naval centennial co-ordinator, who works with the Centennial committee on all activities connected with the RCN.

Mrs. P. S. Cooper is the wife of the commandant of Canadian Services College, Royal Roads, where Princess Margaret will be guest of honor at dinner following the Naval Review.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Stimulation Often Gives Complexion New Bloom

It is lucky for us that time adds up gradually, since this gives us the opportunity to fight the aging processes day by day. Whenever we see a woman who looks years younger than she actually is, we can be sure that she has indulged in daily beauty care for her complexion.

Some lucky people are just born with a beautiful skin and seem to keep it no matter what they do. However, these are the exceptions. Most of us have to pay the price of daily care in order to have a presentable outer coating. The big three in skin care are cleansing, stimulation and lubrication.

Most women are aware of the importance of cleansing and lubrication but many forgot about stimulation of circulation. Of course general exercise whips the blood up in the face and neck as well as over the body. However, local stimulation often seems to clear the complexion and give it a new bloom.

There are many splendid masks and creams on the market which do this. They usually are dubbed "circulation" creams. Then there is the Epsom salt treatment and the clay pack with which you work at home. The clay pack long has been thought to be good for large pores. If you wish to try it, buy some fuller's earth at any drugstore.

Mix equal parts of witch hazel and peroxide and add this to the fuller's earth. Use enough of the liquid to make the mixture smooth and easy to apply. Cover the face with it and leave it on until it dries. Later on remove it with water.

The Epsom salt facial is somewhat drying. It is therefore good for the oily skin and questionable for a very dry one. This is how you do it. Put two pints of hot water in one bowl and two pints of ice cold water in another.

Put four tablespoonfuls of Epsom salts in each bowl. Let the salts dissolve. Cleanse your face and then soak a cloth in the hot water. Wring it out and hold it against the face and neck, putting the cloth in the hot water periodically. After about five minutes of this, soak a cloth in the ice cold water. Apply it to the face and neck. After a while rinse the face with plain ice water.

This not only stirs up circulation but you will find it most refreshing.

Books Can't Teach Dance Of Maoris

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — Girl guides in Toronto want to learn the Maori poi dance. They have written to New Zealand for instructions, but have been regretfully told this is one thing you just can't learn from books.

The public relations office in Auckland, New Zealand, received a request for the information from the Toronto Guides' Organization. It was desired to stage the dance in a pageant.

But though the office searched the city, no written instructions on poi dancing could be found. Maoris declared they had never seen written details of how to do it, and they doubted very much if they would be of any help in any case.

The poi dance is the most famous dance of Maori maidens. It is the Maori equivalent of the hula, danced in various forms in most of the Pacific islands.

But instead of swaying only the hips and arms, the Maoris also swing the little grass balls called pois in intricate and fascinating rhythms.

The poi is about the size of a baseball, made usually of dried broad-leaved swamp grasses. They are attached to woven strings of similar material—a few inches long for the short poi, and several feet for the long poi.

As they sing and dance the Maroi girls twirl the pois in endless motion, managing them with hands, arms, elbows, in expert fashion which requires long practice and an inborn sense of rhythm. The pattern of pois, adjusted to the subject matter of the action songs, is an essential part of the presentation.

The Maoris sang unaccompanied in the old days, and the swish and slap of the pois set the time for the songs.

With practice some of the poi dances can be mastered by white people, but the Maoris insist they cannot be learned by study.

However, the public relations office, determined not to disappoint the Toronto guides, is sending a newly-published book on Maori games containing illustrations of pois and poi dancing.

From that they may be able to prepare the necessary pois and costumes. Then all they need to do is find a Maori to act as instructor.

New York in Midsummer Sees Preview of Winter Fashion

Summer is here in all her glory and we all hope she remains for many more weeks but the fashion-minded woman is beginning to ask "What is the news for fall?"

Nona

Tomorrow being the opening day of the 31st National Press Week of the Couture Group of the New York Dress Institute, I will pass along to you some of the advance news which I have received.

Each new season there are always a few features which really stand out . . . they are usually changes which have been taking place in a subtle way for a few months but it isn't until the Paris and New York fall and winter or spring and summer showings as the case may be that they are really official.

The outstanding silhouette to be found in all collections next week will be the Trapeze which the Couture Group defines as . . . "The silhouette which flares out sharply below the shoulders, somewhat like a child's dress. The name is derived from the geometrical figure, trapezoid, a pyramid with a flattened top."

There are approximately 58 fashion showings scheduled for the week and the word "Sack" will be ignored by each and every commentator.

The chemise of last season, which was as straight as possible will be replaced by a modified version which retains the unfitted waist but features emphasis at either the bosom or low, near the hemline.

The names Directoire and Empire will be heard repeatedly, both signifying an extremely high-waisted appearance. The Directoire line falls loosely from the high bosom and the Empire falls in form fitting fashion.

This season there is no long or short controversy . . . dresses are just below the knee . . . not 12, 14, or 16 inches from the floor but just covering the knee cap. (I can just hear the groans and believe me I agree with you.)

"Mohair" wool is big news for suits and coats.

Fur as a trimming will be found on clothes for all occasions.

Two very well-known designers will be missed from the fashion showings this season. Claire McCardell whose name is synonymous with "The American Look" passed away a few months ago and last Monday Maurice Rentner died in New York. Mr. Renter was credited with creating the shirtwaist dress and the soft evening shirt.

Helena Rubinstein has very recently returned from Europe and she is having open house for all the fashion press women at her Park Avenue home tomorrow afternoon. She has added several pictures to her fabulous art collection and she is most anxious to show them off.

Monday evening Ship 'n Shore blouse is hosting the gals to a theatre party to see Mary Healy in "Who Was That Lady I Saw You With."

Tuesday night is the fabulous Diamond Dinner in the Sert Room of the Waldorf Astoria. Uniformed guards are placed at each entrance during the show.

Wednesday evening Schiffli Lace and Embroidery Institute are taking the gang to see "Oh, Captain," at the Alvin Theatre and after the final curtain the press women are to join the cast for a midnight supper on stage.

Saturday afternoon everyone gathers at Grand Central Station for a trip to Wallingford, Connecticut, to wind up the week with cocktails and dinner and a visit to the Oakdale Music Theatre. Any blotches found on this column are tears of sorrow because I can not be there to join in the work and fun.

From the Branell fall, 1958, collection designed by Hilda Altmark, a dress and jacket costume of imported flowered silk brocade in salmon pink. The waist-high jacket, collared with demi-buff mink, conceals an Empire bodice. The simply styled mink hat is by Emme.

Shower Honors

Miss Patricia Scurrah was honored at a shower given by Mrs. Douglas Gosse at her home on Cornwall Street recently. Corsages were presented to the bride-elect, her mother, Mrs. Stanley Scurrah, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. K. Emslie. A lace cloth covered the tea table which was centred with a cut-glass bowl of pink carnations flanked with tall candles in silver holders. Presiding at the head table were Mrs. C. Webb and Mrs. A. Archer. Guests included Mrs. A. Gait, Mrs. S. White, Mrs. G. Noon, Mrs. J. Birkenhead, Mrs. P. Andersen, Mrs. C. Bicknell, Mrs. R. Carter, Mrs. A. Rogers, Mrs. G. Denham, Mrs. A. Pass, Mrs. F. Emotional Appeal Counts In Choice of Fabrics

NEW YORK (UPI)—There's more than meets the eye to the fabrics we buy.

Silk, for instance, is "sensuously and sexually exciting," says one well-known authority on why we purchase what we do.

Women select materials not only for coverage, but on the basis of emotional appeal, says Dr. Ernest Dichter, president of the Institute for Motivational Research, Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y.

Dichter says that each of the basic textiles creates a variety of psychological reaction. Writing in the current issue of a magazine for the textile trade, Dichter listed some of fabrics effect on us. He further expanded on his observations in an interview.

"Women especially are almost as conscious of the material they wear as they are of their own bodies," said Dichter. "Instinctively the woman feels that the material she wears, or its design, reveals her entire personality."

As Dichter has figured us out, we like silk not only because it is "sensuously and sexually exciting" but it is "personal, intimate and revealing," is the "standard of excellence for refinement," is a "cool, gracius luxury" and is "regal and exotic."

Cotton, Dichter said, is "friendly without effusiveness or ostentation," indicates "innocence with a promise of underlying sexuality," is "cool and calm with a promise of hidden inner warmth," and is "clean and pure."

Wool is "masculine—strong, rugged, protecting, flexible and sexually attractive," its tough exterior implies "a warm, tender life beneath the surface," it is "sedate, conservative, cultured" and represents a "respectable group life."

Linen, he said, has "the appeal of elegance."

What about the synthetics—the nylons, dacrons and orlons? Dichter said that "as might be expected, they lack this type of cultural and sensory appeal" although they may acquire it as we "become more familiar with them."

"But today I think perhaps the chief appeal . . . is their helpfulness for the housewife actually looks forward to the ease of care they promise," he said.

Dichter said today's shopper looks for a "synthesis of yesterday and tomorrow;" that the women look for convenience of the new combined with the "time-honored esthetic values" of the old.

This is why, he said, that "nylon tablecloths with the effect of organdy" are popular and also why a woman will use a cake mix, but add her own "creative touch in the form of an egg."

Newlyweds Making Home In Seattle, Washington

Now making their home in Seattle, Wash., are newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Doyle. The couple were married in St. Andrew's Cathedral by Father Bernard Hanley.

The bride is the former Miss Elizabeth Mary Ciceri, daughter of Mrs. B. R. Ciceri of May Street and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Doyle of Seattle.

Wedding music was played by organist Miss Margaret Ginsbach.

Given in marriage by her twin brothers, John and Bernard Ciceri, the attractive fair-haired bride wore a floor-length gown of peau-de-soie. The gown was fashioned along princess lines extending to the back in a semi-train. The V neckline was edged with French lace applique and the bodice was short sleeved. Her finger-tip veil was held in place with a cap of peau-de-soie and lace and she carried a bouquet of white roses and baby gladioli.

William McMenamin was best man and ushers were Patrick Martin and Kenneth Paradis.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

It will delight every cook to know that the days of lumpy brown sugar may soon be over. Recently, some manufacturers have been packaging it in an airtight polythene bag. With a snug plastic clip at the top to keep moisture in and dry air out, the sugar should stay soft indefinitely. Both the two-pound and five-pound bags of sugar can be bought in this convenient new package. The bag is easily re-fastened each time the sugar is used.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

MONDAY, JULY 14, 1958

ARIES (March 21 to April 19)—You are in tune with your star and should be feeling wonderfully energetic, so that you can easily accomplish a great deal. Have conferences, work, run errands. Make this a banner day! And be sure to put all your files in order.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20)—Private matters you feel are what you should handle exclusively today. That is well and good, provided you are very sensible about them, especially where money is concerned. And don't just lose time in conversation only.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21)—You have the ways and means today to contact those powerful personages you can surely swing your way and get their support for your earlier success in life. But be brief and dynamic. P.M. spend a delightfully romantic evening.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21)—You are most anxious to get greater prestige, popularity, credit. This can be accomplished if you make it your business to see the right personages and ask for advice privately. But be sure to act upon plans formulated.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21)—Take advantage of the fine aspects today by stepping out of dull-doldrum existence and going to some fine place with good atmosphere with an interesting and clever friend. Something very good will come of it. P.M. be gay and joyous.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22)—Think in broad terms today, and be sure to contact those persons who can give you a boost upward in your specific fields. Change your attitude to a positive and optimistic one. Face life bravely and it is wonderful.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22)—Temperamental but most clever pal today gives you advice that you should be clever enough to follow. Drive out to some nice spot and talk things over in most friendly and happy fashion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21)—A good idea today to look into such matters as Social Security, bonds, investments, etc., to see how efficiently they function with present position you are in. Converse with fellow worker, too, or some expert on such affairs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—A clear thinking associate truly has the solutions to many of the problems that face you now, so give both ears to what he or she has to suggest. Later, relax at some favorite kind of fun, sports, theatre, driving, etc.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)—A family tie is the person to consult today if you would make your daily life less monotonous and difficult. And be certain to help him or her in some way also, where it is best appreciated. Be very thoughtful and kind.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)—Devote any free time stylishly studying the latest trends in fashion, beauty, etc., that will give you more savoir faire, ease. Later, bring your special gifts to the attention of right persons. P.M. be happy at home with kin.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20)—Much of this day should be spent attending to fundamental matters, and being sure you are working along harmoniously with all others vital to your life. Be considerate, practical and, above all things, fair. Then you really progress.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN MONDAY . . .

The delightful child born Monday quickly shows marks of real genius coupled with an intriguing air of humility which is very fascinating. But take care you do not smother him or her with too much love too long, or your offspring will not gain the greatest attribute in life—independence. The horoscope speaks loudly of the pioneer in music, sciences, and particularly in medicine.

Business as Usual At Empress Hotel

CYRIL CHAPMAN

Empress Hotel manager Cyril Chapman today branded a report that the hotel had been arbitrarily cleared of guests for Princess Margaret's visit as "untrue."

"We have about 500 guests in today," he said. Besides permanent residents, Mr. Chapman said, the hotel was about one-third full with tourists "which is about the usual number this year."

Another block of close to 40 rooms was reserved for early-arriving delegates to the Philippine Mahogany Association to be held Monday to Thursday. The association of businessmen is in the mahogany trade with the Philippines.

The convention space was booked two years ago "and we certainly couldn't cancel it now," said Mr. Chapman.

"About the only large block of rooms set aside are 200 for the guests that will attend the annual garden party at Government House Monday," he said.

"Normally we would reserve about 100 but this year the number was doubled because the Princess will be at the party and we expect more people to come from out of town."

A number of rooms also have been set aside for the convenience of oficials who will be attending various functions connected with the visit.

Farris Refuses Any Retraction

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator J. W. deB. Farris of B.C. said today he has nothing to retract in a Senate statement in which he referred to Commons member Douglas Jung as "this Chinaman."

Senator Farris said in a statement that Mr. Jung himself, in a Paris interview, had referred to himself as Chinese.

"What is the difference?" the senator said. "I would have referred to any person of any other race as I did about Mr. Jung."

CLAIMED BIAS

Mr. Jung, Vancouver lawyer, and first Commons member of Chinese extraction, was quoted in Paris this week as saying that Canadian delegations to Russia are hand-picked and biased while Russian delegations to Canada often cannot see the people or places they wish to see.

In the Commons Friday Liberal leader Pearson — to whose party Senator Farris belongs—tried to come to the defence of Mr. Jung but was ruled out of order. Prime Minister Diefenbaker indicated disapproval.

Today, the senator said he did not consider Mr. Pearson was correct in stating in the Commons that "every member would read the senator's remarks with regret and disapproval."

DIVERTED ATTENTION

He said he regretted that his remarks had diverted attention from "really serious" statements attributed to Mr. Jung.

He said he regarded the Commons member's statements as most unfair to Canada.

"Mr. Jung," he said, "purporting to speak as a Canadian representative attending an international assembly made the kind of charges about the Canadian government authorities, past and present, that Canadians have justifiably made against the Russians.

"In particular, he said that our youth delegates sent to Russia by Canada and the United States are primed by their governments to be biased beforehand against Russia, and that Russian visitors to Canada never got the chance to see the places and meet the people they would like to see and meet.

IRON CURTAIN

"In effect, he suggests a Canadian-American iron curtain. He is saying that as between Russia and the American nations it is a case of the pot calling the kettle black, without indicating which is the pot and which the kettle. I do not question the loyalty of the Chinese citizens of Canada or the citizenship rights of any Canadian of whatever race.

"I do not consider that the fact that China is a communist nation and closely affiliated with Russia is an issue in this discussion and in my opinion should not reflect on the loyalty of our Chinese citizens. What I was driving at in my remarks in the Senate was to question the right of any person to speak for Canada in a way seriously reflecting on the conduct of our Canadian authorities in relation to Russia. If Mr. Jung was correctly reported and unless he has real proof of his assertions, he is unworthy of the respect and confidence the Canadian people have placed in him."

warmth combined with a faint hint of shyness that immediately draws you to her.

From the centre of the bunch of petunias I could hear the "oh's" and "ah's" as women and children succumbed to this charm.

CENTENNIAL BLUE

Dress and matching topcoat were of silk shantung in a color that we, in British Columbia, would certainly call centennial blue.

The dress was in the new directoire style. Waistline, high under the bodice, was outlined with a tailored bow and the very short full skirt reached only a little below the knees.

The full-length coat had bracelet sleeves and the collar was finished with quite a large bow at the back.

Her tiny hat of blue iridescent feathers was tight fitting. Her white gloves reached to the cuffs of her coat. Shoes were in matching blue with closed toes and stiletto heels. Her stockings appeared to be a smoky blue and with seams. She wore pearl necklace and diamond bracelet and earrings and carried a large white purse.

"SO TINY"

"She is so tiny" were words repeated over and over again after the Princess had gone to her suite in the hotel.

"Why, she didn't come up to my nose," said Miss Lola Whisman of Columbus, Ind., "and I'm only five foot two inches tall."

Miss Whisman, with many other guests in the Empress, had established her position in a chair close to the main doorway through which the Princess entered.

"REAL DOLL"

"We did not know that we were to be in the hotel at the same time as the Princess Margaret until we got to Seattle," she said. "We certainly timed it just right!"

Her traveling companion, Miss Bernice Bishop added: "I wouldn't have missed it for anything. She is truly a fairy tale Princess."

Boat Mishap Kills City Sportsman

Gerald "Slim" Udal, 50, well-known Victoria sportsman, was killed instantly June 17 in a freak boating accident at Waterton Park in Alberta, it was learned here today.

Mr. Udal, who worked here as a carpenter in the winter and operated a camp at the park in the summer, was testing a new racing outboard when the flywheel broke and a fragment struck his head.

Mr. Udal was born in Maple Creek, Sask., and spent most of his life at the park. When war broke out he worked on air force stations in Alberta, and in 1943 came to Victoria.

He had been a member of the Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association for four years, and acted as starter at regattas held while he was in the city.

He was even more active in Victoria Gun Club, having served several terms as president, including the present term. Prior to that time he was club field captain.

Surviving are the widow at home, 1650 Earlson Avenue, and brothers and sisters in Saskatchewan and Alberta.

Canadian inter-city and rural bus systems carried 13,526,900 passengers in the first quarter of 1958, an 8.7 per cent drop.

. . . HOTEL

the milling crowd closed ranks suddenly as the spectators strained to have their first look at the Princess.

A few women broke under the tension and dabbed at their eyes, fathers quickly hoisted their children to their shoulders, several waved small Union Jacks and everyone cheered with all their might as the Princess walked slowly between the ranks of RCN petty officers lining the walk.

She turned and waved to the crowd several times as the royal party proceeded towards the veranda steps flanked by two red-coated RCMP officers.

NO SIGN OF FATIGUE

Empress manager Cyril Chapman greeted the princess on the veranda.

But before she crossed the threshold, the princess walked back a few steps and waved to both sides of the crowd-filled lawns at the entrance.

As she stepped through the door, an RCN party on the roof of the hotel hoisted the royal standard under the sunny sky.

Inside, the Princess proceeded through a police-cleared aisle in the thronged lobby as hotel guests clapped fervently. The royal party went through the Crystal Ballroom entrance to the vice-regal suite on the first floor of the north wing.

SHOUTING RISES

Led by a leather-lunged minister from Sacramento, Calif., the crowd broke into dozens of "We Want Margaret" chants as the petty officer guard formed a human barricade in front of the steps to prevent the crowd from surging into the hotel.

Twenty-seven-year-old Dr. Everett Johnson, a field representative for the Sacramento Revival Centre, led the assembly time and again in it's thunderous chanting.

"And we won't stop until we see her," he shouted at one point with the immediate endorsement of the crowd.

REST IN SUITE

Inside the roars of the crowd were muted to a whisper by the thick walls of the hotel, as the Princess, keeping to a tight schedule, remained in her suite for a respite from almost 24 hours of travel.

Undaunted, the crowd, led by Dr. Johnson, swept from the main entrance to the north wing where it stood, still chanting for the Princess, about 150 feet from the vice-regal suite.

The memorable arrival was caught on thousands of strips of film as hundreds of the spectators trained everything from box cameras to movie films on the Princess during her walk to the hotel.

Crowds began gathering along the sunlit Causeway and Empress Hotel lawns as early as 9 a.m. Hundreds were jammed against the Causeway wall with scores mounting it to sit and stand.

As some began leaving at 11.30 a.m., an RCMP motorcycle-escorted convoy of three trucks bearing two tons of Royal baggage drew up to the hotel with sirens screaming.

All Will Hear City's Greeting For Margaret

Two public address speakers have been mounted atop city hall to ensure spectators will hear every word of the civic greeting to Princess Margaret Monday.

A band will entertian the crowd starting at 9.30 a.m.

A 12-man guard of honor, drawn from war veterans on Greater Victoria civic staffs, will form up in front of the royal dais to be raised by the city hall steps. Mayor and Mrs. Percy Scurrah will await the arrival of the princess at the foot of the platform steps.

Princess Margaret's car will draw up at 10.15 a.m. As she descends from the car, the band will begin "God Save the Queen."

The mayor and his wife will greet the princess and the royal party will ascend the platform with the mayor on the princess' left and the entourage following.

Other civic leaders will be ranged behind them waiting presentation.

Mayor Scurrah will ask the princess' permission for his seven-year-old granddaughter, Deborah Jennings, to present a bouquet.

After the presentation, the mayor will present a gold centennial medal to the princess on behalf of the Greater Victoria centennial committee.

Following the medal presentation, the mayor will present to Princess Margaret: Acting Saanich Reeve and Mrs. George Austin, Oak Bay Reeve and Mrs. Fred Norris, Esquimalt Reeve and Mrs. A. C. Wurtele, Central Saanich Reeve and Mrs. Rupert Brown, and Sidney village council chairman Dr. and Mrs. C. H. Hemmings.

The men will bow and their wives will curtsey.

The mayor then will invite the princess to sign a special page in the city's visitors' book which will be placed on a table used at similar ceremonies during previous royal visits. A royal blue scarf with gold fringe will cover the table.

He will hand the princess a pen reserved for royalty for the signing and will apply a blotter on her signature. Members of the princess' party will sign on the following page.

When the princess is ready, the party will descend from the platform in the same order as it ascended. Mayor and Mrs. Scurrah will bid the princess farewell at the roadway while special guests remain a step or two behind.

The band will strike up during the farewell. Special guests will return to the dais to sign the visitors' book after the royal party departs for the legislative buildings.

Low Hits at Press

VANCOUVER (CP) — Social Credit Leader Solon Low Friday night accused the press of lying and twisting the truth to perpetuate the present financial system.

"The press lives off the avails of destitution. They engender bitterness and hatred."

He said Social Credit is exposing "the racket to which these people are a party. When anyone begins to expose the financial racket on which their special privilege rests that person becomes the object of vituperation and bitterness."

FOR SMOOTH COVERAGE

News Army Rivals Make Their Peace

By PETER LOUDON

A total of 250 professional probers, reporters and cameramen for the press of four nations, radio and television and newsreel crews, and an army of technicians, met in the Crystal Ballroom in summit peace talks.

The planning was intended to avoid hustle and jostle sometimes experienced in royal visits. Careful allocation of "spots" for newsmen and photographers is aimed at keeping paths clear for the royal party—and avoiding outbreak of open war among competing news services.

Reporters who have sat in a thousand meetings, smiling smugly at the antics of convention politicians, put on their own show. A passerby could easily have mistaken the gathering for the fifth annual conference of Canadian Butter and Egg salesmen.

There were information and transportation desks, and mimeographed forms in profusion, including a directory for out-of-town "delegates."

These include men and women from such well-known agencies as Time and Life, Chicago Sun Times, Portland Oregonian, Magazine de Paris, Seattle Times, Movietone, the Mirror, Express and Herald, all of London; an alphabet of wire services—CP, UPI, BUP, AP and Reuters; Toronto's Star, Telegram, Globe and Mail and the CBC with a crew of up to 60.

Each is issued with a badge, white for reporter, red for photographer and yellow for technician. Each also has written credentials, issued under supervision of the RCMP.

These will identify the campaigners as the great coverage begins.

Keep your best side to the camera Victoria—the eyes of the world are on you.
